

MARTIN HERMAN'S WILL

A STORY OF CITY LIFE

By MRS. ALICE H. ROCHFORD

It was a very quiet day in the city, and the streets were empty. The sun was shining brightly, and the birds were singing in the trees. The people were going about their business, and the city was in a state of peace and order.

Martin Herman was a man of many talents. He was a successful businessman, and he had made a fortune for himself. He was also a very kind and generous man, and he had done much good for the city.

One day, Martin Herman was sitting in his study, and he was looking at a picture on the wall. The picture was of a woman, and it was a very beautiful picture. Martin Herman had known the woman for many years, and he had loved her very much.

As he looked at the picture, Martin Herman's thoughts went back to the days when he and the woman were young. They had been in love, and they had planned to marry each other. But then, something happened, and the woman died.

Martin Herman had never forgotten the woman, and he had kept the picture of her in his study for many years. He had often thought about her, and he had wondered what she would be like now.

One day, Martin Herman was sitting in his study, and he was looking at the picture. He was thinking about the woman, and he was wondering what she would be like now. He was thinking about the days when they were young, and he was thinking about the love that they had shared.

As he thought about the woman, Martin Herman's face grew pale. He was feeling a great deal of pain, and he was feeling a great deal of sorrow. He was feeling a great deal of love, and he was feeling a great deal of longing.

Martin Herman was a man of many talents, and he had made a fortune for himself. He was also a very kind and generous man, and he had done much good for the city. But now, he was feeling a great deal of pain, and he was feeling a great deal of sorrow.
