

NO TIME TO LET DOWN

The tendency on the part of some merchants is to let down in their sales effort because of the conditions of the times. If this is generally done the trade of the community is apt to go to large centers where the promotion effort is going to be felt much more keenly than it would be in normal times. Another reason why this would work to the injury of the home community is that it would get residents of the community into the habit of going elsewhere to trade.

Sometimes these habits, once formed, are hard to break. One front line of battle of this nation is across the sea and every effort must be made to hold the line across the sea and every effort should be made to hold the line at home. The war will be over one of these days and we will again turn to our former pursuits. It is up to us at home to hold the line here. New problems will come and more rationing will call for more adjustments made. How slight is this compared to the sacrifices of our boys at the front?

FOR STARVING MILLIONS

The selection of Governor Herbert H. Lehman to the post of Director of Foreign Relief and Rehabilitation is a straw in the wind that indicates a growing belief that Victory is much nearer than has been admitted heretofore in the Headquarters. Starvation crouches at the doors of millions of people.

ECONOMIC SECURITY FOR THE FUTURE

No one in Washington quarrels with American labor, because as the discussions in the Forum of the New York Herald Tribune pointed out, labor is loyal, labor is bending to the task of building a World with economic security for today and the future. No one can very well expect that strikes will stop until there are definite laws to control this form of disorderly conduct.

The signs indicate that the new Congress will make an effort in support of fair treatment for the public, workers and management, just as early as war conditions permit taking up economic and human problems to govern the future.

AFTER THE WAR

The war against the Axis is going fine, and as the day of winning grows nearer many great leaders are tackling the problems of winning the peace. Only a few weeks ago this correspondent mentioned the criticism voiced by Assistant Secretary of State Sumner Welles against Chile and Argentina because they had not joined with the other Americans in taking sides against Germany.

General attention afterwards turned to the speeches of Wendell Willkie, and despite the criticism from many sources the fact remains that members of the Administration, including the President, have said just about the same thing as Willkie—although they have used softer gloves in delivering their punches.

Assuming that we win this war the "Free World" of the United Nations will organize the peace, and the question involves a new League of Nations. The old League failed, and while it is difficult to say just why, it seems fair to blame France, England and Italy because they did not back up the efforts of former President Wilson when the United States examined the pattern our Nation refused to go along any further because of lack of confidence in the European defaulter—the Allies.

Profiting by our sad experiences growing out of the former peace the Victory that will be ours will be followed by some kind of an organization of nations—no matter by what name it may be called. It must be strong enough and honest enough to prevent another horrible war in the next generation. That is not a theory, it is a fact.

36th Annual Christmas Seal Sale Combats Tuberculosis

As the 36th annual Christmas Seal Sale completes its second week in Nebraska, there seems to be many confused ideas about the significance of the Seal. Many Nebraskans are not sure what the Seal stands for, what it represents, or the benefits derived from its sale.

The Christmas Seal has no connection with the Red Cross. Year ago, it was known as the "Red Cross Seal," but by mutual agreement, the alliance between the groups was dissolved in 1920.

The 1942 Seal, designed by Dale Nichols, formerly of David City, Neb., is a picture of health in depicting a typical Nebraska farm scene. It stands for "home defense" and carries out a national theme of "prevent a wartime rise in tuberculosis."

In Nebraska the Seal represents the Nebraska Tuberculosis Association and is the sole support of this institution.

To those Nebraskans who wonder what good the Seal Sale does, the association answers that the Christmas Seal benefits every citizen of the state. Since tuberculosis is a communicable disease and is spread from the sick to the well, the duties of the Nebraska Tuberculosis Association are indispensable to the health of the state.

Working with the thought of "there is no home safe unless all homes are safe," some of the activities performed by the association are: tuberculin skin-tests and X-rays . . . free literature and films to promote health education and tuberculosis prevention . . . annual diagnosis campaign . . . nurses to arrange for and attend clinics . . . nursing supervision for persons suffering from tuberculosis.

Ninety-five per cent of the money received from Seal Sales remains in Nebraska for Nebraskans' health. The remaining five per cent is sent to the national association to be used in promoting its nationwide work.

Coming Of Snow Finds Corn Picking Practically Complete

Ideal weather during November was favorable for a speedy job of corn picking, consequently, with the arrival of snow and lower temperatures, most everyone was through picking or with only a small amount remaining in the field. The good wages paid, together with a vacation in many of the schools, helped make quick work of it. The yield is very satisfactory averaging 50 bushel to the acre in Wayne County and the quality is good. With an abundant yield, interest will now center on the sealing price.

121 Bu. Per Acre Yield Is County High

Albert N. Anderson, Local Farmer, Wins County Corn Crown

An outstanding corn yield of 121.94 bushels per acre won the corn growing championship of Wayne County in the 1942 National DeKalb hybrid corn growing contest it was learned this week. Officials of this biggest corn yield competition reported that over 12,000 farmers from 16 principal corn producing states were entered in this contest in which Mr. Albert N. Anderson scored so well.

Mr. Albert N. Anderson and several other farmers in this county certainly more than did their part in these war times in helping produce the record three billion bushel corn crop of the nation, it was declared. According to the U. S. Department of Agriculture the estimated average yield for the United States this year is 35 bushels per acre, so the county champion was far beyond that average. His yield was certified for production competition by two farmer neighbors.

The county winner's corn was grown under ordinary conditions from DeKalb hybrid seed. In recognition of his achievement the winner is being presented with a beautiful trophy.

Other county winners (runners-up) who received valuable prizes are: Lloyd W. Powers, Wayne 111.84; Munso Ulrich, Wayne 111.47.

County champions from nearby counties are: Max Riefenrath, Cedar County 120.40.

Ted Hook Reminds C Of C Members That "In Unity There Is Strength"

Over 80 members of the Chamber of Commerce that their residence in Wayne was evidence that they are happiest in a small town, on Tuesday evening when he gave the principal speech at the annual meeting held in Hotel Stratton.

Appearing before his fellow townsmen on the third anniversary of the organization, he asked them in view of the present problems confronting them, to think seriously what kind of a Wayne they would be living in 5 years from now. Cooperation of members with "our" chamber of commerce will accomplish much for the common benefit that cannot be attained through individual effort.

Following the annual dinner, Chairman W. C. Corvill called on Henry Ley, who presented Dr. Russell Anderson of WSTC who sang two solos. A trio of college girls and a chorus of nine college boys, furnished several splendid numbers. Henry Ley also presented the need for a genuine response in the War Bond effort. Dr. Anderson, L. W. McNatt and others voiced the sentiment that the accomplishment of the chamber—justifies its undivided support.

Election of the 1943 board of directors resulted in naming Martin Ringer, Ralph Carhardt, Dave Theophilus, Bob Marek, Phillip March, Ralph Berridge, J. Einung and Norbert Brugger.

Retiring members of the board and W. A. Wollenhaupt, the conscientious, pinch-hitting acting secretary, may well have the satisfaction of knowing that their efforts will serve as a gauge for carrying on future activities.

Paul Splittgerber Experiments With A New Type Terrace

Paul Splittgerber, living south of Atona and a cooperator in the soil conservation district, has constructed a terrace of a new type with a two bottom plow.

The soil is thrown down hill and no the return trip, it is packed. One end of the terrace is slightly lower than the other which will prevent a heavy flood from damaging the terrace as well as the lower terrace. Since this is the first one of the late types in the county, it will be watched with interest.

Soldiers Talk At Kiwanis Club Monday

Local Men Tell Of Their Basic Training At Club Luncheon

Members of the Kiwanis club were greatly pleased to hear two Wayne soldiers who were present at the regular Monday luncheon hour. Aldo Molinari, formerly of the Teachers College faculty, told of the basic training received by all new entrants, and also of the special training for the signal corps. He was on leave and enroute from Florida to an officers training school in the northeast where he will report for training. Although living conditions and training are "tough," there are some who go "over the hill." Lt. Chet Walters, our former county agent, and now on brief leave to make some adjustments, told of the splendid training received, the bright side of the picture, in the Ordnance department. He stressed the magnitude of the ordnance of all kinds that is being produced.

Fred Barrett, a former Kiwanis member of long standing, was a welcomed guest. The club was favored by two instrumental numbers by students of the high school; Margery McCulloch playing a number on the clarinet, and Evelyn Sorensen played three selections; "Silver Threads Among The Gold," "Old Black Joe" and "Swanee River," on the trombone. Both students were accompanied on the piano by Marcella Brugger.

In accordance with the policy of previous years, the December meetings will include, principally, a sing session and the luncheon.

Farmers Urged To Intensify Scrap Hunt By Donald Nelson

The News received the following telegram relative to the scrap drive on Wednesday: "The government is asking the American farmer to dedicate the remaining weeks of 1942 to an intensified Scrap Hunt. Steel Mills need more heavy scrap and the farms are one of the best sources of this type of metal. We need your further help in this farm drive, and in aiding our Salvage Committees to continue this effort throughout the next few weeks. All salvage committees are being instructed to continue to make available to the farmers all their transportation facilities and man hours, and to co-operate in every possible way. The nation is looking to the American farmer. I am sure, with your help, he'll come through." Signed, Donald M. Nelson, Washington, D. C.

Thanksgiving dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Samuelson and family were Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Agard of Denison, Ia., Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Manzer, daughter Mildred and sons Glen and Duane of Pierce, Geo. Miller and Walter Miller, both of Dakota City.

THIS TIME THINGS MUST BE DIFFERENT

This expression is often heard during discussions on the world order that will follow this World War. As the turning point of the conflict seems to have been reached, and we hear talk from Washington of feeding the nations that have been overrun, the question becomes more pertinent. What will the new era bring?

Of the guns he could lay hands on, and the emphasis in our defense production was to replace these speedily and make more. Even before Dunkerque-- from the outbreak of war--the greatly expanded needs of our armed forces necessitated stepping up our war materials output in the designs then existing.

But prior to that time careful attention was being given to the need for improving the technical excellence of weapons. As the opportunity to change designs presented itself--the most desperate period when the nonaggressor nations were virtually unarmed has passed, although the need to more and more weapons has not diminished--another objective also came to the front; better and better weapons in the technical sense.

A report by Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., Chairman of General Motors, shows how that corporation, thru the application to the war effort of management "know how" acquired thru years of manufacturing experience, has been able to achieve both of these objectives.

Saving of thousands of tons of critical materials, important savings in man-hours, sharply reduced costs and improvement of product are four categories he lists in which savings have been made possible by the company's application of industrial mass production techniques to the production of war materials.

The savings of materials speak for themselves. Savings in man-hours have released men and machines for further vital war work. Reduction rates have been accelerated, engines have been increased in horsepower, gears have been simplified and given longer life and improvements have been made in tank construction, airplane propeller design and in the manufacture of shells. The sharp reduction of these things, new methods of maintenance and service have been developed.

This application of the company management's peacetime technology developed in the production of civilian goods, plus the application of newly developed methods, add up to "creating a new technology of war production"--another of the sinews of war where we will be found stronger than the Axis.

FROM RATIONING TO HEADACHES

The Government reports that petroleum shortage has been intensified by heavy requirements for the North African front. Orders that call for less heat in homes have been very unpopular. Coffee, sugar, meat, milk, butter and other food regulations are questioned and challenged in legislative headquarters.

Plans an programs by the Administration for the allotment of manpower have met an air of skepticism and resistance in Congress. That does not mean opposition to this big idea--but the trouble is that ways and means for moving millions of men and women over this great checker board is too much like the 47th problem of Euclid--or in popular language it's a headache.

TRIPLE-HEADED LEADERSHIP

William Green and John L. Lewis cut their eye-teeth in the American Federation of Labor which was the one great labor union until 1935. But when Lewis left the Federation with his federated United Mine Workers and set up the C.I.O. there were two fighting labor leaders. Then Philip Murray was booted upstairs from UMW to the presidency of C.I.O. Lewis and Murray had a row. That's the way the three organized labor movements finally established Headquarters in Washington alongside Legislative, Judicial and Administrative branches of government. Green and Murray go to see the President whenever they want to--and when the great coal strike was on last year the President wanted to see Lewis--and the coal strike settlement was simply arranged.

Gallop Polls Reveal Bond Purchases by Occupations in U. S.

A recent survey by the Gallup poll revealed that 78% of Americans have bought War Bonds or Stamps.

Reporters for the poll asked a representative cross-section of the voting population this question: "Do you happen to have bought any war bonds or stamps?"

The result was:
Yes 78 percent
No 22 percent

Dr. George H. Gallup, head of the Institute of Public Opinion, said the findings were splendid testimony to the effectiveness of the Treasury Department's War Savings Campaign.

Seeking the answer to the failure of one out of every five adult Americans to buy War Bonds or Stamps, Dr. Gallup made a further study and found that two large segments of the population—the lower income group and farmers—are responsible for this situation.

Following is a table comparing the purchase by the various groups:

Group	Purchased	No Purchase
Middle Income & Well-to-do	90%	10%
Lower Income	68%	32%
Farm Cities	71%	29%

A breakdown of the bond and stamp purchases by occupations reveals that the professional man, the businessman, and the white collar workers are well ahead of other occupational groups in their bond and stamp buying.

Here is the comparison by occupations:

Occupation	Purchased	No Purchase
Professional	92%	8%
Businessmen	88%	12%
White-collar Workers	88%	12%
Skilled & Semi-skilled	78%	22%
Unskilled and Service	65%	35%

Furthermore, some sections of the country are far better bond and stamp buyers than the others. The East Central section, comprising Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan, is highest on the list, in the relative proportion who have bought bonds or stamps. 81 percent of the voting adults having bought bonds or stamps in this area. The New England, Middle Atlantic and West Central areas are next, with 79 percent holding bonds or stamps. Next comes the mountain area and the far west, with 78 percent. The south stands lowest in the sectional groupings, with 68 percent of the voting population having bought bonds and stamps.

"Life In The Army" Or "It Shouldn't Happen To A Dog"

(Contributed)

I fought and fought and fought—but I had to go anyway. I was called in Class A. The next time I wanted to be in Class B. (Here when they leave and when they come back.) I remember when I registered. I went up to a desk and the man in charge was our milkman. He said: "What's your name?" I said, "Oh, you know my name." He shouted "WHAT'S YOUR NAME?" I said, "August Childs." He said, "Are you alien?" I said, "No, I feel fine." He ask me where I was born, and I said "Pittsburgh," he said, "When did you first see the light of day?" I said, "When we moved to Philadelphia." He asked me how old I was, so I told him 23 the first of September. He said, "The first of September you'll be in China, and that'll be the last of August."

Then I went to camp, and I guess they didn't think I would live long because the first fellow I saw wrote on my card, "Flying Corps." I went a little further and some guy said, "Look what the wind is blowing in." I said, "Wind nothing, the draft is doing it." On the second morning they put these clothes on me. What an outfit. As soon as you are in it you think you could fight anybody. They have two sizes—too small and too big. The pants were so tight I couldn't sit down. The shoes so big I turned around three times and they didn't move. That rain coat they gave me. Well, it strained the rain. I passed an officer all dressed up with a funny belt and all that stuff. He said: Didn't you notice my uniform when you passed me?" I said, "Yes, what are you kicking about, look what they gave me."

One morning it was 50 below zero and they called us out for underwear inspection. Talk about scenery-red flannels, BVD's and all kinds. The union suit I had on would fit Tony Galento. The lieutenant lined us up and told me to stand up. I said, I am sir, but this underwear makes you think I am sitting down." He got so mad he put me out digging ditches. A little later he passed me and said, "Don't throw that dirt up here." I said, "What am I going to put it in?" he said, "Dig another hole and throw it in there."

Three days later we sailed for Australia. Marching down to the pier I had the worst luck. I had a sergeant who stuttered and it took him so long to say, "halt" that 27 of us marched overboard. They pulled us out and lined us up on the pier. The captain came by and said, "Fall in!" I said, "I already have, sir."

I was on board for 12 days—seasick for 12 days. Nothing going down and everything coming up. I leaned over the rail all the time. In the middle of one of the boat leans, the captain rushed up and said, "What company are you in?" I said, "I'm all by myself." He asked if the Brigadier was up yet? I said, "If I swallowed it, sir, it's up." Talk about dumb people. I said to one of the fellows "I guess we dropped anchor." He replied, "I knew they'd lose it, it's been hanging out since we left New York."

Well, we landed and were immediately sent to the trenches. After three nights the cannons started to roar, and the sheus started to pop. I was shaking with patriotism and tried to hide behind one of the trees, but there weren't enough trees even for the officers. The captain came along and said, "We go over the top at five o'clock." I said, "Captain, I'd like a furlough." He said "Haven't you any red blood in you?" I said, "Yes, sir, but I don't want to see it."

Five o'clock we went over the top, and 10,000 Japs came at us. The way they looked at me, you'd think I had started this war. Our captain yelled, "Fire at will." I didn't know anybody by the name of Will. I guess the fellow behind me thought I was Will, because he fired and shot me in the excitement.

On the way to the hospital I asked the fellow where they were taking me. He said, "You're going to the morgue." I said, "There's some mistake, I'm not dead." He said, "lay down do you want to make a fool out of the doctor?"

Mrs. R. G. Fuelberth and sons who spent a few days visiting with relatives in Norfolk and to attend the funeral of Mrs. Mary Hoskinson, returned home Saturday evening.

Library Notes

The Saturday Review of Literature for November 21st has a quotation on the front cover by Franklin D. Roosevelt which reads, "Books cannot be killed by fire. People die, but books never die. No man and no force can put thought in a concentration camp forever. No man and no force can take from the world the books that embody man's eternal fight against tyranny. In this war, we know, books are weapons." The first article in this same magazine is entitled "What the Nazis Say About American Libraries." This is a German View of American Public Libraries as instruments in shaping political control. The article was written by Dr. Hans Thierback and was translated from Geist der Zeit, October 1941. It is most unusual in that it is in effect a tribute to the United States for its library service. He admits the powerful influence of the public library but of course criticizes us for having the Jewish German authors on our shelves, such as Thomas Mann and Jacob Wasserman. These authors have been banned in Germany. He also points out that we ignore the race problem in our own country and of all his points of criticism that is perhaps the most justified. Several new Christmas stories are now on our shelves both in the children's department and the adult section. We hope they will fill the need for the season. A new book on mathematics has been accessioned this week. It is a very practical book called Mathematics Made Easy. It takes up the subject through algebra and includes business mathematics. We have had many calls for a book of this sort and are pleased to announce that we now can fill the demand.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Strong Allied Forces Solidify Gains As Violent Fighting Rages in Tunisia; Russ Shatter Nazi Stalingrad Lines; Japs Lose Strongholds in New Guinea

EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper. Released by Western Newspaper Union.

TUNISIA:

Rising Tide

The tide of battle was rising even higher against the battered Axis forces in Africa. Veteran British soldiers, familiar with the Nazi type of warfare, inflicted heavy damage on a German armored column in Tunisia while French allies battered down two German assaults on their positions.

A communique from Allied force headquarters in North Africa announced that French patrols are operating "far to the rear of Axis advance positions" and that American Flying Fortress and pursuit planes shot down or destroyed nine German planes in a raid on the Tunis airport. Even as the advance guards were testing the enemy's strength, a continuous flow of guns and tanks made its way eastward for the decisive blow.

However, a spokesman at Allied headquarters voiced a warning that the Germans are well entrenched in the Tunisian cities of Tunis and Bizerte "with large air forces and there will be severe fighting before they are ousted." He said that Allied action around Bizerte is "growing heavier." The Allied forces had driven two strong wedges across Tunisia, reaching the Mediterranean at two points.

Rommel's Race

Mobile armored units of the British eighth army were reported 35 miles from El Aghella, which offered Marshal Erwin Rommel's battered Africa Corps its best chance to make a stand. But Rommel knew he would find no rest from Allied bombs.

Bad weather prevented Allied airmen from maintaining their deadly attacks on the retreating Germans.

A British military commentator pointed out that "if the Axis armies still are planning to make a fight of it, it certainly will be at El Aghella." He said there was considerable evidence that the Axis forces were close to exhaustion after fleeing across North Africa at such a fast clip. But he added that Rommel apparently had received some tanks which had been left at rear line repair stations.

LAVAL SCHEMES:

For Axis Alliance

Climaxing a long series of moves by the Vichy government, Dictator Pierre Laval revealed that his French government is seeking an open alliance with Germany as "the sole guarantee for peace in Europe."

In his first speech since being invested with full political powers by Marshal Henri Petain, Laval said that "it is in the interests of France and peace in the future that we are seeking with Germany a reconciliation and an entente. It is to try to save our territory and our empire that we are following this policy..."

Laval, the Quisling of France, ridiculed Allied promises to return the seized portions of the French empire in the future, pointing to the British possession of French Canada and parts of the West Indies long ago.

"On the other side of the world," Laval continued, "Japan, an old nation by its history and a young one by its dynamism, has just taken from Britain and the United States immense territories, treasures and raw materials."

"It is with complete independence of action we are choosing this course. I am convinced Germany will be victorious."

METEOROLOGY:

Offered 18-19-Year Olds

A new program offering training leading to commissions as meteorological officers in the army air forces, particularly to the 18-19 age groups was announced in Chicago by the University Meteorological committee, representing five universities.

To be eligible, a man must be between 18 and 30 years of age with a high school diploma or its equivalent.

OFFENSIVE:

Russia Moves

For weeks there had been little important news from Stalingrad except that the Soviet forces were holding their positions within that stronghold city. Then a special communique from Moscow told of the beginning of the Russian drive which was to rip open two wide gaps in the Nazi lines ringing the city and then push the Germans steadily westward, away from the Don river.

First reports of this struggle said that 15,000 Germans had been killed in its opening phases and that the Nazis had retreated 40 to 50 miles. Also 13,000 prisoners were taken, said the Russians, while even German sources were admitting that their troops had been forced to take new strategic positions further away from the Don.

This latest campaign began just three months after the Nazis began their siege of Stalingrad and during that time they had often claimed it for their own. Now the Russians had the initiative and for the first time were meeting the Germans on a basis of near-equality of manpower and equipment. Front line dispatches said that these forces were taking the enemy's full measure by outfighting and outgeneraling him in all sectors.

This Russian victory was looked upon as one of great importance by military strategists, many of whom claimed it would have a direct bearing on the whole outcome of the war. For most, however, it was too early to make such a claim definitely. A more complete report of the Nazi losses had to be heard from a neutral source before such reasoning could be accepted.

One thing was clearly evident: the Russians had been taking advantage of the long lull in the fighting by carefully preparing their operations. Further, this campaign was timed to harass the Germans just as the British and American forces were blessing their full strength at Tunis and Bizerte in the North African theater.

NEW GUINEA:

Japs Lose Destroyer

The battle in New Guinea had been hard. Despite the loss of a destroyer, the Japs had succeeded in landing additional troops under cover of darkness. But that didn't prevent the Allies from closing in on all sides of the enemy positions at Buna.

Dispatches from the battlefront reported that the Jap destroyer and two smaller craft were sunk by medium bombers. Other medium bombers supported ground troops by bombing and strafing the enemy.

Some Australian units managed to get into Buna itself for a short time, inflicting heavy damage before retreating. American forces were said to be threatening the Japanese from three sides, apparently severing the enemy communications to Gona, 12 miles northwest. U. S. dive bombers blasted the Jap airfield at Buna with more than 100 allied aerial sorties in one day, aimed at softening up the enemy base for a knockout blow.

The destroyer sunk in late action was the third warship the Japs have lost at Buna. Previously when a reinforcing Jap fleet appeared and attempted to land help, Allied bombers sank a cruiser and a destroyer, forcing a third destroyer to flee.

From Washington came word that an additional American destroyer had been sunk in the great naval battle of the Solomons in the mid-November. This brought the total of American losses in the action, which smashed a Jap invasion armada, to two light cruisers and seven destroyers. The Japs lost 28 ships, 16 of them warships and 12 transports.

BRIEFS:

SILENCE: December 7, 1942, first anniversary of Pearl Harbor, will come and go without any special message from President Roosevelt. A White House announcement said that the President will not deliver an address on that day, "nor take official notice of that anniversary." Rather it is felt that December 7 should be observed "as a day of silence in remembrance of a great infamy."

BASES: President Arroyo Del Rio of Ecuador revealed that his country was the first in South America to give military bases to the United States on that continent.

DUKES: As a projected Austrian volunteer unit of the U. S. army began its development three of the royal archdukes were reported to have offered their services. They are brothers of Archduke Otto, pretender to the throne, who is president of a military committee of organizing the unit.

Synthetic Rubber Industry Achieved Within One Year

Speedy Adoption of Rubber Manufacturing Program Shaves 24 Years From Time Required to Launch New Industry.

By BAUKHAGE News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

By the time this is written or shortly thereafter, announcement will be made of the creation of what may become one of the world's greatest industries—synthetic rubber manufacturing. By that time probably ten plants will be assured of operation—the three biggest will make synthetic rubber out of alcohol, which means a market for the farmer's grain.

If the program marches according to schedule, the United States will have achieved within one year what usually takes a quarter of a century to accomplish—the building of a new industry.

This is the message that William Jeffers, president of the Union Pacific railway, now rubber administrator in Washington, gave me.

Mr. Jeffers presides at a desk in one of the offices of the War Production board and appears to be one man taken out of the American business world who believes that you can get things done even within the government.

He looks like what he is. A railroad man who came up from the bottom, still carries a union card and usually mentions it. He is stocky—bull-necked, slow spoken, a prophet of the practical, skeptical of the theoretical, who talks about his "two-fisted" organization of successful "business men" who "know their stuff."

I asked him first if he found much difference between working for the government and running a railroad. "Yes," he answered. Then he smiled and took his time before he went on.

"This is a democracy—I suppose the delays are necessary. But I haven't had much trouble." He looked up. "I make my own decisions. I got that Ford plant over-night." (He engineered the negotiations for the Ford tire manufacturing plant in Detroit for shipment to Russia.)

Using What We Have

"I have a top-notch organization of two-fisted businessmen who know their stuff. We are going to do what we are supposed to do on schedule. On our own schedule. We have the information we want and in a few weeks we'll know just how many plants we are going to have, what their capacity will be and the order in which they will start producing. "My first job," Jeffers went on as he lifted his 220 pounds and walked around the desk, "is keeping the country on rubber with what we've got. That means reclamation and conservation. Then it's to produce the synthetic rubber we need to keep going for the duration. Meanwhile I watch that stock pile of pure rubber we have, like a hawk."

"Here are the ABC's," he said, motioning me to a chair beside a table on which was standing what looked like an open sample case. It contained a number of bottles and a few other objects properly labeled. He pointed to the first bottle. "This is full of shreds," he said. "It is part of a whole tire, casing and all, cut up." He pointed to the next bottle. "This," he said, "is the same stuff after it has been soaked in oil and acid and the pieces of casing floated out. You can see the pieces of metal in it still." He showed me a screen with pieces of metal on it. "Here is the filter which strains out the metal—a lot of metal gets into a tire." There were a lot of pieces sticking to the bottom of the filter.

"These next bottles," he went on, "show the way the stuff looks after each successive process of refining. And here is the reclaimed rubber." He said as he picked up a black strip. Then he pointed to a new tire leaning against the wall. "This tire is made of reclaimed rubber." I felt it. It seemed normal. I said so. "It isn't as good as the tires you get today," he said, "but it is as good as the ones you got ten years ago."

Rubber Production

Then we came to part two—part two of his job, which is the production of synthetic rubber. He showed me a yellowish object which felt like rubber. "This is neoprene—synthetic rubber made of carbide. It is better than rubber, but it is very expensive."

BRIEFS . . . by Baukhage

What do they do with the ends of the pants tailors have? cut off for short-legged people now that cuffs are forbidden? Don't worry, the cloth is turned over to the Red-Cross and rewoven.

The death penalty can be pronounced on Belgians who slaughter animals without German permits.

There are two bottles, the contents of which looked just alike to me—a milky substance. One was the pure latex from the rubber tree. The other was a synthetic product made from alcohol of petroleum. "I am not a chemist," Jeffers said, "and I don't intend to be one. Those are just the ABC's."

He went back to the immediate problem before him, which is to keep America rolling until the synthetic factories start to work. "Are you going to be able to do that?" I asked. "It is not impossible if everybody plays the game," he said. "I know you can't regiment the American people and I am not in favor of trying to do it, but when the people understand what we are trying to do for them, I think they will co-operate. I have gotten splendid co-operation already from big business, little business and individuals. It is reassuring to learn how people react when they know what we are doing. I get all kinds of letters—and I answer all of them."

"When the people realize how important it is to help us help them save rubber, they will co-operate. In the last war we had a lot of flags and parades, went down to the train to see the fellows off with a band. There doesn't seem to be any of that in this war. It might be a good thing. But when the people realize that the most vital thing in our war effort is saving rubber, we are going to see something tangible."

At that point Mr. Jeffers dropped an aside, one of the little human remarks that are typical of him, tinged though it is with a touch of irony—"Maybe if the people didn't run around so much they could visit their neighbors and they might make friends and get better friends that way."

Rubber and Economics

"Rubber affects the social life of the people, no doubt—the whole American economy, rightly or wrongly, is built on rubber and we can't change it. Look at the farmer. We have to have food. The farmer can't go back to the horse and wagon. If he could get the horses, we couldn't build the wagons now. He has to get the crops to market—it all comes back to transportation."

"We'll keep them on rubber. Gas rationing is rough justice. It works hardships on some. Some take advantage of it—it's the man who has three gallons more than he needs and uses them to ride around the country that is the waster. But I think we'll get co-operation."

I went back to problem two: the building of the synthetic industry. "The government will own the plants," I said, "won't that make post-war problems?" He said to me, "Yes, the government will own the plants and the product will be manufactured on what amounts to a 'management fee' basis. A lot of other things," he said, "will be made under the same conditions."

"But I'm not interested in post-war problems," Jeffers went on, "my job is to help win the war. Unless bugs develop that we can't take care of, we'll do it. And if we do, we'll accomplish in a year and a half what it usually takes 25 years to do."

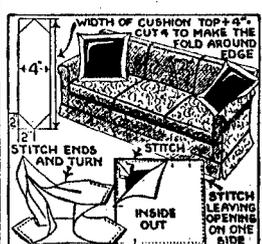

Co-operation will do that—and keep the country on rubber meanwhile—and co-operation means big business, little business and the folks "who eat in the kitchen" as Mr. Jeffers puts it. "They have the balance of power," he says.

About Wasted Coal

According to the United States Office of the Bituminous Coal Consumers' Council bituminous or "soft" coal is the backbone of America. It supplies industry with more than one-half of the power and energy required to produce the weapons of war. Creates nearly 55 per cent of the electricity used in our nation. Heats more than 50 per cent of the homes of America. Four out of five of all the railroad locomotives of the country get their power from bituminous coal.

Twenty-five million tons of "soft" coal will be wasted by the domestic consumer this year unless more than usual care is exercised in the operation of home heating furnaces.

NOTE: Smart cushions also may be made by combining smaller pieces of silk with cording and other finishes. Book 4 of Mrs. Spears' series of homemaking booklets, shows how this is done. Book 3 contains grand ideas for cushions of burlap, old silk stockings and ray collars. Booklets are 10 cents each. Address:

THE cost of a handsome pair of cushions will be little if you shop around for remnants of satin or brocade; ana for harmonizing crepe or taffeta to make a fold edge as shown here in the sketch. A yard will make two 18-inch cushion tops and the same amount for bottoms. Five-eighths yard of crepe or taffeta will make the fold around both cushions.

If you want to change feathers from old cushions, leave a three-inch opening in the old ticking; sew the larger opening over the smaller one and then work the feathers into the new ticking. Rip apart carefully and sew the new ticking with close stitches.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Linoleum is something new in wall coverings. It is durable and easily cleaned.

Candied grapefruit and orange peels are always tasty additions to liquid sauces to be used over baked or steamed puddings.

Eggs beat up best when allowed to stand 10 minutes in room temperature—about 72 degrees.

To keep cookies and cakes moist and tasty, store in an airtight place such as a cake box or stone jar as soon as they are cool. Do not merely cover the cake with cloth or waxed paper and let stand for several hours.

When your feet are hot and tired, bare them and stand in the bathtub without the stopper being in the outlet. Let cold water strike the feet with force for a short time, then rub them briskly with olive oil.

A tip for pumpkin pie: When making a pumpkin pie and the pie is nearly done, carefully draw it to the edge of the oven and then sprinkle lightly with grated yellow cheese mixed with shredded nut meats. Return to the oven and when the pie is done it will have a delicately flavored crusty top.

To keep the floors clean and shiny, wash them with a sponge frequently dipped into hot water and soapsuds. Wipe off quickly with a soft, clean cloth.

Add half a cup of boiled rice to your regular waffle recipe, if you want to serve waffles with creamed fish or chicken.

If you do not have game scissors to help with the carving use a regular heavy kitchen shears to cut skin, flesh and for disconnecting the joints.

For a modest gift—and one that is sure to please any smoker, there is nothing like a carton of cigarettes or a pound of smoking tobacco. Great gift favorites for past Christmases, of course, have been Camel cigarettes and Prince Albert Smoking Tobacco. Remember the men in the service, too. Camels and Prince Albert are big favorites in all the services. Dealers are featuring Camels in the gift-wrapped Christmas Carton or the handsome "Holiday House" box of four "flat fifties" (200 cigarettes). Also Prince Albert in the pound canister, all wrapped and ready to give.—Adv.

NOTES FROM KARL STEFFAN

Congressman Karl Steffan accompanied by Mrs. Steffan will leave soon for Washington. On Jan. 3, next, Rep. Steffan will begin his fifth term as representative from the Third Nebraska District. He will continue as a member of the Appropriations Committee. Other members of the Nebraska delegation are: Carl Curtis, Minden; Howard Buffett, Omaha; Dr. A. L. Miller, Kimball. Hugh Butler of Omaha is the senior senator, Kenneth Wherry is the junior senator.

The new Third District is composed of the following counties: Antelope, Boone, Burt, Butler, Cedar, Colfax, Cuming, Dakota, Dixon, Dodge, Hamilton, Knox, Madison, Merrick, Nance, Pierce, Platte, Polk, Saunders, Seward, Stanton, Wayne and York. People wishing congressional service should write to Karl Steffan, M. C., 1017 House Office Building, Washington, D. C.

Word of the Third District membership throughout the district should be completed in a week. Then he returns to Washington. This work at home is personal contact with constituents who have personal problems; with officials of towns and cities and also consists of visits to airports and federal facilities. Much of this work can be easier transacted at home instead of by letter from Washington. Many of the problems accumulated at home will be taken to Washington.

There will be a number of important appropriation conferences before the winding up of the 77th Congress and before the opening of the 78th Congress on January 3. The future expenditures and the future financial needs of the many Government bureaus and agencies will be discussed. Budgets are ready for many activities and immediately after the opening of the new congress, the appropriation committee members will be busy in closed sessions in order to get the bills ready for the house.

Each state is allowed one member on the party committee on committees and one member from each state on the party national congressional committee. These selections are made by a vote to the state delegation. At the present time Congressman Curtis of Minden is the member on the committee on committees. The Third District member is on the national congressional committee. The senate members have their own organization. House members consult senate members from their state from time to time. House members are allowed on the senate floor for visits or conferences with their senators. They have no voice in the senate. The same is true of senators with regard to the House.

THE Secret OF THE MARSHBANKS BY KATHLEEN NORRIS W.N.U. RELEASE

THE STORY SO FAR: Charlotte (Cherry) Rawlings, an orphan at Saint Dorothea's convent school since she was seven, knows almost nothing of her early history but has gradually realized that like other girls at the school she has no family. She questions whether she has the right to her father's name—Judge Judson Marshbanks and Emma Haskell, housekeeper for wealthy Mrs. Porteous Porter in San Francisco, are her guardians. When Cherry is twenty Emma gets her a secretarial job with Mrs. Porter but she goes first to the Marshbanks mansion, meeting the Judge's young wife, Fran, and his rich niece, Amy, daughter of his brother Fred, now dead. Life at Mrs. Porter's becomes monotonous and Cherry is thrilled when Kelly Coates, an artist, sends her a box of candy and she is jealous when he brings Fran to a party at Mrs. Porter's. Emma tells Cherry that her sister Charlotte was Cherry's mother. Kelly takes Cherry along so Fran can visit his studio and Cherry senses that he is very much in love with Fran, but soon he tells Cherry independently that Fran has promised the Judge she will not see him any more. Mrs. Porter dies, leaving Cherry $1,500, and she learns from Marshbanks that his brother Fred, who was Amy's father, was also her father. Cherry goes to the Stanford University and lives with the Pringles. Fran asks her to be Kelly's friend, saying he likes her, and that she has decided to do the honorable thing and avoid him. Kelly goes to Palo Alto and asks Cherry to marry him, although Fran will always be the "unattainable woman." Her answer is no; she wants no Fran in the background. Cherry and Francesca Pringle work in a vacation camp, then take a motor trip to Canada and on the way back Cherry goes to see Emma. Now continue with the story.

"I've hidden something for twenty years," Emma said quietly— of you. We'll get out of this somehow. When she stopped sobbing and was leaning against me, resting her hair against my cheek, I asked her who it was, if I knew the man. "Then she told me. "It was as if a gun had gone off." Emma went on. "My throat was thick and my head hurt. But I had to keep holding tight to her, telling her it was all right, that we'd get through—we'd get through somehow. Had she told anyone? No, nobody—nobody. She carried that secret for five months. "To think, Cherry of the Welcome that they were getting ready for the Marshbanks baby, and of the way the world would treat my Lottie's unwanted little scrap, seemed to work like some terrific intoxicating poison in me. I put her to bed; she'd stayed at the house often enough; there was no comment by anyone; and if Fred Marshbanks ever had thought of her, he had probably put it all out of his mind, as a moment's foolish mistake months before. "Lottie went off to sleep, and the next morning she was her quiet little self. I began to think if I could possibly keep Lottie safe up there, on the third floor of a big house. Where else would she be so hidden and so safe? I said to the Filipino servant Bonifacio that my sister would be with me a good deal. It was none of his business; he didn't care. Lottie could come and go in the quiet hours of the day, and in the evenings. "I don't remember that we talked of it much. Weeks went by. Lottie expected her baby in January. "January!" Cherry interrupted. "But we were both born in November, Amy and I!" "Yes, but one of you came two months too early." Emma went on with the story. "I was going to Fred, and if necessary bring in his brother, for the judge had moved out here then, and have them acknowledge his child. But it all came out differently. "When I came upstairs one wet November afternoon I found her in bed. Her trouble had come upon her two months too soon. I slipped down and telephoned old Doctor Povlitski. He had been a friend of mine and I knew he would keep our secret. "The old Madame was out, Fred wasn't home, and Fred's wife was dozing in her room. The doctor came in quietly the side way—I looked out for that—but fifteen minutes before he arrived Lottie's little girl, very tiny, but healthy enough, was born. There was nothing for him to do; he went away, and left her to me. And then I had some thinking to do again, for there isn't any hiding a new baby long. "Four nights later," Emma continued, "we heard a good deal of laughing and calling downstairs so I made some errand to go down to Mrs. Fred's room, and then came up and reported to Lottie. Mrs. Fred's father had arrived, and had brought her baby everything—his pram and chair and crib, his silver bowl and plate, and they'd been opening them up and making a great fuss. "Well, old Mr. Wellington went away, and the Madame went to her room, and things settled down. As soon as she could be moved I was going to get Lottie to a boarding-house I knew of. So I was breathing easier. "I settled Lottie and the baby off for the night, and went to my room. This was maybe eleven o'clock. I was undressed, and just getting into bed when I heard the baby cry and went into Lottie's room. "Her bed was tumbled and she was gone. I ran to the stairhead and saw lights in the hallway below and Lottie crossing it. Then I heard Lottie's voice in Mrs. Fred's room, and then Fred shouting. I don't know how I got down there. Mrs. Fred had stumbled back toward her bed and was staring at Lottie. There was a terrible silence when I got there, and then Amelia said in a whisper, 'You lie! "I don't lie," Lottie said. She was so weak she was leaning against a chair and her voice was hoarse and weak too. 'Ask him!' she said. 'And it's not fair. It's not fair that your child will have everything—wealth and position and

Roosevelt Could Have Killed Protest Vote . . . Republican Hopes For 1944 Election . . . Bell Syndicate—WNU Features.

WASHINGTON.—If one accepts the very general view that one of the reasons for the unexpectedly heavy gains by the Republicans in the election was widespread dissatisfaction with the prosecution of the war, then the Democrats fell a victim to unfortunate timing for the first time since 1930, when the Democratic victories in the congressional election foreshadowed the Roosevelt landslide over Hoover in 1932.

The point is that if the election had been held on November 10 instead of November 3 the voters would have gone to the polls all in a rash of enthusiasm about what their government was doing in the war, as a result of the landing in Northwest Africa. Not only that, but it is thought here that a great many voters who on November 3 remained home would have voted. Strong party men in general, and Democrats more so than others for some reason, hate to go all the way in a protest vote. If they are sore with the actions of their own party leaders, and particularly of the candidates for whom they are being asked to vote, they are apt to stay home. Not all of them, of course. Some of them will hold their noses and vote the ticket anyhow.

The Votes Now in Army Mr. Wallace did not allude to that. He placed more emphasis on the number of young men off with the fighting forces, implying that it was youth that supported the New Deal.

But it was actually much more the old Democratic custom of sulking when politically disappointed—"going fishing" on election day as they put it through the border states. Why this dissatisfaction? Most shrewd old politicians in Washington are convinced that it was due to the conviction that the government was not doing its utmost in the war effort. Here and there were indications that people did not like the tremendous attempt to carry on social and economic reform at the expense of the war effort.

A protest which could have been mollified, if not eliminated, had the Northwest African landing been exploited two days before election. No one knows this, of course, better than President Roosevelt, a consummate politician. Hence it is to his eternal credit that he did not beat the gun by speeding up the landing.

Governor John Bricker, Wendell Willkie, Tom Dewey War or no war politics marches on, and it is not surprising that with such a surprising showing of strength by the Republicans on November 3 that there should be speculation here about 1944.

Disinterested observers think that, despite this GOP upsurge, Franklin D. Roosevelt still has the 1944 election hogtied, assuming he takes it, and they have no doubt he will take the fourth nomination. In which case, they opine, no Republican can whip him.

This is on the theory that it is always easier for the party out of power to make gains in an election where there is no national ticket—where the "Ins" are hurt by every resentment against the administration, and there is no national target for the administration to shoot.

But none of this opinion that FDR is too strong to be beaten stops talk about Republican candidacies. The three men about whom most of the talk centers are Wendell Willkie, Thomas E. Dewey, and Governor John Bricker of Ohio. Many politicians prefer Bricker to either of the other two, on the broad general theory that Bricker has no national weakness, whereas the other two have developed them.

Bricker's victory was outstanding this time, with all his record as governor an open book. Proportionate to the size of the electorate in the two states, Bricker's majority in Ohio was even more spectacular than that of Dewey in New York. This does not always add up to a successful bid for a presidential nomination. If it had Vic Donahey would have been the Democratic presidential nominee in 1928 instead of Alfred E. Smith, for Donahey's runs in Ohio were even more spectacular, proportionately, than those of Smith in New York.

In many respects, Ohio is the "most pivotal" state in the Union. It is not as important in the electoral college as New York or Pennsylvania or Illinois, but it has a big chunk of votes. It used to be a Republican stronghold, but it has been going heavily Democratic since 1932. Bricker has shown he can carry it. Ohio is proud of him, and stands by his record. It is the sort of record calculated to appeal to Republicans and conservatives everywhere.

National Industries Weekly Review

The Nation's Leading Letter by J. E. Jones Washington, D. C.

INDUSTRIAL OUTLET AT NEW PEAK

The Federal Reserve Board has reported: "It is estimated that currently well over 50 per cent of total industrial output is for war purposes. In lines producing durable manufactures, approximately 80 per cent of output now consists of products essential to the war effort."

INDUSTRIAL ACHIEVEMENT

The award of the Army-Navy "E" Flag to the plants of a company manufacturing glass fiber materials Owen-Corning Fiberglass Corporation spotlights an industrial development that has been brought to pass within the last dozen years.

When the First World War was fought there was, in all the world, no such thing as a flexible glass that could be woven into fabrics that could be creased and folded. Such a glass had been dreamed of for centuries, but never achieved.

Nor was it achieved until, in the early 1930's, a group of research workers, trying to fuse powdered colored glass to the sides of milk bottles with a blow torch, found that instead of sticking to the bottles the glass piled up beside them in a fluffy mass of fine flexible fibers.

This was the real beginning of a truly flexible glass—Fiberglass—a glass that can be formed into a fluffy, wool-like blanket, tied in a knot like string, or woven on a loom like cotton, silk or wool.

From this beginning has grown a company employing several thousand men and women, and working 24 hours a day, 7 days a week to produce glass fiber materials urgently required for our war effort. Practically the entire output of the company is now furnished under Army, Navy or Maritime Commission specifications.

Fiberglass heat insulation, in the form of blankets and boards composed of glass fibers, is used to insulate Navy and merchant ships. Tapes, braids and cloths woven of glass fibers are used as electrical insulation on shipboard, in planes, tanks, armored cars, and other Army motorized equipment.

The courage of the men who backed the development of Fiberglass through the darkest days of the depression—who saw its fields of use gradually expand until it became a basic material of peacetime industry—has been more than justified.

It has given us, fighting for our existence on all the seas and continents, a material without which our weapons would be less deadly, our marshalled forces less powerful.

It has shortened the time that must elapse before the Axis goes down in final, crushing defeat.

Mrs. Carrie Norman, Mrs. R. H. Banister and Mrs. Hattie McNutt went to Norfolk and Meadow Grove Friday to attend the funeral of their aunt, Mrs. Mary Hoskinson, who passed away at the home of her daughter in Longmont, Colorado on Tuesday, November 24.

What About Meat Rationing!

Meat Rationing depends largely on the way meat-users respond to Leon Henderson's request for voluntary rationing of the limited supply.

An equitable distribution of meat to everyone is possible if everyone will do everything in their power to process the available supply.

How Lockers Help The Government And You!

Local processing and cold storage of meats will release the packers supplies and transportation facilities for supplying meat for military requirements.

You will benefit by getting your meat more direct, [it will pass thru fewer hands] and consequently more economical.

Use Our Locker Plant Often!

Use our locker plant for frozen foods. Frozen foods make it possible to enjoy fresh meats, fruits and vegetables throughout the year, equalizing periods of oversupply with the season of low supply.

Local processing makes more tasty, more healthful, more appetizing meals.

AAA Notes

Secretary of Agriculture Wickard has announced a five per cent increase in the 1943 AAA acreage allotment for the nation's commercial corn area. The national allotment is 43,423,000 acres.

Nebraska AAA Chairman Abner K. Chestem, explaining the purpose of the corn acreage allotment, said it is to keep food production in balance for wartime needs. He said the allotted acres at normal yields, plus the carry-over from 1942 and previous corn crops, will meet the nation's corn needs and at the same time make land available for such essential war crops as soybeans, flax, hemp, and canning vegetables.

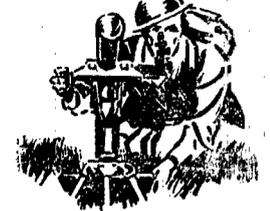

The necessity for increased meat production, particularly pork, is being emphasized thru-out the state by farmer-administrators of AAA. Opening of new fighting fronts brings greater and greater demands for meat from the armed forces.

A few years ago AAA farmers, with great courage and determination, successfully tackled the job of reducing hog numbers, but today we need more pork. Secretary Wickard has asked for a 15% pig increase for 1943 which means a 40% increase for Nebraska. We cannot look for this increase to come from those who are already producing large numbers. The increase must come from those who are not raising any at the present time; aid those living on the outskirts of our town could produce enough pork for their own use.

To reach our goal every farmer must produce hogs with plenty of feed on hand in our country. Hog production can be increased at a profit to the producer.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

The "Stovepipe," as the 60-millimeter trench mortar is commonly known, is used by our infantry for close-in fighting. It fires a 2.4-pound shell at the rate of about 35 a minute.

The mortar fires its projectile in U-shaped arc and for this reason may be successfully camouflaged behind an obstruction. It costs about $300. You and your neighbors, joining together, can buy many of these effective weapons for use of our army. Investing at least ten per cent of your income in War Bonds every payday will do the job. Get on the firing line on the home front. Join the "Ten Percent Club."

The floor price of hogs is stabilized at 90% of parity which at the present time is $9.95—this price is to be stabilized for 2 years after the war.

Radio programs, news broad casts and news from home soon will be heard by all American merchant sailors at sea, the War Shipping Administration announced. An order has been placed for 2,600 newly designed seagoing radio receiving sets which, when in operation, do not radiate signals that would reveal the location of our ships to the enemy.

ISN'T HE WORTH IT?

THIS message is written to you mothers—from your government.

It concerns the most precious thing in all the world to you—your child.

It asks you to help protect that child—from fear, from starvation, from death—the fate that has befallen millions of children under the rule of Nazi and Jap tyrants.

It asks you to urge your husband to join the Payroll Savings Plan—the easy way to buy War Bonds that will furnish the ships and guns and tanks and planes so desperately needed to guard you and yours from the horrors of defeat.

Or, if your husband is already buying War Bonds through the Payroll Savings Plan—it asks you to urge him to buy more, to increase his savings to at least ten per cent of his salary or wages.

Remember. Millions of your brothers, husbands, sons, friends are risking everything. You are asked to risk nothing. War Bonds are the World's Safest Investment.

As you buy them through the Payroll Savings Plan—today, you are doing your part to help protect your child today! And at the same time setting up a savings fund to help bring up, educate, and develop that child—tomorrow.

Talk it over with your husband tonight. And resolve to put at least ten per cent—not 6%, or 7%, or 8%—into War Bonds through the Payroll Savings Plan. Do it for that child of yours. Isn't he worth it?

WHAT YOU SHOULD DO

If you are...

1. Already setting aside 10% of your pay in War Bonds through the Payroll Savings Plan—boost that 10% if you can.
2. Working in a plant where the Plan is installed, but haven't signed up yet—sign up tomorrow.
3. Working in a plant where the Payroll Savings Plan hasn't been installed, talk to your union head, foreman or plant manager—and see if it can't be installed right away. The local bank will be glad to help.

Unable to get in on the Payroll Savings Plan for any reason, go to your local bank or wherever bonds are sold. They will be glad to help you start a Plan of your own.

Weekly Farm Review

Wayne County Extension Agent

MORE HOGS FOR NEBRASKA

As more farmers and organizations boost the expanded hog production program for Nebraska in 1943, interest among Wayne County farmers indicates a desire on the part of everyone to produce pork to the limit next spring. A 40% increase for this state as a whole has been requested to meet wartime food needs.

County Extension Agent Walter R. Harder said this week that the Agricultural Extension Service and the Agricultural Experiment Station of the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture are using their full facilities to help farmers increase production, wherever possible. All of the experimental data from many years of work, along with practical farm experiences gathered, is being made available to farmers. A series of copies of Circular 40, "Manual for Hog Raisers" are available in the county extension office.

The statewide hog production program was formulated several weeks back at the University of Nebraska has the full support of all groups. The first step in getting the expanded increase in hog numbers has been the countywide surveys conducted by county extension agents to determine how many farmers need breeding stock and how many surplus breeding stock for sale.

Extension Livestockmen at the College of Agriculture point out, however, that more pork in 1943 means an increased demand for protein supplements. Faster gains, thrifter pigs and feed saving depends in a large measure on the use of high protein feeds to supplement the farm grown grains.

They also point out that nearly every year as the farrowing season approaches, there is a scramble for bred gilts, and the probability is that this year will see the greatest demand in many years. However, it is hoped that in most counties the demand of them can be met locally.

The Wayne County breeding gilt survey that is being taken now, indicates that the producers reporting to date are increasing the number of litters for 1943 spring farrowing 35.8 per cent over the 1942 spring farrowing.

The average producer is increasing his spring hog production by four litters. The average has four gilts for sale. The average wants to purchase three gilts for spring farrowing.

MORE BEEF NEEDED

Conditions indicate that the nation will need more beef than we can produce and our need for feed grains for other classes of livestock is such that grain should be used economically in feeding beef cattle. Prof. Marvel Baker of the Nebraska University said this week.

For a large proportion of Nebraska producers this means carrying cattle for a somewhat longer period with the use of relatively larger quantities of roughage than usual. Palatable roughage of good quality should be used if gains are to be rapid and economical. Alfalfa hay, good quality prairie hay, silage, and the fodders may all be used.

Maximum consumption should be encouraged and in the case of coarser feeds this means that running them through a cutter or grinder may prove profitable. If available, at least 2 pounds of good quality alfalfa hay should be included in the ration. In addition, from 1/2 to 1 pound of cottonseed, soybean, or linseed oil meal or cake per head daily should be fed in order to secure more rapid and economical gains. If alfalfa hay is not available, 1 pound of ground limestone for each 10 or 12 cattle should be fed each day.

Mahn and Henry Rethwisch is the first Wayne County 4-H club to have its 1942 preliminary enrollment reported to the county extension office. The Strahan Strivers has 13 members. However, they plan to have a much larger enrollment before spring. The present members are: Harold Gathje, Pres.; Melvin Otte, Vice Pres.; Dwaine Rethwisch, Sec.; Edward Mann, news reporter; Lowell Rethwisch, Morr's Backstrom, Gordon Magdanz; Dick Osburn, Lyle Gamble; Gerald, Edwin and Dennis Pospisil and Ronald Mann

Chapter Four

"Who is this man 'Fuddy' bringing with him?" Mrs. Hadley asked as she and Pat and Cecilia were driving to her son's Army camp to have dinner.

"Sergeant Fitzpatrick," smiled Pat happily.

"Fitzpatrick? Isn't that the young man you had at the house the night of the blackout?" her mother asked.

"That's right," Pat admitted.

Stella Hadley, Pat, Cecilia, Mike and Ted were just finishing their coffee in the kitchen near the camp when Mrs. Hadley asked the question that almost led to trouble.

"What did you do before the war, Sergeant?" asked Mike.

"I was in the advertising department of the Washington Chronicle," replied Mike innocently. Mrs. Hadley recoiled.

"Oh, dear!" thought Pat. "Just when everything was so peaceful. 'I'd like to dance,' she said with alacrity to Mike.

They danced past a French door leading outside. They slipped out, into a terrace bathed in moonlight. They walked down the steps into a garden.

Pat looked up at Mike almost expectantly. "What did you want to tell me?" she asked almost eagerly.

"I may be leaving here next week," he said softly.

A shocked "Oh!" was her reply. "They're giving me my transfer to the Aviation Corps. That will send me out West — Phoenix, I guess."

"That's a long way," Pat said.

"Will you do something for me?" Pat looked at him eagerly.

"Yes, this war isn't last forever. Will you — will you wait for me?"

A look of great happiness came into Pat's face. "Of course not," she replied.

"I'm sorry," said Mike, taken aback. "I thought maybe you cared enough."

"I care too darn much," said Pat tenderly. "You marry me before you leave — or take the consequences."

"Was that a proposal?"

"It sounded like it to me."

"Glory be! Come on!"

Pat held him back. "Where are you going?" she asked.

"To ask your mother for your hand in marriage."

"You'd better let me take care of that later," Pat frowned.

"But it's my job."

"Not in this case," Pat smiled. "Don't forget — I proposed to you."

Patricia broke the news to her mother after they had returned home that night.

"Mother, I've fallen in love," she said simply.

"With that soldier?"

"Yes, Mother."

"Has he asked you to marry him?" Stella asked fearfully.

"I asked him. He was being sent out west. I couldn't let him go without knowing how I felt."

"That was very forward and very indiscreet — and I'm glad the young man is leaving. It will give you a chance to think things over."

"I'm going with him," Pat grinned. "We'll get married first, of course."

"Patricia, I have no intention of entrusting your happiness to a man whom none of us know."

"I know him. Ted knows him. Elliott knows him."

"Elliott knows him?"

"Yes, I — I introduced him."

"After what he did to me? You've been carrying on with this young man behind my back, aided and abetted by the man who sent your own brother to what may be his death? You've always sided with him — always side more for him than you do for me."

"That's not true, Mother."

"If he means so much more to you, why don't you go to him? He won't stand in the way of your marrying this — this nobody — but I'm your mother, and I forbid it!"

"All right, Mother," said Patricia with calm decisiveness as she started from the room.

"Patricia, come back here this instant!" Mrs. Hadley commanded. "Where are you going?"

"To Elliott," Patricia said as she closed the door behind her.

Mrs. Hadley summoned Bennett. "Call Dr. Meecham," she instructed weakly as she swayed a bit. She leaned against a table. "And Bennett, when he gets here, phone Miss Patricia — she'll be at Mr.

AT WAR

Margaret turned off the humming vacuum cleaner, and strained the slipcovers of the armchair and the daybed that she had pushed up to go over the rug. Then she stood quite still in the doorway and looked at the small bedroom with its southern exposure. It was as neat and impersonal as a pin. It might never have been lived in. The door stood open on the clean, bare closet. There was not a pennant, not a team picture, not even so much as an old Arithmetic book left to show whose room it had once been.

Margaret stared at the walls, the furniture, and the carpet, slowly, slowly, until she realized that no matter what lodgers with their own trinkets and pictures might occupy it, she would always see it the old way. It was the old way that she saw it now. A pair of hard-worn gray pants lay on the floor where they had been dropped. Three baseball bats were stacked with a fishing rod in the corner. A battered letter with a letter on it lay on the bed. And through the bed, as though it were transparent, Margaret saw another bed, smaller, and with high slatted sides. She put the vacuum cleaner away and went down to her desk in the sitting-room. She took the fifteen dollars rent that the new lodger had paid that morning in advance for the room, she added to it from her purse, three dollars and seventy-five cents more. Then she drew out a sheet of paper and began to write on it, slowly, gravely.

"To buy a bond to help train a young man to replace Don, Jr.— killed on June 6th in the Battle of Midway."
