

Scrap Drive Greatly Intensified In Final Stages Of Collection

School Contests Pile Up The Scrap; Trucks Scour The Country Side

The Wayne county salvage drive went into high gear last week when farmers, business men housewives and school children all entered enthusiastically into collecting scrap. Some fifty volunteer trucks were used in the drive. Under the direction of P. L. March, T. P. Roberts, Lee Sellon and Roy Gates, every township was covered.

Wayne business men volunteered and manned some 30 trucks on Thursday in an intensive one day drive, bringing in 243,041 pounds of metal. The Carroll business houses closed on Friday and went out with 18 trucks, bringing in 36,000 pounds of scrap. The total from the county drive was 453,041 pounds.

The school children, stimulated by a contest, entered into the collection with characteristic vim, ferreting out the scrap from everywhere, and officials report an admirable job on their part.

The many overlapping drives have at times been somewhat confusing. The Corn-Hawk drive and the newspaper drive, coordinating with the national drive, have created added interest between states for honors.

Local interest has reached such a point that the committee has arranged for another volunteer drive on Wednesday, culminating in a celebration to be staged in Wayne on Saturday. At the time of going to press, one million pounds of scrap has been collected in the current drive. All indications are in favor of Wayne county being among those in the lead.

Wayne High Overpowers Wakefield

Wayne High Holds Wakefield Scoreless In A 39 To 0 Victory

Friday night, Oct. 9, the Wayne High football team very decisively defeated the Wakefield High Trojans by a score of 39 to 0 on the Wayne college field.

The two teams played on even terms during the first quarter. In the second quarter, Stull of Wayne, after a series of brilliant runs, went over for a touchdown. The try for the extra point was not good. Gerdes of Wakefield made a run of 40 yards to put the ball in scoring position but the half ended before anything could happen and the score stood at 6 to 0 in favor of Wayne.

In the second half Wayne ran roughshod over the Trojans. Stull personally accounted for four more touchdowns and threw a pass to Strand to score another one. Wakefield's line was so badly riddled with injuries that they failed to stop any of the opponent's runs in the last half. Kenneth Victor, guard of Wakefield, suffered injuries that kept him out of the game after the first half.

Stull of Wayne again showed up magnificently. His combination of speed, shiftness, and ability to take the breaks when they come is hard to match.

She wore a necklace of pearls, her veil was silk net finger tip length with tiny ostrich tips in her hair. She carried a bouquet of white Killarney roses.

She received her A. B. degree from the W.S.T.C. Her M. A. degree from the University of Nebraska and her Civilian Pilot Training from the Rissler C.P.T. at Norfolk, Nebr. She has been teaching in the Junior High school in Norfolk for the past three years.

Lieut. Wm. Canning Wins Wings And Was Married Friday

LT. WILLIAM B. CANNING

Lt. William B. Canning, son of W. P. Canning, received his silver wings, Friday Oct. 9, at Foster Field, Texas, where he graduated from the advanced flying course. He started his flying instruction at Wayne and trained in Illinois before going to Texas.

Lt. Canning was married to Miss Mildred Ann Mau at Foster Field Chapel on the same day. "Ready for combat duty" was the stamp of approval placed on fledgling fliers at advanced flying schools of the Gulf Coast Training Center today as they won silver wings of the Army Air Forces.

Every section of the United States, Latin America, even Shanghai, China, was represented on the huge class roster (exact size undisclosed), the ninth group to graduate since Pearl Harbor.

Wayne was represented by Lieut. William B. Canning, son of Mr. W. P. Canning, 909 Main Street. Absent was the fanfare of airplanes roaring overhead, speeches and long ceremonies at this wartime graduation. Instead pilots marched up, received their silver wings, saluted smartly and turned to begin their active flying duty. All have requested immediate action.

Included in the Foster Field class of 42-1 is First Lieut. Harold C. Theus, of Bethany, Okla., an ordained minister and Army Chaplain. He put aside his ecclesiastical robes to become a fighter pilot flying a P-40 or a lightning P-38.

Miss Elfrieda Seeck, a registered nurse who has had special training in anesthesia and a broad experience in hospital work, has been secured for the position of head nurse at the Benthack hospital.

Miss Seeck comes here from the Jane Adams hospital at Council Bluffs, Iowa. She responded to this call because of her preference for working among people of a smaller community. She states that her policy is to give the best possible care to patients, and with the modern equipment available at the hospital here she feels that this aim will be accomplished.

Dr. Benthack and the Wayne community are to be congratulated securing the services of this most capable supervisor.

Native Of China Speaks At Kiwanis

Mr. Finn Tells Of War Conditions And Of China's Will To Fight

Wayne Kiwanis members and guests gathered at Hotel Stratton Monday noon for their regular luncheon. Dr. Morgan was the guest of Dr. J. T. Anderson; Fred Dale, the guest of Att. Harry Siman; Prof. Raymond Schreiner, guest of Jim Miller; Dean H. H. Hahn, guest of Prof. O. R. Bowen; and Mr. Van Anooy of the OPA, guest of W. C. Swanson. The club helped Dean Clarence McGinn celebrate his birthday. After a brief song service, President Teed sounded out the members in regard to having the meetings open fifteen minutes earlier, and it was so decided. Supt. J. W. Litherland introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Albert Finn, a native of China, who is a student at the University of Nebraska. Mr. Finn told very convincingly how Japan gained international recognition and prominence through contributions of England, United States and Germany.

Mr. Finn then gave five ways through which China has gained time in their struggle with Japan which has been going on for over five years. First, China's four million square miles of area permitted a retreat and loss of thousands of square miles to gain time. Their four hundred million, eight hundred thousand population permitted a sacrifice of 60 million to gain time. Chinese endurance made possible the building of the Burma road and carrying thousands of tons of supplies on the backs of men for hundreds of miles. The characteristic unity of the Chinese disbanded politics for the duration, accomplishing more in the same time. And fifth, aid to China has been voluntary and on an international basis. China needs the world over giving with out stint. He pointed out that U. S. S. Russia and India, because of their large area and reservoir of manpower, could likewise afford to buy time. Also he could see ultimate victory for the allied cause, he did not feel that India could be kept in her present status. The talk was largely factual and thought-stimulating.

Wayne County Crop Improvement Ass'n Is Being Organized

The officers of the Wayne County Crop Improvement Association met Saturday evening and summarized a list of purposes or objectives for the organizations as suggested in previous meetings. The purpose of the organization as suggested by those present is as follows:

- (1) To find a market for surplus Wayne County brome seed.
- (2) Help make arrangements for cleaning and grading brome seed and other crop seed.
- (3) Help growers in pooling the seed for large orders.
- (4) Help in establishing grades and brands for Wayne county brome to aid in marketing the seed.
- (5) Encourage the establishment of new brome fields from native adapted Wayne County fields.
- (6) Produce and use more certified crop seed in Wayne county.
- (7) Aid in preventing spread of bindweed and other noxious weeds by using only pure seed and certified crop seeds.
- (8) Aid in securing portable cleaning mills or other satisfactory cleaning facilities for brome and crop seed.

They also prepared a tentative constitution and by-laws for the organization. These will be acted on by the members at their first meeting. Officers present were Albert Watson, president; Roy Neary, vice president; Bernard Spitzgerber, treasurer and Walter Harder, county agent, secretary.

A liberalizing of the restrictions in an effort to keep all cars rolling is meeting with general favor. Observing the 35 mph speed limit will be a condition.

A statement by Hitler to the effect that he expects to hold the territory taken, is of a decided different tone than statements made a year ago about a unified Europe and Asia. It also implies a defensive strategy in place of an offensive plan. Military authorities seem to agree that a defensive strategy never won a war.

Wayne O. Reed, candidate for the office of state superintendent of public instruction, was in Wayne on Thursday, while making a tour of this part of the state. He gave our people the impression of being capable and well qualified for the position by personality, training and experience.

THE ECONOMIC "CAZAR"

In several recent appointments to highly important posts President Roosevelt has surprised—and gratified—his severest critics. He strengthened Donald Nelson's hands by calling to his business men of outstanding ability. He assigned W. M. Jeffers to clean up the rubber scandal. None of these were all-out new dealers. The president chose them not because of their political or economic opinions, but because of their ability and qualifications.

For this he deserved, and has received, widespread commendation.

His latest appointment, to the most important post of all—that of "economic czar"—is meeting with equal acclaim, from both sides and all sides.

James F. Byrnes, lifted from out the supreme court to become director of the republic's economic life, is an all-around man, and his ability, there is none to dispute. During his long congressional service, in both house and senate, he won distinction as a leader who gets things done; done without fuss or feathers, diplomatically, and done while retaining the liking and respect of friends and opponents alike. His fairness and good judgment were recognized. And in the short time he has served as associate justice of the supreme court his reputation has followed him and has been strengthened.

Byrnes is a liberal, a democrat, and a moderate new dealer. In the congressional fights he served as the president's right-hand man, his most efficient aide. Yet the president's most obdurate opponents were friends of 'Jimmy' Byrnes, and he'd him in high regard.

As frequent a critic as David Lawrence writes, in his syndicated column:

"President Roosevelt could not have picked a better man in the whole country. . . . It is primarily his fairness, his instinctive sense of what public opinion approves or disapproves and the confidence that both the president and the congress have in his ability that combine to make him the right choice. He is one in whom all classes and groups have faith and who will demand equality of sacrifice and tolerate no special privilege."

Lawrence lauds Byrnes' "deep sense of justice," and adds: "A milestone has been passed with the appointment of a competent fair-minded man to take over for war purposes the whole economic situation in America." "These and many other like expressions are reassuring. Extraordinary powers—so comprehensive we can hardly grasp their meaning—have been delegated by the congress to the executive and now, by the president in turn, to Mr. Byrnes. He will wield over all of us something like what in medieval times was described as the high justice, the middle and the low. Subject always, of course, to the opinion and control of the president himself.

That fairness and discretion and a sense of justice will combine with ability, energy and courage in the exercise of these vast powers must be the universal prayer.

We wish "Jimmy" Byrnes the utmost of success in the rendering of invaluable service to his country.

IMMUNIZATION PROGRAM

Among the many programs being undertaken as an aid to the war effort, the immunization of school children ranks high. The influenza epidemic of 1918 will never be remembered as an aftermath of that war period, similar to plagues that have come with every major war in history. At the present time, doctors and nurses are being called into military service at an unprecedented rate, doubling, and in cities, tripling the need for those who remain to practice. These factors stand out as a crying need for preventative measures.

The program undertaken in the Wayne county schools this year met a very hearty response, resulting in three-fourths of the total grade enrollment being immunized, or practically all of the pupils who had not been immunized previously. Such a program of prevention against diphtheria and smallpox will undoubtedly afford peace of mind to many parents.

RETAILERS AND THE PRICE LAWS

Reports indicate that the Office of Price Administration is now starting to crack down on violators of price ceilings. In the words of Leon Henderson, "We propose to enforce price regulations, wherever it is necessary to enforce them... Every willful violator of price regulations, every landlord who seeks to evade rent control, every trader in black markets of goods—whatever his motive or station—challenges the war effort of the nation."

The duty of the OPA in this vital matter is clear, and the public will support that OPA enforcement officers will refrain from trying to make "examples" out of merchants who inadvertently violate the law. The price regulations are extremely complicated. As one authority on retailing has said, "It seems probable that some unintentional errors, minor violations, might be found on a minute inspection of any type of establishment." Many merchants are definitely confused, and simply don't know what price can be legally charged for certain kinds of goods.

The past record of retail merchandising has deserved and won public confidence. Both chain stores and independent stores have been aggressive fighters against price-inflation. Both have protected the interest of the consumer in every possible way—and they did that long before price ceilings were established by the OPA. It is a matter of record that very few cases of willful profiteering have been discovered. In the light of this fine record, there must be no effort or attempt to make accidental price violations appear as willful and criminal violations. The OPA must be scrupulously fair and just.

GAS AND RUBBER

The Baruch report on the rubber question marked an intelligent and forthright approach to the country's Number 1 domestic problem. The most important recommendations concern national gasoline rationing, a 35-mile speed limit, compulsory tire inspection, production of synthetic rubber at the rate of 1,100,000 tons a year—and the suggestions that more rubber be made available to the public for retreading and recapping tires in order to maintain necessary civilian driving.

No one can deny that the elimination of unessential driving is now necessary. But we must not make the mistake of establishing an arbitrary rationing system which would cripple production in many parts of the country. In the West, for instance, thousands of people must drive 20, 50 or 100 miles a day in the course of their farming and business operations. If this part of the country was too severely limited in auto use, there would be a catastrophic slow-down in activities in all times.

The big thing now is to make unprecedented effort to increase synthetic rubber production—as well as to conserve what rubber we have in all practical ways. The appointment of William M. Jeffers as chief of the rubber drive, is a step in the right direction. Mr. Jeffers is a business man of distinction and he is a man who is used to getting results.

The American car owner will cooperate fully in any program laid down by the government. And it is the duty of the government to place in effect a wise and flexible system of rationing and conservation which will permit necessary driving for civilians according to location and activity.

SECOND FRONT

The second front has long been the biggest military question—and it is getting bigger fast. The plain truth is that a serious cleavage is developing between Soviet Russia and the balance of the United Nations. The Russians definitely feel that they have borne the brunt of the fighting long enough, and that it is now time for England and the United Nations to do something concrete and effective.

Wendell Willkie's recent visit to Russia was obviously made for the purpose of finding out just what Soviet military and governmental leaders are thinking. Mr. Willkie had long audiences with Stalin and Motolov, and with a number of high-ranking Russian Army men. He made a visit to the front, and talked with rank-and-file Russians. So it is highly significant that he at once issued a statement in which he advocated the establishment of a second front "at the earliest possible moment that our military leaders will approve." He then added that some of these military leaders may "need public prodding."

The attitude of the Russians is certainly understandable. The Russian people, military and civilian alike, have made sacrifices that deserve the adjective "incredible." According to Moscow accounts, the Russian Army has suffered 5,000,000 casualties in killed, wounded and missing. Sixty million Russians are in areas which at present are occupied and controlled by the Nazis. Aid from the United States and England has fallen short of the total which was anticipated, and Russia has a terrible lack of food, clothing, fuel and other necessities. Germans, pursuing their policy of extermination, have deliberately killed tens of thousands of Russian men, women and children. In some sections, Russian authorities have found it necessary to condemn part of their own population to slow starvation, in order to provide sufficient food for fighting men and necessary factory workers. The courage of the Red Army is a beacon light in the long and bloody history of war. Never have there been finer and more desperate stands than those made by the Russians at Sevastopol, Rostov, Stalingrad and else

The NORCO "40" PORKY

Says: WITH VITAMIN D
Says: PROTECT ME

Many essential ingredients are lacking in home grown grain and all of these are supplied by Norco "40" Hog-Maker Supplement. But, I want to tell you about just one of the vitamins this week... Vitamin D, the sunshine vitamin. You'd think that this time of the year I would be able to get enough Vitamin D from the sun, but, believe me, that's not true. I spend too much time laying in the shade and that's why even on sunny days I need Vitamin D added to my diet. It's essential to the utilization of minerals, calcium and phosphorus. A deficiency of vitamin D results in rickets or convulsions. A partial deficiency may result in poor growth and development. Be on the safe side. Feed Norco "40" Hog-Maker to your pigs. Cunning Designs for The Baby's Layette

MOTIFS for baby dominate this transfer—in fact, the entire transfer is devoted to baby. There are sprays of dainty embroidery just right for wee dresses, slips or gertudes and the scallop patterns might come in handy here also. Ronald, the duck, rides a ric rac wave as bib decoration, or perhaps he'd make a play suit pocket along with Whiskers, the cat. A cute bunny rabbit is also for appliqueing, and last but not least is Paddlefoot, the duck.

These cunning designs are all on one transfer, ZP486, 15 cents, together with directions and suggestions for their use. Send your order to:

J. Fuller Pep By JERRY LINK

Sittin' down in Jed's General Store the other day, it was kinda impressed on me that the weaker a fellow's argument is, the stronger the words he uses! Well, when I get to talkin' about KELLOGG'S PEP and vitamins I don't need any high-powered words. You see, to feel really good you got to eat right, which includes gettin' all your vitamins. And while PEP hasn't got 'em all, this swell-tastin' cereal is extra-long in the two that are oftenest extra-short in ordinary meals—B, and D. Try PEP, won't you?

Civilians Aid War Effort Conserving Meat, Heat

Being Frugal With Coal and Oil for Home Heating, and Also Not Buying More Than Your Weekly Meat Allotment Helps.

By BAUKHAGE News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N. W., Washington, D. C. You have heard before that the one question, repeated most often in letters which come into the Office of Civilian Defense in Washington is: "What can I do to help win the war?"

I receive a great proportion of such letters. Many of you have asked this question yourselves. Some of you haven't been able to get a satisfactory answer.

Beginning this month there are two things you can do if you really want to help win the war. They are these: conserve heat and meat.

We have plenty of meat in the country, we have plenty of coal and oil. But some of the meat—about a fourth of it—has to go to our own fighting men and those of our Allies. And much of the coal and a great deal of the oil can't get to us because of a shortage of transportation.

Look at the heat situation first: The war has depleted our coastal tankers which furnished 95 per cent of our means of transportation to the eastern states. Many of these tankers were needed by our fighting forces and our Allies, many went to the bottom as a result of the U-boats.

Many that once plied the eastern seaboard go to Melbourne or Marseilles—some have already gone to Davy Jones' locker. Last November the railroads were hauling 68,000 barrels of oil a day. Now they are carrying 800,000 barrels a day.

But remember it takes four or five trains, of some 70 cars each, to haul as much as one tanker. And there is of course a tremendous increase in the amount of oil and gas consumed by war activities, civilian and military.

Fuel oil is already rationed. Gasoline will be rationed nationwide soon. That process is automatic but there are other things you can do to help.

You can make your house heat-tight with weather stripping; you can convert from oil to coal (if you can get coal in your locality); you can be frugal. According to estimates given out by the War Information office you can save the nation, by reasonable conservation, 25% MILLION tons of coal this winter. You can save over 18 million barrels of oil between October 1, 1942, and May 1, 1943.

Conserve your heat—now what about your meat? Beginning this month there is one thing that you can do. It is easy to check up on yourself as to whether you really want to help in this respect. All you need to be able to do is to count up to three. Not even that far, just two and one-half.

That is the number of pounds of meat you ought to eat each week from now on. More than that will rob somebody else—less than that isn't enough to keep you going.

By February you will have no choice. You'll have a ration book and you'll get the amount the government says you can have. Meanwhile it is your patriotic duty to ration yourself.

This is the reason: One-fourth of the meat supply of the country has to be turned over to the fighting forces of the United Nations. If they could, the American people would buy 21 billion pounds of meat in the next 12 months. There are about 17 1/2 billions available.

Second Step: Rationing The government has taken one step, is preparing for another. The first is to limit the deliveries by the packers to civilian outlets. The second is rationing. The machinery for that takes time—by February it is hoped the rationing system can be in effect.

Now in this intermediate period, although there is a limit to the amount of meat the market gets, there is no limit on what the individual can buy as long as the butcher has it. That is up to you. So it becomes a question of sharing. The Food committee in Washington, using the best information available, has set 2 1/2 pounds per person per week as the limit.

You may be able to get to the meat market early. Many house-

Household Hints by Lynn Chambers

Serve a Salad . . . Win Your Vitamins (See Recipes Below.)

This Week's Menu: Browned Oysters, Scalloped Peas and Onions, Cranberry-Pineapple Salad, Hot Biscuits, Apple Juice Mince Pie, Recipes Given.

Vegetable Bouillon. (Serves 2) 1/2 cup water, 1/4 to 1 cup juice strained from canned string or wax beans, 1 bouillon cube, 2 small sprigs parsley. Add water to bean juice and heat to boiling. Dissolve bouillon cube in boiling liquid. Serve hot garnished with parsley.

Good-to-eat foods help the family take in all these vital minerals and vitamins. Drab, uninteresting dishes will send them off to eating other foods to take the edge off their hunger—wherever they can put their hands on something. I need not point out that in this way they may really be losing out on foods necessary to the body.

*Scalloped Peas and Onions. (Serves 5 to 6) 1 pound small white onions, 1 No. 2 can peas, 3 tablespoons butter, 3 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 cup milk, 3 tablespoons finely crushed bread crumbs.

Festive Squash. (Serves 6) 3 small squashes, 1 cup drained canned tomatoes, 1 cup shredded, processed cheddar cheese, 1 tablespoon chopped onion, 2 cups soft bread crumbs, Salt, pepper, 3 tablespoons melted butter, Parsley, Broiled bacon.

Lynn Says: Vital Statistics: There are about seven inches in the Nutrition Yardstick which bear checking every day in every way so as to keep you and your family in the running: The first inch includes milk: 1 pint per day for every adult and 1 quart for every child.

Now, the fruits. Two a day isn't hard to manage. Of course you start off with breakfast, and then include one for lunch or dinner dessert. The last and seventh inch includes butter or some fat rich in vitamin A. This is for fuel and energy.

BRIEFS . . . by Baukhage

Fifty-five out of every hundred persons in Britain are working for the government. There are some American officials who believe that England made a great mistake in calling off the Stafford Cripps negotiations in India.

It is estimated that 300,000 of the boys now in uniform are members of the American Legion. Here's some sheer pessimism—American civilians, men, women and children, should be taught how to conduct guerrilla warfare in preparation for possible invasion of the country.

Wayne Teachers college has decided to grant a two week's vacation in November in order to give students a chance to assist with the harvesting of corn and crops, because of the present labor shortage. Both the student council and the college faculty have approved the decision. The November vacation from the college will begin the evening of November 13 and classes will again convene the morning of November 30. This vacation will substitute for the one usually taken at Christmas time. In consequence only two holidays will be observed, during the Christmas season, December 24 and 25.

Wayne college faculty is studying the feasibility of certain changes in the courses offered at Wayne State, changes which might meet the needs of boys in the deferred programs and which might contribute to their effort. The faculty is considering whether to drop some subjects and add new ones; also whether certain subjects required of men who have enlisted in various branches of army, navy, and marine reserves can be speeded up. These questions are still being studied.

Four study centers for the year 1942-1943 have been established by the Teachers college. These are Pender, Neligh, Pierce, and Hartington. Enrollment at the four centers at the present date is 63. Instruction is given at Pender the first Saturday of each month; at Neligh and Pierce on second Saturdays; and at Hartington on the fourth Saturday.

TRAINING SCHOOL

Kindergarten News
Marian Carlson celebrated his fifth birthday at school Thursday with a treat for all of the children.

Steve Pauelski is still the leader for the scrap drive in our room.

All of the children helped cut colored leaves, brownies, nuts and squirrels for our new fall border.

A lot of cooperative play has centered around a wagon which the children built out of our Patty Hill blocks.

First Grade News
Mrs. Pauelski and Mrs. Wollenhaupt visited the first grade.

Joan Pauelski, Bobby Sherry and Jack Kingston were able to bring the most scrap iron. Every one is still on the look out for more.

The Safety Readers seem to be the favorite book for this grade at present.

Art work has centered around sunsets, trees in October and some on the scrap iron activities.

We are watching some bulbs grow in water and sand.

Miss Coulter has been teaching "The Wind" and "Five Little Drums." Some of the first graders are trying to play the "Five Little Drums" on the marimba. Some can play "Father Takes Me On His Knee" and "The Old Re-frain."

Second Grade News

Joanne Powers, Donald Perry and Harold Surber have gone "over the top" with more than 100 pounds of scrap apiece. Second grade children have 387 pounds of scrap to their credit.

Children have discussed Bambi in great detail. Gretchen Jansen and Tommy Myers have told the story of the play in a very entertaining manner.

The safety poster under direction of Miss Darlene Schultze is ready for coloring.

Wayne County Farmers Bring In Three Tons In "Scrap Harvest"

Wayne County farmers so far have turned in close to 3 million tons of material in the "harvest" of all the scrap on their farms for war use. Many have brought articles made of copper, brass, tin, zinc and lead, and some are turning in old rope, burlap bags, and hags, all of which are in demand.

As the scrap piles grow bigger at Wayne, some farmers are asking how soon this scrap is to be moved. It would be amazing if it were all moved next week, or even next month. This scrap must be sorted, graded, prepared and packed, and accumulated in carload lots for efficient freight car use.

If there is not enough material of one grade in a county to make a carload, then it becomes necessary to combine the accumulations of this particular grade from several neighboring counties to make a carload. This delays shipment of scrap of this grade while the scrap piles grow. "Let no farmer worry about these growing scrap piles," says Salvage Committee Chairman March this week. "The fact that these scrap piles are growing is a sign that this scrap harvest is growing toward success. It means that the farmers are really combing their farms for unused scrap and are finding lots of it."

Mr. March pointed out that no farmer should fail to bring in scrap because he found so little it doesn't seem to amount to anything. No matter that con- dition the scrap is in, it can be used. One broken plow will help make 100 armor-piercing projectiles. A worn-out disc will provide steel for 210 semi-automatic carbines. An old hand cornsheller will make three 1-inch shells. A worn shovel will help make 4 hand grenades. One flatiron is enough for 6 hand grenades. One useless tire provides as much rubber as is used in 12 gas mask. There's a war use for every bit of scrap on every farm. Although farmers have brought in a great deal of scrap, Wayne County is still short on its quota. Those farmers who haven't yet turned in their scrap are urged by Chairman March to bring it as soon as possible so as to put Wayne County over the top.

THE Secret OF THE MARSHBANKS BY KATHLEEN NORRIS

©NORRIS W.N.U. RELEASE

Couples were leaving the dining room to dance for a few minutes.

THE STORY SO FAR: An orphan since the age of seven, Charlotte (Cherry) Rawlings knows almost nothing about her early history. Judge Judson Marshbanks, her co-guardian with Emma Haskell, arranges for her to leave Saint Dorothea's, and tells her that Emma has obtained for her a secretarial position with the wealthy Mrs. Porteous Porter, of San Francisco, where Emma is housekeeper. She is first to go to the Marshbanks mansion. When she arrives she dines alone with the judge as Fran, his young wife, and his niece, Amy, are dining out. Kelly Coates, an artist, drops in and Cherry feels ill, at ease in her convent clothes. Cherry becomes bitter when she overhears Fran and Amy make laughing reference to her and her clothes. Her surroundings are luxurious when she takes up her job with old Mrs. Porter, but after several weeks she finds life almost monotonous.

Now continue with the story.

CHAPTER V

So Emma and Ferny propped her up comfortably and arranged the lights becomingly, and were barely finished as the clock struck the half-hour after seven, when Dorothy and her mother came in to preen themselves under the old lady's approving eyes; to admire her and be praised themselves. And in another half-hour three or four mothers were there, and quite a little reception was going on in the upstairs sitting room. At Cherry's suggestion the arriving guests were to be sent upstairs in detachments; she went below at half-past eight to find sixty of them milling about enjoying a succession of cocktails, and was reminded of old days at Saint Dorothea's and school theatricals as she sent them up in parties of six.

Unexpectedly, Cherry found Amy Marshbanks in the center of an admiring circle, and hated herself for the wretched little prickle of jealousy that rose even through her newfound sense of ease and power. She looked for Fran and Kelly Coates, but they were evidently coming later; they were not in sight. When the time came for her to say to Amy that if she would please—would any four of them—go upstairs and say good evening to Mrs. Porter, Amy stared at her amusedly, entirely without recognition, and said in an undertone to an adoring boy beside her:

"What's the big idea? Is Nursey telling us to say we had a nice time?"

There was a small library known as "the den" tucked away under the wide turn of the stairway. The door into the hall was open, but when Cherry approached it to answer the telephone in the hall near it she had no idea that anyone was in the room.

The voice on the telephone was that of an agitated gentleman who was bringing a lady up from Hillborough and had had the misfortune to break a spring while driving. They had sent for a taxi.

Cherry's eyes moved absently to the open door of the den, and rested incuriously upon a pair of satin slippers that in their turn were resting upon one of the tasseled taboretts that stood before the fire.

The wearer of these slippers, whoever she was, was sunk so deep in a great chair in the comfortable position she had assumed her heels were at least as high as her head. The freight twinkled on the slippers and on the swirl of her vermilion velvet gown; she was evidently whispering for Cherry heard no words distinctly.

Cherry went upstairs with her message that Miss Trotter and Mr. Buddy Brown would be a little late, to find the detachments coming and going between the downstairs rooms and Mrs. Porter's apartments, and any serious consideration of dinner as far removed as ever.

Emma said with her usual air of stern but repressed annoyance that this would never do, and just as the delayed couple arrived from Hillborough, at twenty-two minutes past nine, the eight-o'clock dinner began to take shape and form, guests straggled toward the tables and looked for name cards, and waiters began to serve smoking cups of madrilene.

It was at this moment that the couple whose privacy she had observed sauntered from the den. Cherry, halfway up the stairs to find Keno and ask the little Japanese maid to keep an eye open for a lost evening bag of silver and amethysts, happened to see them come out. She paused on the stairs to watch them make their leisurely way toward the dining room. They stopped once in the lower hall, the man speaking earnestly, the woman listening with a bent head, giving him only an occasional swift upward glance.

downstairs rooms were a scene of wild disorder. During this busy, hurried time, messages were constantly coming downstairs from Mrs. Porter, up to whose room Cherry ran a dozen times. Her employer wanted blandly to know if everything was going nicely, was enthusiastic as to her own share of the festivities and would like another cup of that delicious madrilene. Ming Wo so rarely made madrilene and she had always been so fond of it! The dinner party had progressed to the breast of milk-fed chicken with Virginia ham and mushrooms and to procure another cup of the soup was like returning to some event of the dim past. When that was accomplished, Mrs. Porter was delicately picking at some rich concoction of crab meat and allowed the soup to cool untouched.

Bridge and backgammon had been set out in one of the parlors now; the orchestra concealed behind the inevitable palms was playing provocative dance music.

Couples were leaving the dining room to dance for a few minutes. —were returning to play absently with alligator-pear or frozen pudding. Cherry looked into the upstairs bedroom to find Alma and Hatty deep in a muttered conversation.

"They're doin' nothin' but makin' fun of the old lady," said Hatty. "Her champagne's good enough for them, and her dinner's good enough for them, but 'Oh, ain't she a scream,' and 'Ain't this a queer old vault!' and 'Lord, my dear, you let me into this; I never would have come.'"

"An' they says, 'How early can we get out and go somewhere and dance?'" added Alma.

Cherry was the more disturbed to hear the maids' views because they confirmed an uneasy and ashamed impression of her own. An impression that the flattery and kisses that went on in Mrs. Porter's room were not sincere, that behind the old lady's back there were patiently resigned sighs and shrugs, and a good deal of the raising of amused and contemptuous eyebrows. Mrs. Porter's dinner table for the debutantes would be long remembered, but not with the gratitude she imagined. The words "horror" and "awful" and "lousy" and "Just about the limit!" would be used more often than more complimentary terms. Cherry felt a sudden rush of resentment, of pity, for her employer.

Stepping back into the hall, and going to look down at the lower floor, to see if the dinner was about over, Cherry was shocked suddenly to hear the sound of sobbing. Who was crying?

It came from Dorothy's room. Cherry went softly toward it, and as the door stood open a crack, she pushed it further open and went in. Dorothy, her party frock crushed into stringy limpness, was lying across the bed crying bitterly. She had a chiffon handkerchief pouched into a wet ball in her hand, and was digging at her eyes with it, and snuffling and sobbing like a heart-broken child of three.

The endless evening dragged its way to midnight, and the guests began to disperse. Mrs. Porter, when they came in to say their good-byes, protested kindly. It was early yet! Why, when she was a girl they had often danced right into the morning! But the pretty girls and the hoarse, polite young men were firm. Some of the boys were working, they explained; they had to keep early office hours. By twos and fours they dwindled away.

Cherry knew that they were all going off somewhere else to dance. She heard them promise one another to meet later. She heard them laughing at their evenings' entertainment, and their "Whew!" of relief as they disappeared into the darkness outside the front door. The whole thing had been ridiculous and a failure, she decided, going downstairs for the twentieth time that evening to see if the bridge players were still at their game.

arrested her with a hand on her arm. "Sit down here a minute," he said, immediately seating himself on the landing's top step. "How's it gone? Had any fun out of it? I've seen you coming and going and didn't know whether it was any fun for you or not. Get your candy?"

"Oh, it was wonderful, Mr. Coates." "Not your first box of candy, I suppose?" Cherry was too dizzy to know what she said by the way of reply. She tried to make it grateful. But merely talking to him confused her. The lost evening was suddenly aglow with color and light. She was to have her moment after all!

In her agitation she said exactly what she would have wished not to say. Swallowing hard and with a nervous, quick laugh, she asked, "Didn't I didn't Mrs. Marshbanks look lovely tonight?"

For a minute his expression was so odd that she was terrified. He didn't like her saying that! Then he said briefly, "Lovely." Blundering on, in spite of a half-defined feeling that he would not like to talk about her, Cherry said, "I used to think she was almost—well, homely. But when you know her face you see that she's beautiful!"

He had folded his arms, in a favorite gesture of his, and was looking at her seriously. "Fran," he said simply. But the word brimmed with some secret magic for him, and she felt its echoes reach her, and was chilled. "The Randalls are taking her home," he added. "I've got to be on my way 'back to Sausalito. But you—what kind of time have you had?" he asked after a moment.

"Rotten," she said, suddenly hungry for his sympathy and understanding. It was unwise, it was impulsive, she knew it, even as the ground slipped away from beneath her feet. "I hate that Amy!" she said. "That is, I don't hate her," she amended it, "but she treats me as if I wasn't there—didn't count."

"I suppose so," he conceded with a thoughtful look. "Give it time," he went on, with a little stiffness on the last words, "give it time. You'll leave Amy behind you some day, and then this will all seem very small-girl stuff. Patience, Cherry."

His use of her name, his serious consideration for her ill-timed outbursts destroyed the last shred of her reticence. She was tired, excited, jealous, lonely; she wanted somehow to hold him, and blindly reached for whatever claim upon his interest she could find.

"No matter what I did," she said, looking down shyly and fingering the ornamental end of one of the brass rods that held the stair carpet in place, "no matter what I did I would never matter to you, I know that! You'd never think of me as anything but a girl from Saint Dorothea's who didn't count—you'd go on falling in love with Mrs. Marshbanks—of course," Cherry floundered on wretchedly. "I know I'll never be like that—dressed that way and playing bridge and all; she's been in Europe—but if I had clothes and money—if my husband was as wonderful as Judge Marshbanks—I couldn't—I know I couldn't..."

She stopped in a terrifying silence. She could not raise her eyes. As Kelly got to his feet she rose too, but still she could not look at him. "I'm sorry," he said thickly, when she could not bear it an instant longer. "Well!" the man said dryly, on a surprised breath, as she came to a horrified and frightened pause. And forcing herself at last to meet his eyes, Cherry saw that he was smiling, in a sort of annoyed indulgence, as one might smile at a forward child. At the look her soul died within her. Those eyes could never again hold anything but contempt and dislike for her. Presently with a nod and a quiet "Good night," he left her, descended the stairs. Then the front door closed and he was gone.

For the first time in her life, Cherry spent an entirely wakeful night. Her wearied mind thrashed over and over again the last episode of the ill-starred party; her weary body twisted and struggled in a physical misery that matched the torture in her soul.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Reviewed by CARTER FIELD Censorship on FDR's Trips Arouses Criticism... Bond Buyers and Anti-Inflation Legislation...

WASHINGTON.—Republican leaders are very bitter about the censorship in connection with President Roosevelt's personal movements—particularly when he visits a large production center, and makes speeches to the workers.

The President has been visiting war plants and making speeches which would make good reading even if they did not have so important a moustache, and there is not a line about it even in the newspapers of the city visited. Not even after the President is safely back in the White House!

The fact that the news cannot be printed later, Republican leaders assert with much bitterness, proves beyond preadventure that the censorship is inspired neither by reason of making sure of the safety of the President's person nor of guarding any secret war information which the President might divulge in such a speech.

'Careless Words Cost Lives' Their theory on the latter is that if the President did divulge any information, which might conceivably be of value to the enemy, then what becomes of the injunction being pounded home in street car posters and elsewhere that "careless words cost lives"?

Obviously the President is NOT going to say anything which would be of the slightest value to the enemy even if it were heard by Berlin or Tokyo.

Obviously also, there is no possibility of publication of the President's visit to any plant endangering his person if the news is not printed until after he is back safe in the White House. As a matter of fact the secret service has always objected to any publication in advance of which railroads the President would use, what the time of arrival in any given town would be, etc.

But obviously every railroad employee along the line would know in advance, since considerable planning and safeguarding has to be done in advance, so always there would be crowds at the station just in time to see the Presidential train, and the crowds would always be tremendous where service stops had to be made by the train.

This leave us, the Republican critics say, only the point that the President's visits might be taken by the enemy as indicating which were our most important munitions or airplane or cannon-producing plants. Which, they say, the enemy knows anyhow.

Whereupon they add, with some anger, that actually the President's visits seem much more closely attuned to communities where there are elections this fall in which the President is interested than in any relation of importance of the war production plants!

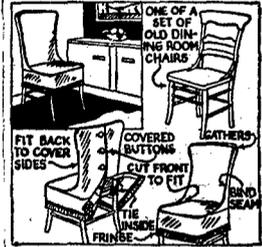

Timid Congress Showing Fear of Pressure Groups

One of the strangest political angles to the present temper of congress is that the most timid group of men in the country, frightened of labor, frightened of the farmer, frightened of every tiny minority that organizes and shouts at it, has no apparent concern about the largest group of all—the holders of war bonds and stamps.

It does not require an investigation to show that more people have bought war bonds and stamps than the total of any one single group—more than all union members, for example, more than all farmers, etc. This is obviously so because nearly everybody has bought some.

ON THE HOME FRONT WITH RUTH WYETH SPEARS

ANY dining room may be made fresh and smart with built-in cupboards, a little paint and inexpensive curtains. But what may be done to bring a set of out-moded chairs up-to-date? The one sketched at the upper right is typical of many that are substantial and sturdy though scarred by long use. All they need is an up-to-date frock to make them perfectly at home in a modern dining room.

IF your chairs do not have the supports shown at the sides of the seat they will be easier to slip-covered. This cover is of medium blue cotton rep with darker blue for the bias binding and the cotton fringe around the bottom. Large button moulds are covered with the slip cover material for the button-up-the-back opening. If you are not expert at making bound buttonholes, snaps may be used under the buttons. The narrow ties sewn to the corners of the inside of the seat cover hold it neatly in place.

NOTE: This chair cover is from Book 5 of the homemaking booklets available to readers at 10 cents each. Directions for other dining room chair transformations will be found in BOOK 7, together with an interesting array of conservation ideas which make use of materials around the home. Many Glider Pilot Trainees Needed

Plans are being made for the registration of men for the November session of Civilian Pilot Training at the College. A pilot screening test will be given Friday, October 16, at 1 o'clock p. m. at the Training School building. Although the quota for the next session has not been received, it is believed that it will be the same as that for the present session, which has five navy, three glider, and two general elementary trainees. Applicants for glider pilot training are needed. The glider phase of army training has a number of things about it that are desirable. The elementary training is the same for all, but when glider pilot applicants finish the course at Wayne they are called to active service and sent to advanced glider schools for further training. They then receive $75 per month besides uniforms and subsistence. When their training is completed they are made staff sergeants and draw pay amounting to $180 per month. General elementary trainees must pay all expenses except subsistence for a period varying from ten to eleven months. Also informed sources point out that after the war glider pilots will be in demand for commercial services. There will be comparatively few glider pilots and they will receive good pay.

AAA Notes

The farmers in Nebraska are very proud of the Ever-Normal Granary which they have developed. The supply of food material they have stored is one of the most essential requirements of a country at war. However, even in normal times, an Ever-Normal Granary is necessary and the storage space for this should be on the farms.

Every farmer has had considerable experience in watching stored grain in the past. However because of the loan, we too are particularly interested in the condition of his grain. Also, because of the larger amounts now placed under loan, the problems are magnified.

Cards have been mailed to farmers who have commodity loans in order to get a report of the condition of grain in storage.

If the farmer is in doubt of the condition of his grain, he will report to the AAA office and a sealer will get a sample of the corn. Much of the 1941 corn is being delivered and stored in ware houses and in bins that are being erected in different parts of the country.

Library Notes

The Library has received a large number of pamphlets called Public Affairs Pamphlets. These are nonpartisan, up to date, readable and illustrated. They are put out by the Public Affairs Committee, Inc. New York City. This is a nonprofit educational organization with no social or economic program of its own. Its purpose is to make available in brief and inexpensive form the results of research on economic and social problems.

The United States is one of the few countries left in the world where the people still have the right to solve their own problems. There is only one defense against the foe we are fighting and that is clear and informed understanding which cannot be fooled because it knows the facts. These pamphlets are fine for busy men and women, who find them time savers—easy to handle and quick to read.

Some of the topics discussed in these pamphlets are: Read Your Labels, More For Your Money, Doctors, Dollars and Disease, The Coming Crisis in Manpower, How To Check Inflation, What's Happening to Our Constitution, and many more timely topics.

The call has continued coming for more books for our soldiers. The expanding army needs more new books, and more technical books. Anyone wishing to give books of this type please leave them at the library and they will be sent on to our boys.

Every farmer who has scrap material which is undoubtedly beyond further use for repairs on farm implements should continue to move it into the market for war use. However, any machinery or parts that may be used to repair the farmers own machinery should be carefully culled out and retained.

Wings of Victory

Electricity helps make America's war planes some of the most deadly weapons. Here are a few of the ways in which E.E. equipment serves in the air.

1. Lamps are the eyes of the plane at night, ranging in size from the cockpit lamps no larger than a pea to landing lamps of more than half-a-million candlepower.

2. Radio combines the voice and the ears of the plane, allowing communication between the pilot and his squadron, and the ground and sea forces.

3. Instruments are the sensitive brain that relays messages to the plane, pumping extra oxygen to pilot from all parts of the ship and helps him to control the plane in its flight.

4. Superchargers are the lungs of the plane, pumping extra oxygen to the carburetors, giving our planes the altitude so necessary to modern warfare.
