Notes From Our Neighboring Towns

Rev. Drals had business in Wayne yesterday.—Winside Tribune.

The Bloomfield high school girls have organized a basket ball team.

Homer Skeen and wife are now keeping house at 1503 Nebraska street, where they are "at home" to their friends.—North Nebraska Eagle.

W. J. Fritts comes forward with a whooper apple story. On Saturday he gathered 44 bushels of Plum Cider apples off a single tree and he says more than six bushels had been gathered before making over 50 bushels from one tree.—Lyons Mirror.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Todenhof of Wayne visited friends here Wednesday and Thursday. Mrs. J. B. Lane and daughter, Miss Elsie, went to Wayne Tuesday to visit Samuel Lane and family, and Ray, who is attending the college.—Wisner Chronicle.

Miss Jennie Bayer, of Wayne visited with the Hancock family over Sunday. E. Tucker was down from Wayne to spend Sunday with his parents. John Wachter and Neal Nye returned Friday, from their tour of California and Washington.—Pender New Era.

The new editor of the Jackson Critter also runs a hotel, is the undertaker for the locality and conducts a livery stable. He boards 'em, burles em, prints the births, deaths and marriages. The community ought to im-mortalize him.—Tekamah Journal.

Newspaper changes have been numerous in Dixon county this week. The Concord Call has suspended publication and its editor, Clyde Eeker and K. M. Delay have purchased the Allen News of E. E. Shackleford, and Elmer Kingsburg has purchased the Ponca Leader of Mrs. Ellen Payne.—Emerson Enterprise.

C. J. Savidge, of Wayne, Neb., has just completed a contract for digging two wells at the old Milwaukee shops. He has contracted to dig wells that would furnish 300,000 gallons per day. His wells so far exceed the contract that they furnish 648,000 gallons per day. He has just contracted for three more new wells at the new shops.—Sioux City Journal.

Wayne's street fair came to a close last Saturday night after three days of fun and frolic. The first two days the crowds in attendance were not large owing perhaps to the fact that the farmers were very busy threshing, but Saturday the streets were jammed, the estimated number present being 3,000. Several good attractions were given by the Collins Carnival company, among them being the high dive, the bicycle rider, balloon ascension, etc. Reed's band of Sioux City furnished excellent music and taking everything considered Wayne's carnival was a decided success.—Wakefield Republican.

Work on the cold gas plant at Norfolk has been commenced and the same will be in running operation by November 1st. Two cars of piping have been received, a temporary tank stands on the track ready for use, a handsome brick, 24x60 feet with large plate glass front will be erected and a contract has been let for 13 miles of ditching for the gas mains. The company will install 150 gas ranges at once for cooking and place 40 or 50 lamps on the street. E. A. Lundberg was over from Wayne on business Monday and Tuesday.—Pierce Call.

A very agreeable gathering took place last Sunday at the old court house in Wayne county, now the residence of W. P. Agler, in a re-union of the Agler family, their children and their children's children, their being present three generations to the number of thirty-five who partook of a sumptuous dinner prepared by Mrs. Wm. P. Agler. They represented a period of thirty years in the history of Wayne county. The old settler of 1869 and the new one of 1902. Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Merrill and daughter of Carroll visited with Banker Levi Kimball and family on Sunday. Jas. Dunlap, of Vermillion, S. D. visited them over Sunday night while enroute home from the Black Hills. Mr. and Mrs. Dr. Blair and Mr. and Mrs. Damon of Wayne were also the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Kimball on Sunday.—Wakefield Republican.

FATALITIES IN FIRES

FOREST CONFLAGRATIONS GREAT SAD HAVOC.

Many Are Known to be Dead—Fifteen People Rescued Without Clothing, Except Gummy Sacks—Fine Timber Destroyed.

Kulnani, Wash: News reached here late Saturday night that the forest fire in the Lewis River district have wrought sad havoc. Ten are known to be dead and fifteen people were rescued without clothing, except gummy sacks. Five logging camps burned out completely. Many families have lost everything.

The worst of the fire is on Lewis River, about twelve miles above Woodland. The country is well settled, and there are doubtless other casualties not yet reported.

The fire has spread from Lewis River north to the Kalamia River, and fifty sections of the finest timber on the coast are destroyed. It is impossible yet to give any estimate of the amount of the damage done to property.

Oak Point, a village twenty miles below here on the Columbia River, is totally destroyed.

A great fire is also raging along the Coquiam River in the northern part of the country. Everything that comes in its path has been consumed. Many logging camps have been destroyed. Two men from Barr's camp are reported missing. People are panic stricken, and many are almost crazed with grief over the loss of property.

Coville County thought it was going to escape until Sunday, when the reports came thick and fast, each worse than the last. Five people are dead and several missing, with only partial reports from the district.

A courier just arrived from Lewis River states that there are only two houses left standing on Lewis River from Trails to the head of the river, a distance of thirty miles, and that not more than fifteen people have perished.

Portland, Ore.: Drivers from their homes into the darkness of the night by a raging forest fire which swept everything before it from Ariel, Coville County, Washington, to the foot of Mt. St. Helena, a distance of twenty five miles, eleven people are dead, four are missing and over 200 people have been left homeless, many not with even clothes enough to cover their nakedness.

ATTEMPTED LYNNING.

Mob Assaults Jail at Butler, Pa., & Get at a Ravisher.

Butler, Pa.: A mob of 2,000 at midnight Saturday night battered down the jail door here, bent on lynching Jerry Reacht, who assaulted the 7-year-old daughter of John H. Weaver.

The child, covered with blood, was crying "Mamma, Mamma," when rescued from the jail was nurse Sheriff Hoon and a number of deputies and policemen fired over the heads of the mob. The mob was repulsed with great difficulty, after wounding several officers with sticks and stones. One member of the mob was shot in the leg. At 12:10 another mob was made on the jail by a small crowd of rioters, who were again forced to retreat.

POISON KILLS COTTON PICKERS

Three Women and Four Men Inhale Dnat While at Work and Perish.

Paris, Tex.: A report has been received here of a wholesale poisoning in the forks of the Red River and the Kintia, Indian Territory. A farmer recently applied para green to his cotton in his field, where the women were doing damage. There had been little rain since the para green was applied. Three or four days ago seven cotton pickers, four men and three women, went to work in the patch where the poison had been applied. Late in the evening they became sick, and during the night all of them died. The deaths were said to have been caused by inhaling the dust from the poison.

DESTRUCTIVE STORMS.

Considerable Damage Done in Various Parts of Germany.

Berlin: Destructive storms raged in many parts of Germany Saturday and Sunday the temperature sank to zero and a hurricane-like wind uprooted houses and injured a large number of people. The damage is estimated at 1,000,000 marks.

A very severe northwest storm visited the cities on the North Sea.

Considerable damage was done to bathing establishments on the Elbe and a number of low lying houses were partially wrecked.

Farmhouse is Blown Up.

Sterling, Ill.: The farm residence of Edward Bassler, east of Dixon, was blown to atoms at an early hour Saturday morning by dynamite. No one was in the house. Mr. Bassler says he does not believe he has any enemy who could have committed the deed. The explosion was heard for several miles.

Fatal Accident at Bedford, Ind.

Bedford, Ind.: Master Mechanic John S. Williams was killed by a falling crane at the Norton Road storeyards Saturday. Engineer James Pearl was badly injured.

Indiana Bank Robbers Felled.

Valparaiso, Ind.: Three robbers made an attempt to rob the Hebron bank, at Hebron, early Saturday morning. The robbery was foiled by dynamite and the robbers were frightened away by two women returning from a dance.

Accused of Beating Patient.

Tonka, Kan.: County Attorney Nicholas Saturday caused the arrest of Chas. Brubshaw, an attendant at the Bedwell private asylum, on the charge of beating Jacob O. Rhymerman, aged 93, a patient, so seriously that he cannot live.

Wyoming Jury Law Upheld.

Cheyenne, Wyo.: The state supreme court Saturday announced a decision sustaining the constitutionality of the jury law of 1893. The decision is important, as it affects fifty criminal cases now awaiting trial and criminal cases decided since the law was passed.

Santiago Streets Now Fifthly.

Santiago, Cuba: The sanitary employees have struck work, the streets are not swept, and no rubbish has been moved for two days. The city is in a filthy condition. The cause of the strike is that the men have not been paid for two months.

TRAGEDY IN DAKOTA.

J. H. Harrington Murders Former Wife and Suicide.

Sioux Falls, S. D.: One of the worst tragedies in the history of Sioux Falls was enacted on one of the principal business streets Friday night, when J. P. Harrington, a local sign painter, shot and almost instantly killed Inez Best, his divorced wife, and then fired a bullet into his own head, dying instantly.

The couple were married seven years ago, and after living together happily about two years, she left him and procured a divorce on the grounds of drunkenness and cruelty. Since that time Harrington has persistently attempted to induce her to remarry and again live with him. These efforts were unsuccessful, and terminated in the tragedy. So annoying became his importunities that the woman evaded him, residing in a very difficult spot for him to see her.

In order to meet her and commit the crime, which evidently had been carefully planned, he Friday evening sent her by messenger boy a purported telegram, which read:

"Inez, meet me at the corner by the hotel's just opposite the court house, as I am going to Salt Lake at 9:30 in the morning. Meet me at 9 o'clock."

"J. P. Harrington."

She met him as requested, and at just 9:15 o'clock their dead bodies were lying on the sidewalk within 200 or 300 feet of the county court house.

Scores of people were on the streets at the time. Sheriff Crooks was only a short distance away when the first shot was fired, but before he could reach the scene the object of the murder and his suicide had been accomplished.

The woman was shot three times, in the shoulder, heart and head. After the first shot was fired she attempted to push the murderer off the sidewalk.

A TERRIBLE TRAGEDY.

Double Murder on Farm Near Pierce, Neb., by a Divorced Husband.

Pierce, Neb.: A most dastardly double murder was committed Thursday night at the farm of Albert Breyer in Slough precinct, east of Pierce.

Gottlieb Neigenfeld, nursing the wrath that had been accumulating ever since his wife pronounced a divorce from him about a year ago, suddenly appeared in the community where he had not been seen since his wife was separated from him, shot and killed his former wife and her father, attempted to rape his former wife's sister and wounded his former wife's mother. He then made good his escape.

Albert Breyer, Mrs. Neigenfeld's father, with whom she was making her home, was shot in the back and barely survived the night. Mrs. Neigenfeld was instantly killed. Mrs. Breyer rushed in to shield her husband from the mad man, and received a bullet in her right shoulder. The wound was not serious, however.

Sultan Furious Over Presence of Foreign Warships.

Constantinople: Turkey's chronic nervousness with regard to the intentions of the powers is aggravated at present by the approaching demonstrations of unusually large foreign fleets in Ottoman waters. The sultan refuses to be comforted by the assurance that these visits are of a friendly character.

Around the island of Lemnos lies a British fleet of five warships, which, before the end of the month, will be increased to ninety-seven vessels, for the purpose of taking part in the annual Mediterranean maneuvers. No such gathering of British men of war has been in the Mediterranean since the Crimean war.

MOURNED AS DEAD 17 YEARS.

Edward Bassler, Supposed to Have Been Buried, Returns Home.

Sterling, Ill.: Edward Bassler, returned to his home at Ashton Friday after an absence of nearly twenty years. Seventeen years ago his family received word that he was dead. A body supposed to be his was shipped from Butte, Mont., and buried after an appropriate service. When he appeared Friday at his old home he had some difficulty in proving his identity.

Botha is Discouraged.

Amsterdam: Gen. Botha, speaking again Thursday here, said: "We have lost our independence and have endeavored to obtain compensation from the new government for our burnt farms. We have every reason to believe no compensation will be forthcoming. Help is absolutely necessary to prevent the ruin of thousands."

Corner Stone Sent by Express.

Barre, Vt.: A novelty in the way of an express shipment was shipped from Barre Friday morning. It was a block of granite weighing 330 pounds, and was to be delivered in Hammond, Ind. The charges on it were $110.

The Frost in Nebraska.

Lincoln, Neb.: A frost all over Nebraska Friday night, heavy in places, killed tender vegetation and did some damage to corn, estimated at 15 per cent. Ice formed at Kearney, and late garden truck was killed.

$50,000 Fire at Ottawa, Kan.

Ottawa, Kan.: The new building at Ottawa University burned Wednesday morning. The loss is $50,000.

To License All Drinkers.

New York: A proposition has been introduced by the prohibition party of Cortland, N. Y., which demands that every man who drinks intoxicating beverages shall take out a license costing not less than $3 a year. Every six months the names of the license holders are to be published in the official newspapers of the county.

Suspect Murderer.

Kokomo, Ind.: Hyron Smith, a clothier in this city, son of Health Officer R. H. Smith, was found dying on the streets Thursday morning with a wound on the back of his head. He died without recovering consciousness. There are indications of foul play.

Women Do Work of Men.

Utica, Mich.: The women of Utica have asserted themselves after waiting in vain for the men to act, built a road of sidewalk, and will turn their attention to street cleaning.

Girl Falls Down Light Shaft.

Chicago: A fall through a skylight and fire stairs down a shaft at Cottage Grove Avenue Thursday resulted in severe injury to 13-year-old Nellie Spencer, daughter of Mrs. Mary Spencer, 3531 Cottage Grove Avenue. The girl sustained a broken arm and jaw and was severely bruised.

Favor Big Timber Reserve.

Washington, D. C.: The interior department has received a petition from people in Fremont County, Wyo., asking that 500,000 acres of land lying on the continental divide southwest of Lander be made a forest reservation.

LABOR TROUBLES IN SPAIN.

Request that Martial Law be Made Strict in Barcelona.

According to dispatches from Barcelona, Spain, the local authorities have requested the ministry of the interior to maintain martial law on account of the attitude of the strikers.

Private advices received in London report the situation at Barcelona as acute, in consequence of the determination of the authorities to suppress what is described as a general labor movement. In addition to the minor strikes the railroad workers are protesting against their long hours and setting forth other grievances, and the movement threatens to result in a general cessation of work at any moment on all the Spanish railroads.

CIGARETTE SMOKER JAILED.

Editor in a North Carolina Town Violates New Ordinance.

Newport News, Va.: W. O. Saunders, editor of the local paper, has been arrested and sent to prison for smoking cigarettes within the corporate limits of Elizabeth City, N. C., a town of 5,000 inhabitants.

The board of aldermen recently passed an ordinance making it an offense subject to a fine for any minor to smoke cigarettes upon the streets. Editor Saunders, who is a minor, violated the ordinance. When arrested he admitted his guilt and was fined $50. He refused to pay or give bonds and was sent to jail. He has appealed his case to the supreme court.

ROW WITH DEPUTIES.

Members of a Militia Company in Trouble Near Shenandoah.

Shenandoah, Pa.: Several members of Company K, 81st Regiment, got into a row with the deputies at Indian Ridge colliery Thursday, and as a result, on orders from Capt. Duffy, several of the soldiers were placed in the guard house.

While the soldiers were passing the stockade that evening it is said they called the deputies hoboes and other names, and several of the latter followed them to camp and attempted to arrest them. At this point the company got into a row with the deputies and chased them back to the colliery. Nearly all the members of Company K are strikers.

TEXAS RANGERS AMBUSHED.

Three Mounted Police of Plains Fired Upon, One Instantly Killed.

Brownsville, Tex.: While on their way to camp Wednesday night three Texas rangers were waylaid by parties in ambush, supposed to be friends of a man recently killed by the rangers while being arrested on a charge of cattle stealing. Ranger Gohank was instantly killed. Ranger Taylor was slightly wounded, and Ranger Miller's horse was shot from under him.

Condition of Tecumseh Bank is as Bad as Reported.

A Lincoln special says: The report of Bank Examiner W. D. Hartwell on the condition of the Chamberlain Banking house at Tecumseh confirms the reports that Chamberlain had virtually wrecked the bank before leaving. It is found upon investigation that notes and bills discounted amount to $200,000, but notes to the amount of $12,000 in excess of those shown by the books, are also in the bank. The amount due all depositors, including banks, is $71,617. Of this latter amount $62,229 is shown as deposits purely, but includes the money placed to the credit of the branch banks in Wyo. and Cal.

THROWS MAN FROM TRAIN.

A Hemingford special says: William K. Burns, a union boiler maker employed at Cheyenne until the strike, was thrown from a box car while the train was running Tuesday night near North Platte. Burns had an arm and two ribs broken. His head was badly bruised. His injuries are serious but not fatal. The police are trying to get to Chadron. He had 50 cents when examined. The section men brought him to town.

Smallpox at Shelton.

A Shelton special says: Considerable excitement was created here Tuesday morning by the announcement that smallpox had again made its appearance in the town, four members of the family of L. R. Royce having broken out with the disease. The board of health has taken every precaution to guard against its spread. As some of the children of this family were at school, the schools were closed Thursday and the rooms are being thoroughly disinfected.

Farmers Help Sick Man.

A Humboldt special says: Richard Tushard, the well known farmer of this place who is recovering from a severe attack of lockjaw, was the beneficiary in a most Christian-like act Tuesday. He has been bedfast for many weeks and as a consequence his work has been somewhat neglected. Knowing the conditions, about sixteen of his neighbors brought teams and plows and did his fall plowing for him.

Hahn Declines to Die.

Fred Hahn, the young man who ran an oil can against two inches into his head and broke his brain during a boxing Saturday, is rapidly improving and will fully recover. For two days after he was taken to the hospital the physicians considered his case hopeless and his continued improvement has been a surprise to them. Though the brain was penetrated and bruised his mental condition appears now to be in no wise injured.

Two Years for Fremont Offense.

In the district court at Fremont Tuesday afternoon Judge Grimis presiding, Carl Hauson pleaded guilty to the charge of breaking and entering Ralph Beverage's saloon, and was given two years in the penitentiary.

Accident at Creighton.

A Creighton special says: A bus belonging to Nihart Bros. was upset on the road to the fair grounds Saturday afternoon with a load of passengers and one person was injured, probably fatally, and three others seriously.

Cowboy Killed by Train.

Amos Goodwin, a cowboy of considerable reputation as a rough rider, was run over and killed by freight train No. 26 near Merriam Thursday. His brother was killed one year ago by being thrown from a horse.

Meets with Peculiar Accident.

A young man visiting with his uncle, Alex, an Urkanen of the Jamison Hotel, Geneva, was seriously injured Tuesday evening by accidentally severing the vein in his wrist with a pocketknife while whittling. He came near bleeding to death before a surgeon could reach him.

Dies from Accidental Poison.

Mrs. Ed Morrison, wife of Ed Morrison, cashier of the Maverick Hotel at Garden, died from the effects of poison from eating vegetables last spring. The wife in the prime of life, died last night, when this accident occurred.

STATE OF NEBRASKA

NEWS OF THE WEEK IN A CONDENSED FORM.

Freight Trains Come Together—Negro Tramp Crushed to Death—Others Are Injured—Doubt as to Blame for the Accident.

A Broken Bow special says: A serious railroad wreck occurred here about 6 o'clock Sunday between passenger train No. 41 and freight train No. 47. A colored man who was riding between the tender on the passenger train engine and the baggage car, was instantly killed. His body was crushed and his foot cut off. In a book found in his grip was the name of "Preston H. Higgins, born October, 1860."

Coroner Robinson empaneled a jury Sunday evening, but deferred an investigation until the train crews can be present. The freeman of No. 47, Charles Tubbs, formerly of Arnold, this county, was severely scalded, but will live. Several others were bruised and cut with glass. Among the number was Mrs. J. W. Ramp of Galesburg, Ill., and Mrs. Julia Ramp of Warrensburg, Miss. The former was hurt in the back of the head and left side and for a time was rendered unconscious, but was taken to the Commercial hotel, where her father, G. B. Biggs, formerly of this county, is staying. Her injuries are not serious.

Just upon which crew the blame will rest is a question. It is reported that No. 41 was not due for nine minutes and that had it not been running ahead of time No. 47 would have had its cars on the sidetrack. It is claimed on the other hand that the rules of the company permit switching on the main line within ten minutes of the arrival of an incoming train. The engine of No. 47 was coupled onto the end of the cars it had in tow, taking them back to run on the side track with a car of cattle coupled on in the rear. The passengers were thrown from the cars, and bills discounted amount to $200,000, but notes to the amount of $12,000 in excess of those shown by the books, are also in the bank. The amount due all depositors, including banks, is $71,617. Of this latter amount $62,229 is shown as deposits purely, but includes the money placed to the credit of the branch banks in Wyo. and Cal.

WRECK IN WAYNE COUNTY.

Five Freight Cars Piled Up as Result of Axi's Breaking.

A Wayne special says: A wreck occurred on the Bloomfield line about two miles east of Wayne at 3:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon, caused by the breaking of an axle at the rear of a freight car near the center of the train, and as a result five freight cars were demolished and piled up in a heap and a carload of wheat scattered for rods around and a carload of four damaged.

The front passenger and baggage cars were thrown from the track, also the baggage car, and the passenger coach, but fortunately no persons were injured. A wrecking crew went to the scene of the accident to clear away the debris.

INDIANS WORK ON RAILROADS.

Gang of Italian Shovelers' Places Filled with Sioux Bucks.

A Lincoln special says: The Northwestern Railroad Company is experimenting with Sioux Indians as laborers on the Blenheim line in northwestern Nebraska. The method differs only in that able to get laborers for the road around Long Pine and Gordon. A gang of Italian men engaged in coal shoveling at Long Pine became dissatisfied and threatened to quit. The company engaged a number of Sioux, discharged the Italians, and put the red men to work. They have brought their spades and papposes to the camp, and proved so satisfactory the problem seems to be solved.

TRAMP'S BODY SEVERED.

Unfortunately Killed by a Train at Emerson.

An Emerson special says: An unknown man was killed here Thursday by a freight train. While attempting to board the train in motion he fell under the wheels and was crushed over him, completely severing his body in two. There was nothing in his clothing by which he could be identified, but a companion tramp said he was Joe Higgins of Kansas City.

Sullivan Gets His Foot in It.

Tade Sullivan, a prominent farmer living near Dodge, had a leg taken off just below the knee by a threshing machine. Sullivan was working on the stack and noticed a bundle of oats on the top of the separator that was likely to clog up the machine. He got on to the separator and stepped over toward the oats to remove them, when in some way his leg slipped into the machinery nearly up to the knee.

Young Thieves Steal Carpet.

A Plattsmouth special says: A couple of youthful thieves stole two carpets from Robert G. Roberts on Wednesday night. Charles Vogtman reported to the police that someone had stolen a suit of clothes from his residence and he suspected that it was his son Adolph, 18 years of age, who recently returned from the reform school at Kearney.

Looks for Trouble and Finds it.

A Nebraska City special says: Clifton Grandstaff, a young man with a tendency to make trouble, went into the tenderloin district Tuesday night and tried to seduce some of the women there. He was arrested and taken before Judge Hill Wednesday and was bound over to the district court in the sum of $100.

Is to Work Bogus Check Game.

A stranger giving his name as J. B. Worth and claiming to hail from Richmond, Va., attempted to get a bogus check for $100 cashed at the Paddock Hotel at Beatrice, Tuesday, but his game wouldn't work. He left town before the proprietors were aware of his presence in the city.

Gage County Soldiers' Monument.

Stone for the completion of the Gage County soldiers' monument has arrived at Beatrice and the work of completing the monument will be pushed as rapidly as possible.

Wife-Beater is Fined.

W. L. Anderson was arrested and brought before the county judge at Papillion Tuesday morning for wife beating and sentenced to pay a fine of $15 and was paroled on his good behavior.

Fine Rain at Beatrice.

A Beatrice special says: A fine rain visited this section Thursday afternoon. It is estimated that the rainfall amounted to nearly half an inch.

No Damage from Frost.

The first frost of the season appeared at Leitchville Tuesday. It is considered heavy, although it is thought that no damage was done to the corn.

Crab at Mill for Beatrice.

A new industry for Beatrice in the shape of a cereal mill is to be established here by E. C. Miller. The plant will be erected in Glenview, a suburb.

Large Apple Crop in Polk.

An Osceola special says: There will be no one in Polk that will have to go hungry for apples this year, for there will be the largest crop that has ever been grown in the county. They are already known as "Mullers", and there are so many of them. They are selling for 40 cents a bushel in the orchard.

Corn Ripens Slowly.

The corn crop in the vicinity of Tekamah is ripening very slowly because of the cool weather. No frost has yet come to do damage yet.

Branch Banks Open Up.

A Tecumseh special says: The branch banks of the Chamberlain bank of this city opened for business Monday morning. The depositors can draw out their money in full if they want it. Later an effort will be made to reorganize the institutions. L. A. Graf is president of the bank at Graf and C. C. Reed of the one at Vista.

Retally Injured by Mail.

By falling from a hay mow Maj. J. W. Williams, a prominent resident of Beatrice, sustained three fractured ribs and several injuries which may result fatally.

ACCIDENT BLOCKS THE TRACK

Derailed Car Stops Traffic for a Time Through Plattsmouth Cut.

A Plattsmouth special says: An accident occurred in the Big cut a little this side of the Plattsmouth bridge at a short time before midnight Wednesday night which blocked the main line and caused a suspension of traffic for seven hours. As the first section of train No. 76, loaded with stock from the Wyoming division bound for Chicago, was going through the cut a pair of wheels under about the center of the way car, jumped the track and ran along the ties for several hundred feet, when they struck a switch.

Both sets of trucks then jumped to the switch track, dragging the next car with them, as well as the first pair of trucks on the car following. They ran along for a little distance breaking one rail of the siding and tearing up the track for quite a distance, until finally they plunged into the sides of the cut, damaging two of the cars, but not injuring the cattle.

WRECK IN WAYNE COUNTY.

Five Freight Cars Piled Up as Result of Axi's Breaking.

A Wayne special says: A wreck occurred on the Bloomfield line about two miles east of Wayne at 3:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon, caused by the breaking of an axle at the rear of a freight car near the center of the train, and as a result five freight cars were demolished and piled up in a heap and a carload of wheat scattered for rods around and a carload of four damaged.

The front passenger and baggage cars were thrown from the track, also the baggage car, and the passenger coach, but fortunately no persons were injured. A wrecking crew went to the scene of the accident to clear away the debris.

INDIANS WORK ON RAILROADS.

Gang of Italian Shovelers' Places Filled with Sioux Bucks.

A Lincoln special says: The Northwestern Railroad Company is experimenting with Sioux Indians as laborers on the Blenheim line in northwestern Nebraska. The method differs only in that able to get laborers for the road around Long Pine and Gordon. A gang of Italian men engaged in coal shoveling at Long Pine became dissatisfied and threatened to quit. The company engaged a number of Sioux, discharged the Italians, and put the red men to work. They have brought their spades and papposes to the camp, and proved so satisfactory the problem seems to be solved.

TRAMP'S BODY SEVERED.

Unfortunately Killed by a Train at Emerson.

An Emerson special says: An unknown man was killed here Thursday by a freight train. While attempting to board the train in motion he fell under the wheels and was crushed over him, completely severing his body in two. There was nothing in his clothing by which he could be identified, but a companion tramp said he was Joe Higgins of Kansas City.

Sullivan Gets His Foot in It.

Tade Sullivan, a prominent farmer living near Dodge, had a leg taken off just below the knee by a threshing machine. Sullivan was working on the stack and noticed a bundle of oats on the top of the separator that was likely to clog up the machine. He got on to the separator and stepped over toward the oats to remove them, when in some way his leg slipped into the machinery nearly up to the knee.

Young Thieves Steal Carpet.

A Plattsmouth special says: A couple of youthful thieves stole two carpets from Robert G. Roberts on Wednesday night. Charles Vogtman reported to the police that someone had stolen a suit of clothes from his residence and he suspected that it was his son Adolph, 18 years of age, who recently returned from the reform school at Kearney.

Looks for Trouble and Finds it.

A Nebraska City special says: Clifton Grandstaff, a young man with a tendency to make trouble, went into the tenderloin district Tuesday night and tried to seduce some of the women there. He was arrested and taken before Judge Hill Wednesday and was bound over to the district court in the sum of $100.

Is to Work Bogus Check Game.

A stranger giving his name as J. B. Worth and claiming to hail from Richmond, Va., attempted to get a bogus check for $100 cashed at the Paddock Hotel at Beatrice, Tuesday, but his game wouldn't work. He left town before the proprietors were aware of his presence in the city.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP

Formal announcement of the terms which President Roosevelt would offer for the construction of a cable between the United States and the insular possessions in the Pacific ocean was made at Oyster Bay. The only practicable offer to construct this cable had been made by the Commercial Cable Company, headed by the late John W. Mackay. The proposed cable company must keep free from foreign alliances or monopolistic combinations, and tenderly American territory, the government to have the right of preference at any time or to assume full control in time of war. Employees must be American citizens and cable rates reasonable and at least of not less than twenty-five words a minute to Manila.

The cable company announced that its company was not satisfied with the conditions proposed by the President and would make a counter proposal. Compensation from the government will be asked in war time.

The part which special employees are to be permitted to take in a political campaign is outlined in the following conditions which Acting Postmaster General Wayne has addressed to a postmaster who sent a letter of inquiry: "In reply to your letter, you are informed that you are not prohibited from joining a political club, nor from making voluntary financial contributions to any political campaign or building, nor from acting as a delegate to a county, State or congressional convention. You should not, however, serve as chairman of a State or county committee, nor take part in conducting a political convention, nor make yourself unduly prominent in local political matters."

The annual report of the auditor of the Federal Department shows that the appropriations for army purposes for the year ending June 30, 1912, amounted to $1,225,000,000, as follows: Six years of the Army and Navy war of 1912, $892,300,000; inclosed, $50,707,100; widow, $28,150,687; widows, $11,220,941; dependent relatives, $2,609,016; hospital expenses, $1,230,000; army corps, $9,000,000. The department also shows that the average of the past year was $1,225,000,000, as follows: Total $1,225,000,000; widow, $11,220,941; dependent relatives, $2,609,016; hospital expenses, $1,230,000.

The United States government has decided to increase the number of Siberian reindeer in Alaska to 15,000 head. The Rev. Sheldon Jackson, educational agent in Alaska, made no objection to the plan in this line in 1912, and since that time a number of importations have been made with great success. Laplanders have been imported to care for the animals at regular herding stations, and, notwithstanding many difficulties and some losses, the animals have multiplied fast and become indispensable as beasts of burden.

It is reported that the Grand Army of the Republic will have permanent headquarters at Washington, and that the organization is to be put on a business instead of a social basis. Owing to the advanced age of members, the spectacular features of the party activities will be abandoned, and the social object of the organization will be the main object of the program.

The water supply in the United States is being investigated by the Army Department at Amesbury. The first of four systems tested resulted in the successful exchange of signals with Washington, thirty-five miles distant. Four systems, not including Morse code, will be tested on land and at sea and the best system will be adopted by the department.

The attention of President Roosevelt and the Treasury Department has been called to the fact that the revenue from the importation of china and pottery from abroad, and a strict investigation is under way. The losses to the treasury are said to be from $1,000,000 to $1,500,000 a year.

Patents have been granted to Prof. Fessenden of the weather bureau on a new form of a wireless telegraph apparatus. It is understood that Prof. Fessenden has a complete working system, and will begin at once the operation of actual business. His experiments have been conducted at Manassas, N. C.

Pension Commissioner Wares has evolved a plan for helping G. A. R. men by means of a life pension in the Pension building during the coming month. Each soldier who attends is to receive a "status card," on which he may inscribe an arbitrary reward, so that he may determine whether he is entitled to a new or increased pension.

The War Department has ordered the return to Manila of all the prisoners in Guam who have taken the oath of allegiance to the United States. They will be released under the terms of the President's amnesty proclamation of July 4.

If no other good comes of the joint maneuvers of the army and many navy vessels in the coast defense system of the United States will be discovered in time of peace when they can be none-died.

Worthless money has been circulated in Morrilton, N. Y., and vicinity, probably from old bank plates. As the notes are not counterfeits of any United States notes, the makers can be punished only for fraud under the State law.

Pending Cuba's effort to join the Universal Postal convention by appeal to the Swiss Federal Council, the United States has agreed to continue the temporary agreement for the exchange of money orders with Cuba.

In a Washington interview, Chairman Cannon of the appropriation committee said that the coast defense system of the United States will be discovered in time of peace when they can be none-died.

WEEKLY SUMMARY OF CROPS

Frosts, Though General in Northern Districts, Do But Slight Harm.

Following is the Agricultural Department's weekly summary of crop conditions:

Although the week was cool in the central valleys and lake region, with more than the average rainfall in portions of the upper Mississippi valley, maturing crops have made generally favorable though not rapid advancement. The greater part of Texas, in which severe drought prevailed at the close of the previous week, has received abundant rainfall, and drought conditions in the middle Atlantic coast districts also have been largely relieved, but the interior of the middle Atlantic States, Ohio valley and portions of the lower lake region and south Atlantic States continue to need rain. Light to heavy frosts were very general in the northern districts, but in the Atlantic States from the 2d to the 6th, with but slight injury. Rain is much needed in Washington and Oregon, but otherwise the general conditions on the Pacific coast were favorable.

Notwithstanding the prevalence of low temperatures throughout the corn belt and copious rainfalls in portions of the Mississippi valley, the corn crop has made very satisfactory advancement toward maturity and wholly escaped injury in the States eastward of the Mississippi river from frosts occurring on the 4th and 5th, with but slight injury in the States to the westward. The bulk of the corn crop in Missouri and Kansas and much of the early planting in Nebraska and the States of the Ohio valley is now safe. In Iowa, where corn has ripened very slowly, two-thirds of the crop probably will be safe by Sept. 20 and the rest will require ten days longer.

The thrashing of spring wheat, although further retarded, has made more favorable progress than in the previous week.

Frost and a large part of the central and eastern districts of the cotton belt have received abundant rainfall during the past week, but it is doubtful whether the beneficial effects of these rains to late cotton will offset the injury done to the open staple.

In the States of the lower lake region the reports respecting apples are favorable. In Michigan, New York and New England are variable, indicating a very light crop in some sections, with plentiful yields in others. In the Ohio valley and most of the middle Atlantic States the outlook continues very poor.

Plowing for fall seeding has made more favorable advancement in the Southern States and Missouri valley, but in the middle Atlantic States and the lower lake region the soil is too dry for this work.

Late tobacco has experienced a general improvement in the middle Atlantic States and Ohio valley and cutting and bonding have progressed under favorable conditions in all tobacco States.

PLEAS OF BOERS FAIL

Demands of Burgers Refused by England.

A British parliamentary paper gives a full report of the recent conference between the colonial secretary, Joseph Chamberlain, and the Boer generals, Botha, De Wet and Delany. As a result the Boers gained practically nothing. Prior to agreeing to the interview which the Boers asked for Aug. 23, the colonial secretary requested a list of the subjects which it was desired to discuss and the generals forwarded a list of subjects, including the following:

Complete amnesty for the Boers, including pardon to all their widows and orphans and maimed burghers.

Equal rights for the English and Dutch languages in the schools and courts.

The conference with the British is expected to longest, complying with the terms of surrender, including the right to return to South Africa.

Immediate release of all prisoners of war.

Retention of the right of the late South African republics of compensation for their loss of office.

Compensation for all losses occasioned by the British troops by the use, removal, burning of property by other means of all private property.

Restatement of the burghers in the ownership of their farms confiscated or sold under the proclamation of Aug. 7, 1901.

Confirmation of the British title of properties of burghers taken by the British authorities.

Payment of the lawful obligations of the late South African republics, including those incurred during the war.

Resolution of the decision to add a portion of the Transvaal to Natal.

Granting an extension of time for the payment of all debts due by the burghers to the late governments of the South African republics.

Mr. Chamberlain, in replying, expressed great surprise at the number and character of the proposals, pointing out that the conditions agreed on at Vereeniging were fully accepted by the burghers and the British government and that they could not be reopened, nor could proposals be put forward that might be considered. If the interpretation of the agreement was open to question his majesty's government would endeavor to remove all doubts.

HIGH MARK FOR GOLD.

United States Treasury Now Contains $773,900,000.

With one possible exception, the sum of gold now in the United States Treasury exceeds that of any previous time in the history of any country of the world. On Saturday the balance of the treasury held $773,900,000, an increase of $20,000,000 in the last year of over $200,000,000. The stock of gold is being added to the gold of $200,000,000 to $200,000,000 a day. The gold now coming in is being replaced by gold certificates, United States notes and silver certificates, the former being supplied where the denomination wanted are $20 or over, the United States notes for $5 and silver certificates for $5, $20 and $50. Treasury officials are well satisfied with the situation, regarding it as an evidence of the financial prosperity and stability of the republic.

The single reported exception in the high mark for gold in any treasury is that of Russia eight years ago, when the treasury of that country is said to have contained $528,000,000. This was when the government was preparing to resume all payments.

MAINE VOTE A SURPRISE.

Republicans Carry the State by Unexpected Majority.

The returns from the Maine State election indicate a probable Republican plurality of 27,500, a result, dispatches say, that is a surprise to the party. For the estimate of the Republican gain this year had been conservatively placed at 10,000. In at least four of the big counties of the State—Cumberland, Androscoggin, New York and Hancock—there were contests for the sheriff election based on local differences relative to the enforcement of the prohibitory law, but in other sections there was little to bring out a full party vote. Maine's four Republican Congressmen, Allen Burleigh, Burleigh and Powers, are returned. Rev. O. S. Bisbee, the Republican candidate for sheriff of Cumberland County, was defeated by William M. Pennell (Dem.). Pennell's election by at least 2,000 means that Portland has turned its back on any attempt at enforcement of prohibition.

COMMERCIAL FINANCIAL

New York

"Steady progress is reported in trade and industry. Distribution of merchandise is heavy and a healthy tone is maintained. Bank consumption, which more than neutralizes the effect of enlarged facilities for production. Domestic conditions continue much better than those existing abroad and home trade received more attention than foreign commerce. Farm products have appreciated in value owing to less favorable weather and production will be fairly compensated for any decrease in quantity by the higher quotations. Earnings of railways during August were 3.6 per cent larger than a year ago and 18.9 per cent in excess of 1910."

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade makes the foregoing resume of the industrial situation. Continuing it says: "Advancing raw material costs and much anxiety and uncertainty of exchange of cotton goods and there were numerous inquiries for forward contracts, but the volume of business was not materially increased."

Quotation of footwear are fully maintained at the recent advance. It is noteworthy that buying has been heaviest in the finer grades and sample lines of spring styles are also most sought in the shoe market. A good feature of the inquiry for shoes is the fact, indicating that stocks are low. Leather sells freely at the recent advance in quotations, but hides appear to have risen above the views of tanners, resulting in a quiet market.

Agricultural conditions are less satisfactory, and if the official estimate as to cotton is not exaggerated the yield will not be large enough to sustain consumption at the present rate. Wheat is coming forward in moderate quantities, but not equal the abnormally heavy movement a year ago. Corn developed strength because of fears that injury would be done by frost, and the movement is very slow compared with last year's figures.

Exports of Grain.

Head-stocks say:

Wheat, including flour, exports for the week ending Sept. 4 aggregate 4,276,290 bushels, against 5,495,530 last week, 4,106,064 in this week last year and 3,373,100 in 1910. Wheat exports since July 1 aggregate 44,657,506, against 61,692,292 last season and 30,317,851 in 1910.

Corn exports aggregate 21,106 bushels, against 11,337,885 in 1910, 23,879,131 last year and 3,162,271 in 1910. For the fiscal year exports are 829,839 bushels, against 10,743,845 last season and 35,254,250 in 1910.

Business failures for the week ending Sept. 4 number 135, as against 140 last week and 169 in this week last year. In Canada for the week the number is 14, as against 20 last week.

Chicago

The Northwest has had another week of unseasonable weather. In spite of this, however, trade is reported good, and collections easy. The unfavorable feature is the continued light crop movement. Minneapolis reports being far behind last year in the matter of wheat receipts. The grain will begin coming in quantity eventually but very unevenly. It is likely that the movement will be further. Something of a scare was worked up in a small way by low temperatures over the Northwest and the possibility of damage to wheat in the extreme Northwest, and to the late flax still in some degree immature.

To what extent stock market advances already made have discounted the future is problematical. Certainly it is a reasonable assumption that if the west railroads dependent largely upon corn, or the tonnage derived indirectly from corn, were able to hold up earnings last year, and even make increases, they should do wonderfully well this year, when, as an illustration, the present condition of corn is 10 cents a bushel, while last year at this time it was 29 on a much smaller acreage.

More Scotch iron was brought over last week for use in Chicago. A little unfavorable comment was occasioned by this, although just why it is hard to see. It has no special significance and means nothing more than that we must have iron, and as there are many difficulties in the way of maximum production, the most important of which is the coal strike, consumers are going abroad for what they cannot get at home. The foreign iron makers will lose their American trade whenever American mills can book the orders.

Failures for the week were under the average and there were no new developments of an unfavorable nature in the industrial list. The feeling is growing, however, that the anthracite strike must be settled even if a settlement must be forced upon the mine owners and their property rights disregarded, in view of the existence of something that has grown to be a serious menace to the general prosperity.

Scottish and York Rites of Masonry

The following will explain to many members of the symbolic lodges the distinction between the York and Scottish rites: The York rite consisted of but three degrees, Entered Apprentice, Fellow Craft, and Master Mason. The rite was practised until the latter part of the eighteenth century, when, according to Mackay, Duckerly dismembered the third degree by eliminating the secrets of the Royal Arch. There is not now in existence anywhere any such rite as the York rite. The usually denominated such in this country is sometimes styled the "American rite," a name given to it by Mackay in all his writings. The American modification of the York rite consists of nine degrees, namely: 1, Entered Apprentice; 2, Fellow Craft; 3, Master Mason, given in symbolic lodges and under the control of Grand lodges; 4, Mark Masters; 5, Past Master; 6, Most Excellent Master; 7, Holy Royal Arch, given in chapters and under control of Grand chapters; 8, Royal Master; 9, Select Master, given in Councils, and under control of Grand Councils. A tenth degree, called Supreme-Exalted Master, is conferred in some Councils as honorary rather than as a regular degree; but even as such it is repudiated by many Grand Councils. The degrees of the Commandery, which are known also as the Degree of Chivalry, can hardly be called a part of the American York rite. The possession of the eighth and ninth degrees is not considered a necessary qualification for receiving them. The true American York rite consists only of the nine degrees above enumerated. The Ancient and Accepted Scottish rite is the youngest of the Masonic rites, but is the most widely diffused and popular of all rites. Governing bodies of this rite, called Supreme Councils, are to be found in almost all civilized countries, and in many of them it is the only Masonry that is known.

JAPAN'S MERCANTILE MARINE

M. Duhal, the French minister to Japan, publishes some interesting details in the Bulletin Economique of Indo-China concerning the Japanese mercantile marine. The statistics referred to are taken from a report issued by the Japanese minister of commerce, and they deal with the steady increase in the number of steamers and sailing vessels in the Japanese merchant service during the last four years:

Year	Steam-Ton-ships	Sail'g Ton-ships	age	175	174	24,014
Jan., 1898	1,027	429,174	174	24,014
Jan., 1899	1,079	470,334	1,453	105,710
Jan., 1900	1,753	498,375	2,783	270,161
Sep. 16, 1901	1,942	557,166	3,416	315,576

Thus it will be seen that the Japanese mercantile marine has increased in three and a half years by 315 steamers and 3,242 sailing vessels, the increase in tonnage in each class being respectively 127,392 and 294,502 tons. This is a striking rate of progress and one rarely met with in the case of other countries, especially if the increase in the number of large steamers is taken into account. In fact, in 1893 Japan possessed only one merchant steamer of a tonnage exceeding 5,000 tons, but at this moment it possesses twenty-one steamers whose individual tonnage is above 5,000 tons.

In proportion as the volume of shipping has grown so there has been an increase in the number of Seamen available for manning the ships, and it is to be remarked that Japan can provide its own skippers and naval engineers. At the end of last June, says the London Globe, the number of ship's officers with captain's certificates and of engineers was 15,412, of whom 15,107 were Japanese and only 304 were foreigners. The number of engineers serving in the mercantile marine of Japan was 2,731.

ANDREW D. WHITE.

Ambassador to Germany Who Leaves the Diplomatic Service.

The American State Department loses the services of a highly esteemed diplomat by reason of the retirement from official life of Andrew D. White, ambassador to Berlin.

Dr. White has enjoyed the marked esteem of the German people, and has thus been in a position to smooth away many of the unpleasant controversies that are constantly springing up between the people of two great commercial nations. When he first went to Germany as minister in 1879 he bore

ANDREW D. WHITE.

With him the prestige of his educational work in the United States and the experience of his labors as a member of the New York Legislature. He reached a congenial atmosphere at once, and, while attending to the interests of his government, refreshed his memories of student life in Germany and made the acquaintance of many celebrities. Not only was he personally acceptable to the Germans, but his ministry fell on a time when the relations between the United States and Germany were unclouded.

Nearly two decades passed away, and Dr. White returned to Berlin, this time with the added privileges of an ambassador. It was the year before the Spanish war. The Berlin he knew was no more; the Berlin he found was far larger, cleaner, better paved and more vigorously policed. The greatest change of all was the attitude of press and public toward the United States. This had become embittered through commercial rivalry and the war of tariffs, and aggravated by a rising sympathy between England and the United States, so that the slightest pretext was enough to bring into sharp relief the underlying irritation. When the trouble with Spain broke out it was in the nature of things that the potent official class in Germany should believe in the people who had a large standing army and a more than respectable navy; it was expected that by land and sea the United States would suffer at first a number of serious disasters before she could set enough experienced soldiers and sailors on a war footing to defeat the Spaniards. The situation was one that required in the American ambassador the greatest experience, knowledge of the people and coolness. Irritated because in many respects our tariff works to the disadvantage of German exports, and enraged because German colonies remain uncolonized and emigration to America continues, the press and public of the fatherland seized on the Spanish war as the occasion to ventilate its spite and soothe its spleen. Ambassador White had hardly been a year in his place before he found himself confronted by Germany predicting the success of the Spanish arms and making no pretense of wishing the United States well. It was not a grateful office to stand between two nations apparently distrustful and disliking each other to the top of their bent. Fortunately he has been aided by the German government, which has always preserved a friendly attitude toward us. In 1899 he was appointed one of the delegates to represent the United States in the international disarmament conference at The Hague.

Work Without Reasoning.
The death of Archbishop Corrigan is bringing forth many stories of his kindness, his charity and his broad view of living. The following is a story told illustrative of the latter point, says the New York Times:

Last winter he delivered a series of addresses on socialism, setting forth not only his views on that subject, but also his ideas of the art of living. On Sunday morning after one of these addresses he was approached by one of his auditors, who asked to speak with him a moment. The archbishop stopped to listen.

"It seems to me," began the person "that you take quite a cheerful outlook upon life. The misery and misfortune of this world don't trouble you. Hiding yourself in religion, you don't see the masses of workmen who are tired of waiting for the happiness of the world to come, knock at your door and ask for a little in this life."

"Ah, yes, my friend, I do," sighed the archbishop. "I have felt and seen all that, but after all I find that the only way for the most of us to render life supportable is to work without reasoning."

The "Mandolin Quartet."
A Northern woman who has a white home in one of the Southern States tells many amusing stories of her experiences with the negroes of that region.

Not long ago she wished to give a little entertainment to some New England guests, and thought her of a mandolin quartette of which one of her servants had talked to her on many occasions. She therefore commissioned the maid to ask the quartette to come to the house and play for her guests.

The next evening three coal-blacks bearing banjos appeared at her piazza, and one of them announced himself solemnly as "de leader ob de mand'in quartette."

"But where is the fourth musician?" asked the lady.

"We's all dere is," said the leader with pride. "We's de mand'in quartette."

"But aren't those banjos you have in your hands?" feebly inquired the lady.

FARMS AND FARMERS

How to Roll Barbed Wire.

The illustration shows a home-made device for rolling barbed wire which will work well and enable one to handle the wire without trouble. Use any sort of a small barrel and nail the ends in tight and see that all hoops are securely fastened on. On the center of each end or head nail a block of wood thick enough to be above the level of the edges of chimes. Through this bore a hole into the barrel. Make handles of material an inch thick, two inches wide and five feet long. Take an iron rod, pass it through the ends of the handles and through the barrel, as shown in the cut, fastening at the ends with a nut. Nail a piece of board across the handles, or use iron bars, if possible, to stiffen the handles.

and the machine is complete. Stretch the wire out on the ground, fasten one end to the barrel and then simply roll the barrel over the wire until the latter is wound around the barrel.

Hay in Round Bales.
The cylindrical bale has become very popular for hay and cotton, and many shippers are discarding their old presses to get one that will press it in this form. The standard bale is eight inches in diameter and thirty-six inches long. The pressure used in packing for home use puts about two hundred pounds in such a bale, but when intended for export they use higher pressure and get in about 275 pounds. A bale put up for army use is but half as long, or eighteen inches, and weighs about 140 pounds. It is calculated that a good pack horse or mule will travel with one of these on each side, and they can go where the army wagons could not. Thousands of tons of these round bales have been shipped to our army in the Philippines, and a large amount to the British army in South Africa. In this form a given weight of hay is compressed into about one-half the space that it occupied in the square bale, and the fact that it does not pack so closely in car or vessel, there being spaces between the bales, which prevents moulding, preserves the sweetness of the hay, and the close pressure in the bale reduces the combustibility. For cotton many of the same advantages are claimed for the round bale, that is, getting more in small space and reducing the danger from fire.—American Cultivator.

Cutting Potatoes for Seed.
Here are some outline drawings showing how to cut potatoes for seed. In the first case the potato is cut in two pieces; in the second and third, in three and four respectively. By cutting potatoes as indicated about ten horses of the winter mail carriers make their way on snow shoes, and wooden snow shoes at that. These shoes are made with a double thickness of inch boards, the whole about 20 inches long and SNOWSHOES. 14 wide. An intention to fit the horse's foot is branded in with a hot horse shoe, and an iron clamp, secured by a screw bolt, holds it over the hoof.

Robbery of Moisture by Weeds.
One who is inexperienced, and who has made no experiments in that direction, can form no estimate of the quantity of water taken from the soil by weeds, which is really robbery of the crop occupying the land. A single weed may seemingly do but little injury, but one pound of weeds will remove 500 pounds of moisture from the soil during the period of ordinary drought, or more or less according to its duration and the growth of the weeds. As much as 250,000 pounds of moisture per acre is an ordinary quantity for a heavy mass of weeds to take. In addition to the moisture the weeds draw on the fertility, and deprive the crop of plant food, which is so necessary in order to secure large yields. It is worth to keep down weeds after they get a good start, but it is not difficult to destroy them when they are very young. Many crops fail during dry seasons more because of robbery of the moisture by weeds than because of lack of rain.

Alfalfa on Sandy Soil.
The claim that alfalfa will not thrive on sandy soil is not borne out by experiment. Col. B. W. Richards, secretary of the Laurel Hill Cemetery Company, who has a farm at Hammon, N. J., has grown alfalfa for several years, and on a plot consisting of white sand. The plot was seeded in August, 1898, and another later. As many as four or five cuttings are secured every season, and from two to three tons of hay per acre are cured. Manure is spread over the land every fall and lime (mostly from burnt oyster shells) is broadcasted. The land has become very productive, and more animals were necessary in order to consume the hay produced. The experiment is a valuable one, as it demonstrates what can be done with alfalfa on the lightest kind of sand.—Philadelphia Record.

The Daily Waste.
There is one item that is often overlooked in the keeping of cows, and especially so of dairy cows; and that is daily waste. There is a great deal of milk, whether the animal is a good milk producer or a poor one, in all cases the food necessary for the support of animal life and to make up the daily waste must come first, and then the milk or beef comes next after this is taken out. If the animal gives a small amount of milk, the cost of food waste in proportion to the amount of milk secured is greater than when a large amount of milk is produced. It is a fact that the cost of food waste is decreased accordingly. Feeding poor cows in this way is practically a

That's the way peaches, pears and plums have been selling the last week. The quality is fine and the price within the reach of all. The next 10 ten days will be the limit on first-class stock and prices are strongly inclined to an advance. Would suggest that you make your selection soon and you will be pleased both in quality and price. Sweet potatoes, cranberries, New York grapes, Jonathan (eating) apples and quinces are the latest arrivals. Don't forget that my line of groceries is complete and if you have good table butter to offer it will pay you to get my quotations.

The democratic campaign "text book" may be had for 25 cents in cash. It is not likely to reach a sale that will enrich the "committee" to any great extent. People don't care enough for political hash and re-hash to buy it in large doses. The principal sale of these books will be to candidates who thus contribute to the great jack pot.

WHAT THEY THINK OF M'CAR- THY IN DIXON COUNTY.

No man on either the state or congressional tickets stands better at home than does J. J. McCarthy, the republican candidate for congress. Mr. McCarthy served for three terms as county attorney of Dixon county and then declined to accept the nomination again. His friends urged him to be a candidate for the legislature but he would not consent. The gentleman named for the legislature died a week before election and the central committee put the name of J. J. McCarthy on the ticket to fill the vacancy and as a duty to his party he accepted. Without making a canvass he was elected by a decisive vote. He proved to be a most influential and valuable member of the legislature and was re-elected making a state reputation. He will get almost a unanimous vote in Dixon county this fall. Dakota and Thurston counties will not be far behind and all the counties in the district are falling in line for him, assuring his election.—Emerson Enterprise.

FOR REPRESENTATIVE.

Tomorrow the delegation of this and Stanton counties meet here to name our next representative. Stanton county has plenty of good men but defers to Wayne county. It is our turn to name the man and our sister county will give him loyal support. To whom shall we tender this honor of representing us? We, like Stanton county, have no end of good men, men in every respect desirable but who are unable to be away from their business to attend to legislative duties. Several have been spoken of, Henry R. Bay, of Winside, an ideal candidate if he would accept, has been mentioned by his friends, but in conversation with the writer, Mr. Bay stated positively he could not now think of it. Mr. Bay is one of the men though who will be heard of and well to keep in mind when his duties in the future may not demand his entire time. He is a party worker who will help pile up a majority for the nominee. Edward Lundberg, the hustling young politician and devotee of Blackstone denies he even thought of it, though friends have suggested his name in this connection. Mr. Lundberg goes back to his law studies next week at the state university. An able young man, a hustler and one who would look well after Wayne county, but out of it. Dr. J. J. Williams is not a candidate. He has been mentioned 'tis true, he might not refuse to accept the nomination, he is too loyal a man to his parties interests, but he would rather not sacrifice business interests now to make a political canvass and attend the legislative session. Dr. Williams is likely to be Wayne county's candidate for the senatorial honors in two years from now and we can not ask him to give us to much of his time by thrusting upon him double service.

August Wittler is also spoken of by his friends (and they alone would give him a majority) in connection with the representativehip. Mr. Wittler could give us just the service we wish as our representative, he has had that political schooling in public affairs that makes one more worth tea others not so advantaged. It would be unfair to this gentleman to say he would accept the nomination even under pressure of his party to do so, as we do not know that his private affairs would permit, but we do know it would be well to urge him to accept and that he is too good a party man to shirk any duty he could see his way clear to perform. Mr. Wittler, we understand, would hesitate to accept the representative nomination as it would necessitate his resignation as county commissioner to assume his legislative duties and he feels the sense of his obligations to the people who elected him. However, this should not and would not be a bar to his nomination as the public assumes a right to call to higher duties one found faithful to the little things. It is rumored too Mr. Wittler would prefer if he thought of going before the people again to be a candidate for county treasurer next year. This too could not be a bar to his accepting the duties of legislator as the few months work this winter will in no wise stand in the way, but the better paying county office would stand as a reward for a little sacrifice now to promote the county's welfare in our capitol city.

D. Cunningham has within a day or so been suggested by several but it is without any knowledge of his personal affairs that we endorse this gentleman as a splendid possibility. It is to be hoped it would not be impossible to accept if the convention should urge Mr. Cunningham to accept this honor. It is understood considerable interest is aroused since Mr. Cunningham's name has been mentioned. An extra effort will be made to gain the consent of that gentleman to accept the nomination.

While he is able to walk and has the appearance of good health he has never enjoyed the free use of his jaws since the shooting and some doubt that he will ever recover from the effects of the shooting in this particular is expressed.

Parties came in from about ten miles north of the city on Sunday and notified Sheriff Mears that Niegenfind, the Pierce county murderer, had been seen in that vicinity. The sheriff and a party, all armed to the teeth, went out into that section early in the morning where they learned that a man answering the description of the murderer was sleeping a school house. The party waited around while for his nibe, the aspect, to arise and come forth, when it was learned that he had changed his lodgings since the evening before to the next schoolhouse south. When they arrived there the fellow had gone to town. On reaching town the man, who, instead of the murderer, proved to be a farmer whose home is south of Wakefield and who seems to be a trifle unbalanced mentally, claiming to be a detective, etc., went at once to the jail and asked Mrs. Mears, the sheriff's wife, where the murderer, Niegenfind, spotted and that he was then in a schoolhouse north of town, the building described afterward proving to be same in which the "detective" himself had spent the night. The man came down town, bought a supply of chewing tobacco and started to return to the country north of town when he was sighted by the posse. He was, of course, not the man wanted, and was allowed to go on his way. It seems that the fellow makes a practice of tramping around the country, and we understand that the sheriff of Pierce county followed the same individual for three days last week believing him to be the murderer.

During the day Marshal Miner received word from the authorities at Heron Lake, Minnesota, to detain the trio, said communication stating that they had departed from that point leaving an unpaid board bill. The marshal promptly arrested the men and kept them here until the next day when the sheriff of that Minnesota county arrived with two warrants for the arrest of one Van Himmel, a member of the party, one charging the jumping of a board bill and the other the leaving of a bill for livery hire at the same town. The gentleman, it seems, had previously sent the amount claimed as the board bill, and as he refused to return to Minnesota with the officer without requisition papers, the other matters were satisfactorily settled and the party continued on their way rejoicing.

Died.

SCADDEN—Wayman Scadden, at his home in Wayne, on last Friday morning, September 12, aged 51 years.

Mr. Scadden was born in Luzern county, Pennsylvania, April 12, 1841. He was united in marriage on November 8, 1873 to Miss Viola Southwick, in Shelby county, Iowa. The couple resided in that county until the year of 1888 when they moved to Brown county, Nebraska, residing there until they moved to Wayne in 1897. Since that time they have made their home in this city where the family has a host of friends who will bear with the sorrowing ones in their bereavement. Seven children were born, two of whom passed away in infancy, the other five with the sorrowing mother surviving the husband and father. The children are Mrs. Cass Carter, of Shelby county, Iowa; Mrs. Geo. Palmer of Sioux City; and Will, Gusie, and Clark who reside at the family home in this city.

The deceased had been ailing for months, having been confined to his home until recently, and after being around town a few days suffered a relapse which resulted in his death. He was an old soldier and the G. A. R. post of this city had charge of the funeral services. The sermon was preached by Rev. Weldon of the Baptist church, and a large concourse of friends followed the remains to their last resting place in Greenwood cemetery. In mentioning the death of Mr. Scadden we chronicle the passing of a good man and patient sufferer. This paper joins the friends of the family in extending the greatest of sympathy to those in their sad hour.

MURDERED IN COLD BLOOD

Gottlieb Niegenfind Kills His Divorced Wife and Her Father—Wounds the Mother.

The following account of the murder of the Breyer family by Gottlieb Niegenfind at the Breyer home just over the Pierce county line, about 20 miles west of this city, on last Thursday evening, is taken from the Pierce County Leader.

"Albert Breyer lies dead, his wife is painfully wounded and their daughter Anna is a corpse. Such are the awful results of a tragedy that occurred at the Breyer home six miles east of town at sunset last evening, the perpetrator of the horrible deed being Gottlieb Niegenfind, the divorced husband of the dead woman.

"Niegenfind, who had not been seen in this vicinity for almost a year, put in his appearance Wednesday, staying all night at the Ernest Fisher home, northeast of town. Yesterday morning he went to work for August Korth working for half an hour and then leaving. It appears that he went to the Breyer home in the forenoon and wanted to see his little boy. This was refused him and he returned again in the afternoon and was again told to leave. About sunset he returned the third time and accosted Mr. Breyer as he was doing the chores at the barn. Some words were had and Niegenfind opened fire on the old man with a revolver, shooting him four times. Hearing the shots Mrs. Breyer came running out to see what was the matter and the brute shot her in the shoulder. He then went around the barn, reloaded his revolver and returning poured two more shots into the prostrate body of Mr. Breyer. At this time the old man's daughter, Mrs. Anna Peters, the divorced wife of Niegenfind, came around the corner of the barn and he shot her twice, in the stomach and through the brain, killing her instantly.

"The wretch then started to leave and a short distance from the house met Lena, the 19 year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Breyer, who was returning from a neighbor's. The fiend threatened her with his revolver and attempted to ravish her person. Suddenly desisting, he made the remark: 'This is enough of this,' hurried away and has not been seen since.

"Lena summoned the neighbors as soon as she discovered this horrible thing that had been going on at her home and word was at once sent to town. Drs. L. R. Pheasant and A. Woodworth went out at once, arriving there shortly before 9 o'clock, and attended to the wounds of Mr. and Mrs. Breyer. The latter was not seriously hurt, having only a flesh wound in the shoulder, but nothing could be done for Mr. Breyer and he died this morning about 8 o'clock. He was shot six times receiving two bullets in the left side just below the heart, one in the back near the kidneys, one in the left shoulder, one in the left arm, and one in the head.

"Gottlieb, son of Mr. and Mrs. Breyer, was not at home, having been helping his brother Richard, of this place, make hay for a couple of days, otherwise he would probably have come in for a share of the assassin's bullets as Niegenfind had a deep-set grudge against him and had been heard to say that he would 'fix him.'

"Whether this villain has tried to leave the country or is in hiding in the vicinity of his crime is not known, but surrounding towns were notified last night to keep a lookout for him and parties of armed citizens left Pierce about 3:30 this morning, going in all directions and notifying the farmers, and at this hour of going to press the country is being thoroughly scoured for traces of the wretch. County Attorney Barnhart also sent to Beemer for bloodhounds and they will be here on the freight this morning, or the 1 o'clock passenger at the latest.

"Sheriff Jones, in the absence of the coroner, Dr. J. M. Alden, who is at Stanton, went out to the Breyer home at 8 o'clock this morning and is holding the inquest.

"The atrocious and horrible deed of Niegenfind is most brutal and criminal perpetrated as it was without cause and with premeditated fendishness, and cold-blooded deliberation. The lives of a kindly man, one of the oldest and most highly respected of the county's citizens, and of his daughter, who at all times was friendly and neighborly, were taken by this worthless specimen of humanity who has now transgressed both divine and human laws with no shadow of excuse or palliation. If Niegenfind had been any kind of a man he would have remained with Mrs. Anna Peters after her marriage to her on April 21, 1901, and with the advantage and help given him by his father, Albert Breyer, could have prospered and lived a long and useful life as a model farmer and upright citizen. Now, however, he has actually murdered two of his fellow creatures, attempted to murder another one, and to criminally assault an unmarried sister of his former wife. He has the brand of Cain upon him; he is despised and hated by all, and no punishment can be imagined that would be too severe or too painful for him. Words are inadequate upon an occasion of this kind.

"Niegenfind and Mrs. Anna Peters were divorced September 26, 1901, the wife having suffered from his persecution and brutality for five months before applying for the remedy afforded by law. After the divorce he went away and was not seen again in this vicinity until last Wednesday. By this terrible tragedy four small children by the first husband and one the result of the marriage with Niegenfind are bereft of a mother and grandfather."

The Niegenfinds are quite well known in this county, the father of the murderer having at one time been well known to the authorities here as a tough character who figured quite prominently in several scrapes in Wayne county some years ago and who has been before the courts of justice more than once, having lost considerable property in litigation at different times.

The murderer has not yet been apprehended. The night of the murder he stopped with a bachelor named Carson, within three miles of the scene of his crime. He told Carson that he had had some trouble with the Breyers and that he expected the authorities were on his trail. He passed a very restless night, jumping up and grabbing his gun at the least sound, and the next morning started to Winside with Carson, telling the latter that he expected to go to Sioux City and thence to Yankton, South Dakota. When within a couple of miles of Winside, however, he changed his mind and left Carson, started south and has not been seen since. He is reported to have been at Pilger, Wayne and other points in this section, but the authorities have no trace of the fiend at this writing.

This (Wednesday) morning—A man answering the description and generally believed to be the murderer, was arrested north of Dodge, in the edge of Cumtug county, last evening.

NIEGENFIND IS KILLED

Niegenfind was shot and instantly killed by pursuers on the Loe farm 5 miles south of Winside at 4:30 this afternoon. He was seen on the farm by the son of Farmer Loe who in company with Dave Leary and Frank Burnham started in pursuit. When told to halt the murderer opened fire on his pursuers who returned the fire with the above result.

Rejected Suitor Carries Off Girl.

Anna Villawa, a servant girl in the family of W. S. Borer, near Stanton, was the victim of a dastardly kidnapping and assault Saturday night at the hands of Lowery Welch, a rejected suitor. A posse was at once organized to search the surrounding territory for the abductor who was promised rough handling if found. Miss Villawa was sleeping in her room, with Mrs. Borer's little daughter when she was awakened by Welch, who had climbed to the apartment by means of a ladder. Silencing the little girl by threatening her life and that of her father, he roughly commanded Miss Villawa to rise, dress and accompany him. Thoroughly terrified, she did so. She was then carried down the ladder by the abductor who took her to the sand hills where he treated her most brutally. The next day Welch, thinking he was being pursued, fled, leaving the girl, who arrived at the home of a brother a few miles distance in an almost insensible condition. The sheriff at once organized a posse and bloodhounds were sent for. The criminal was seen by two of the searchers, but he made his escape in a cornfield, after exchanging shots with his pursuers. Welch was well armed and told Miss Villawa that Tracy would not "be in it" with him. If any attempt was made to capture him. He is still at large. Welch is a rather dissolute young man and was smitten with Miss Villawa, she refusing to marry him. Later—the fugitive is surrounded by the Stanton company of the state militia in the hills near Norfolk.

Bishop Fowler's Lecture.

Monday evening Bishop Chas. E. Fowler, of Buffalo, New York gave his lecture on Abraham Lincoln to about four hundred in the M. E. church here. There were present visitors from nearly every town within thirty to forty miles and many of them expressed the gratitude they felt to the pastor, Rev. Thee. Bithel and Presiding elder, F. M. Sisson for securing so fine a treat for them. Wayne feels significantly honored as this is the only lecture Bishop Fowler gives in this state this year, and this is due solely to the energy of the gentleman above mentioned. Bishop Fowler was suffering slightly from a cold and speaking was some what difficult, but he felt pleased to meet the audience and expressed this saying: "It was the creamiest audience he had spoken to for a long time." It would be idle to attempt to outline the lecture, it was grand. It was something if misused may never be heard again, no one else can give it, Bishop Fowler lived in that special environment that alone could furnish the knowledge to clothe in words the vivid pictures of Lincoln that fade, "his true, his pity, pity 'tis 'tis true" with the passing from the stage of action these men like Bishop Fowler whom we love for these that cling to him and to us through him.

Karns Yet at Large.

From latest reports, Karns, the man who recently shot Sheriff Strain, of Monocounty, Iowa, has not yet been captured although an armed posse has been in hot pursuit ever since his escape. It is thought that he is hiding on the Winnebago reservation, and as he is well acquainted with the lay of the land there, it probably will be a hard matter to locate him. Thursday Karns stopped with a farmer by the name of Tipton, for whom he used to work, and got a lunch which he ate with his gun lying on the table. Karns said he was very tired, but that he had not seen any one nor any dogs. A pack of bloodhounds are being used in the hunt.

Staley Underwear The 2 Johns ONE PRICE CLOTHING WAYNE NEB. Staley Jersey Overshirts

This is our third season in Wayne with the Staley Underwear and our twenty-third year in selling this celebrated underwear. You might suppose that we have advertised this underwear sufficient that every one would know about it, but as there are yet some men in Wayne county that are not wearing Staley Underwear we wish to remind them that it will be to their interest to look at this underwear before buying this fall. To those that have bought Staley Underwear we need only say that Staley Underwear has each year some improvement and that we always have a full line in stock.

We have Staley Underwear in every grade and can satisfy your taste. Considering the length of time it wears it is the cheapest underwear made. But some will say, "I can't wear wool." We will say right here that we have never found a man who can't wear Staley all-wool underwear. Staley Underwear is not like any other, the wool is treated different and Staley uses a different kind of wool than other manufacturers. Wool doesn't hurt any one. It is the foreign matter that hurts people, and all foreign matter is taken out of the wool used in Staley Underwear. Some say, "All my wool underwear shrinks so I can't wear it." We give printed instructions with Staley underwear, and if you obey these instructions in washing Staley underwear it will never shrink. It will cost you nothing to see Staley underwear. We can fit anyone no matter how large. We will be glad to explain to your entire satisfaction why Staley underwear should be worn by all, and can satisfy you that you can wear it comfortably. Ask any one wearing Staley all-wool Underwear and they will recommend it. Ask any doctor if you ought to wear Staley Underwear and he will recommend it. Ask us to show you STALEY ALL-WOOL UNDERWEAR and you will be pleased to buy it.

Why Is It? This music teachers or piano tuners cannot get a commission for recommending Chickering? That competitors who cannot get them to sell are continually advertising Chickering pianos? That Chickering agents 50-40-30-20 years ago are Chickering agents today? That the largest and finest music stores in New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Pittsburgh, Denver, San Francisco and other principal cities are representing the Chickering as their "best pianos"? That the Chickering costs the most money? That the Chickering pure basses are always admired? Competitors have spent fortunes in the attempt, yet never been able to duplicate the Chickering Tone? That Chickering & Sons made more pianos last year than all the other high grade makers combined? That no one has ever yet purchased a Chickering and worn it out? That you can buy them for the least money at Johnson's Furniture store in Norfolk? Johnson's Furniture Store, Norfolk, Nebraska. Republican

CHAPTER VII.

The parade ground of Fort Sheridan was a colder place after midnight than the country Carrington had just left, and he made his way across to the back porch, with this chasing wind whistling up and down his spine, and wishing fervently for his overcoat. The porter seemed doubtful as to the whereabouts of Major Tazewell, and held a whispered consultation with a jaunty young lieutenant. The lieutenant, with a bored air, came out of the reading room, and spreading his legs wide apart, inquired if he could carry the message, since the major was particularly engaged. Carrington answered that he preferred to deliver it himself.

"Well, to tell the truth," the lieutenant said, with bland discourtesy, "I don't think we can consult your preferences. The officer's manner as he answered, pulling at a wispy of mustache, was so very contemptuous, and his eyes were so few, that Hugh laughed in spite of his anger. "All right, little Mr. Civil-Life Appointment," he said, "tell him Hugh Carrington of Virginia wishes to see him."

"Siegfried" cried the young man, snoring with rage. "I'll be right back, sir." "Certainly not, however," Hugh interrupted, catching the quiffed arm, and drawing the lieutenant halfway across the room with the twist with which one loosens a heavy forkful of hay. "I'll have you thrown out," the officer cried, regaining his balance, if not his dignity.

Several men in citizens' clothes entered at this instant, and glanced with surprise at the fracas. "What's wrong?" asked a tall man, with long, gray mustache. "This man insulted me," cried the boy lieutenant.

Hugh laughed loudly. "I know from his manners he had never seen the inside of the Point." "Hugh Carrington, by the way," shouted a burly fellow in the group. "The same Hugh Carrington, that well-fed fellow after all these years?" Hugh seized the outstretched hand.

In the smoking room two more of his classmates were found, and Hugh nearly forgot his errand in the pleasure of meeting them. "I swear I forgot what you were sent down for," Barbour said, reminiscent. "Well, you can renew your fun to-night, without fear of after-effects. I expect that where Bob Tazewell is, don't you think?" turning to a brother officer.

The group broke up after elaborate plans for the next day. Barbour taking Carrington off to find Tazewell. At the end of a long corridor a door stood open, and from within came wisps of smoke and the sound of furniture used in poker, interspersed with the silence of contented slumber following the night hand. Around a table lounged four men in citizens' clothes. The room was hot and close.

A tall, gray-haired man looked up. His face was deeply lined, and the crow's-foot about the eyes and the unhealthy paleness of his skin told with tolerable exactness of his habits. "Major Bob," Barbour called.

"Mr. Hugh Carrington of Virginia," Barbour said, "sometime of my class at West Point." "Mr. Carrington and I are both from the old county of the only State in the Union," Major Tazewell answered, and introduced him to the others. All at once seemed to flash over the paymaster that Hugh had come especially to see him.

"Oh, you want to see me, Hugh?" "At your convenience," Hugh answered. "Gentlemen, excuse me. Here, Barbour, take my hand. Cash in my row. I'll join you later." He conducted Hugh into his own room and bade him be seated. "Any bad news from home?" he asked. "Anything wrong with father or Nannie?"

Carrington was untroubled. He had expected to find a mired man, in the agony of despair. In his place was an apparently debonair, though dissipated looking soldier, fresh from the card table. "I came from your father," Hugh answered. "He heard that you were in trouble." "From whom did he hear that?" Tazewell asked.

From your uncle, the general. He said you were on the verge of ruin and needed my help badly." The paymaster leaned back and laughed an unmitigated, jeering laugh. "I suppose the general thought he was playing a safe game, and that my father, not being on good terms with me, would act through him. What a trump the old gentleman is! But how, in heaven's name, could he help me?" "It's your sister's money."

Tazewell's face clouded and he was silent for some time. There was a softer note in his voice when he spoke. "Good little Nannie! how long it is since I have thought of her! How are my people, Carrington? How does the old place look?" Carrington told him dispassionately of the poverty and the shabbiness of the great house, without proper lights or servants; of Miss Nannie's going with him to the stable to get the horse, and of the old man's sickness and lack of necessary appliances.

The soldier heard him through in silence. He arose and closed the door, and looked the door. "I will tell you about the affair," he said, taking a seat opposite Hugh. "I saw my near-brother a week ago. In fact, I saw you very near, and my esteemed partner and uncle could not help me with anything except the offer of his entire sympathy. To say that I was surprised at his attitude gives you no idea of how I felt. It dazed me. We had been dividing profits and loss for years, and he had always taken care that he got his full two-thirds. You should have seen the general at our interview last week, barricaded behind a table, and with a pair of eyes that would have been as bright as the world's, he said, 'Why, man, the investment was made on the strength of a telegram from him; but the cunning fox had so ordered it that it proved nothing. His esteemed wife was never before so close to the happy day which I have not doubted she had been waiting for since she heard her husband and gives to her his fortune. When I reached home I remembered a letter, searched for it and found it. During the days when things looked bright he had sent me a note in which the affair had been mentioned as his investment, and expressing a doubt as to the fairness of the usual division—rapacious old scoundrel! He wrote father that I had better I told him I did. I was getting the case strongly—but I had not; it was too near my day. However, the old rascal weakened when I showed him a copy of the letter, and put up more money. After a little the stock rose, and we sold out at a loss, of course. Come, let's not back."

Tazewell put his arm through that of his younger companion and led him down the hall. "There never was but one man," he said, generally, "I hated to see opposite to me at the poker table, and that is old man Henry, of Eastover." "I believe he is our best, though he has had a moral fit lately and won't play."

Tazewell shook his head. "It's mighty sorrowful when one has that form of disease, but in his case it is not so. My first is gone, and I'm not getting any. I have escaped, but one never knows. Not that the fear of it keeps me awake nights."

Carrington glanced at the gambler's face, at the thread-like lines of red in the cheeks and nose, at the pallidness under the eyes; there were no signs of the disease's mortality there. In truth, he had suffered little from its attacks himself. He wondered why if the older man had found the night before good enough to compensate for the day after. The poker players were still intent upon the game. Tazewell led Hugh to the table. "Gentlemen," he said, "we have here a disciple of my own master at this noble game; only this gentleman is a pupil of the master's mature years, and so further advanced than I."

CHAPTER VIII.
James Carrington of Carterbrook was a good son, a good brother, and a loyal friend. He had passed his first youth a bachelor, though by no means heart-whole. He was well read and intelligent, and the worst of a long line of bad farmers and worse managers. On his mother's plantation it was always a feast or a famine, and he was able to ride many horses for him to ride that it was an exertion to exercise them, or he was reduced to a lame plough horse, as at present. But in all exigencies he was the same cheerful person, careless of slovenliness, unspokeably lazy at intervals, and gladly to impose himself for a neighbor.

The family was in an agony of preparation for the marriage of a daughter to a young lawyer of Richmond. It was the occasion for a general renovating of the house. Mrs. Carrington worked furiously, and her ordinarily sweet temper became uncertain. James felt himself sadly in the way at such times as these, and very much abused. He felt the nervous irritability of his family with a horrible acuteness. He ate with his fingers, or went without, and made no complaint at the purloining of his dollars or shoes by members of the army of negro women cleaning up. On the morning of the appointed day he opened his eyes upon a bare room, the old hall room of the house, its floor shining with polish, and its walls covered with a blue and gold pattern. "Half past four," he murmured. "That thing's off at a quarter past five." He contemplated it a few minutes in silence. "I hate an alarm clock," he continued. He reached over and moved the indicator so that the bell would not ring until noon, gave a contented sigh, turned over and nestled down in the bed. "I've choked myself," he muttered. "I've choked myself. I believe I'll die. I've choked myself a little, before I get up. His thoughts must have been very engrossing, for it was two hours later when next he looked at the clock. "Oh, well, it's so late now it doesn't matter," he said. "I'm sleepy."

There was a demonstration at his door, and a negro woman in a turban poked in her head. "An' you ever gwine ter get up, Mr. Jim?" she asked. "All right," he yawned.

In the kitchen a busy army was mixing, peeling, roasting and making. Outside many little boys were raking the lawn, and three men were hanging the gate. James wandered about drowsily until dinner. For that meal he stole a pie cooling in a window, and suffered general depression in consequence until the guests began to arrive. They came in buzzies and buckboots, in antiquated coaches with moulton linings, and on horseback. Maude, driving tandem in a high yellow cart, was a startling contrast to most of the shabbiness and unwashed wheels. Major Tazewell, proud and formal, landed down his daughter from the faded glory of a barouche. Mr. Henry drove up in high spirits and overflowing with cordiality, although the front spring to his buggy owed its continuity to a piece of baling wire. Hugh Carrington came on horseback. He seldom drove. Detectors said he was too stung. Conspicuous among the guests was Gen. Tazewell, portly, complacent, bland, prodigal of handshakes, and dressed in shiny black. His wife was with him, her proud face and unbending manner strongly at variance with him.

"What a collection of Shandy Dams!" Maude said, trolling out among the carriages to the ward fence. "One wouldn't think most of these buzzies would run a mile, and yet they go on forever."

In a chair in the hall sat old Mrs. Letcher, renewing her youth. She singled out Hugh as he was passing, and he turned to her with a sigh, remembering her last remarks to him. "Stand by me, Mistuh Hugh, and tell me who all the people are. Why, there's General Tazewell—General!" she called, pounding the floor with her stick. "Why, General, how well you look—and your wife, too! I remember your marriage well. Neither of you have aged a bit in all these long years. And how are all your children, Mrs. Tazewell?" Mrs. Tazewell was not quick, and she only bowed with coldest civility. The general shook his head with a changing smile, and returned to the general conversation, reminding her of her own marriage. "There's nothing but the happiest agencies exist."

CHAPTER IX.
The early apple catches the worm.

"Such a good man, the general," said Mrs. Letcher, with the easy impressionability of old age, as he continued on his smiling way; "but his wife—what! What could he have seen in her? Why, they were so poor, before she married him, that they didn't have clothes fit to come to church. I know because—Hugh Carrington, what has Virginia Carey done to her hair? I'm sure she used to have brown hair. I know that's dye. Why, he has grown! They say his wife wouldn't give him any peace until he had an outside kitchen built, and he went to great expense, and now they never use it. I wonder if Mrs. St. Clair wears that little cap because she's bald. And there's Sally Payne! Is it true that your cousin James fitted her? She looks mighty sad. I suppose she thought this house could be hers, and it makes her feel badly. There! I must speak to Nannie Tazewell. Go fetch her."

Hugh seized the opportunity and darted away after her. An incoming wave of people swept them both on. He extricated her from the crush and steered her into a safe angle of the hall, half way up the staircase, and dropped exhausted at her side. "What extraordinary exertion have you been undergoing?" Nannie Tazewell asked. "Were you ever a listener to Mrs. Letcher's wide-spreading criticisms? What eyes that woman has!" He drew a long breath.

"Her mind is like a bad mirror. The reflected image is never true, and sometimes it very much distorted, but it is always recognizable." "I should have thought that," Hugh said. "One mustn't be vain," she said solemnly. "Do you know?" she turned on him suddenly with the smile that lighted up her face so amazingly—"father is much offended at you? Why do you never come to the house? It makes me feel queer, after what you have done for us, to have you disdain our gratitude." "Disdain!" Hugh cried. "Yes, but don't shout it. Does that marble woman wonder disapproval?" Hugh, following the direction of her glance, saw Fairfax in a corner of the big hall, surrounded by several men, among whom was James Carrington. "Why do all you men admire her so? Your cousin's face is as radiant as a story-book lover's, and I am sure if your lawyer next him had as much assurance as Mr. Henry he would whisper in her ear how very beautiful she was. She is beautiful, too. She might be some great lady, in that costly gown and with that scornful air. Do you find it as hard as James Carrington to win a smile?" She flashed an almost contemptuous look at him. (To be continued.)

PARROT SAID "DROP IT."
The Visitor Did So, Smashing the Costly Vase.
A story is going the rounds wherein figure two well-known Columbus women and a parrot. Mrs. A. paid a social call at the home of Mrs. B. the other day and was ushered into the sitting room by the maid of all work to await the appearance of Mrs. B. Mrs. B. had come into possession of a parrot only a short time before and had been keeping the bird in the sitting room. Polly has a very good command of English and appears to know when to use it. Mrs. A. sat down with her back to the bird with no sound she remained in ignorance of its presence. Observing a beautiful vase on the mantel, Mrs. A. arose from her seat and, crossing the floor, took down the dainty piece of bric-a-brac to examine it. She gazed on it rapturously, completely absorbed by its elegant decorations when suddenly from just behind her came the shrill and stern command: "Drop it! Drop it!" Mrs. A. obeyed and turned with a scream to face the imperturbable gaze of Polly, who sat in her cage with her green head slyly perked to one side. On the floor lay the beautiful vase, smashed to bits. At this most embarrassing moment Mrs. B. entered the room. Before Mrs. A. could explain the situation, says the Ohio State Journal, Polly shook out her feathers and remarked: "You're it! You're it! You're it!"

Revenue from Coal Mines.
"Suppose," said George E. Kirkpatrick, the superintendent of the Girard estate, "that you owned a coal mine and your receipts in mined coal from it were $50,000 a year, would you regard those receipts as income or as capital?" "Why, as income, of course," Mr. Kirkpatrick's visitor made answer. The other smiled and said: "Well, you would be wrong. For may not income be defined as revenue accruing from a source the entirety of which—the value of which—remains unimpaired? Thus, revenue from the rental of a building is income. But revenue from mined coal is not income for the reason that the value of the mine decreases by so much as there is coal taken out of it. This decrease in a big mine, may be slight, but it there all the same; and to overlook it to regard the receipts of the mine as pure income, is as foolish as it would be (supposing you owned a large tract of land) to regard as income your receipts from the sale of tiny sections of that land." "That is clear enough, isn't it?" asked Mr. Kirkpatrick, according to the Philadelphia Record. "And yet the question of mine receipts—whether they are capital or income—is a vexing one, and up to 1830 the officers of the Girard estate were mistaken in it and spent the money from their mines. Now all that money they consider ill-engaged capital and they invest it, and put it to work at earning interest, as soon as it comes in."

A Real Need.
"Here's an invention that enable you to see the man who rings you up over the telephone."
"That's well enough. But what is really needed is something that will enable you to punch him on the jaw."

A Ragtime Comment.
"The refrain," we said to our neighbor at the vaudeville performance while the popular band was being rendered, "is prettier than the verses."
"Yes," he agreed; "I wish he would refrain altogether."

HYPOSCOPE ENABLES SOLDIER TO SHOOT WITHOUT BEING SEEN.

An English clergyman has invented a device which enables a marksman to aim over walls, ramparts, etc., without exposing himself to the fire of the enemy. It is called the hyposcope. The device consists of an arrangement of mirrors in a vertical tube which reflect the sunlight and save the shooter from exposing his head to look along the barrel. At the National Rifle Association shoot at Bisley, England, the inventor astonished his audience by hitting his mark thirty-four times in thirty-five shots.

THE THANKFUL HEART.

Thou art not rich, thou art not poor; Thy fortune keeps the middle way; No like thy strength cannot endure, Apportioned to the passing day. Thou art not young, thou art not old, Yet calm thou seest thy years depart, And joys are thine a thousand fold— Because thou hast the thankful heart.

A thankful heart for life alone For beauty in the earth and sky— Your cousin's face is as radiant as a story-book lover's, and I am sure if your lawyer next him had as much assurance as Mr. Henry he would whisper in her ear how very beautiful she was. She is beautiful, too. She might be some great lady, in that costly gown and with that scornful air. Do you find it as hard as James Carrington to win a smile? She flashed an almost contemptuous look at him. (To be continued.)

Cousin Joshua's Will.

"Cousin Joshua is dead," said mother, unbuckling her jacket. "Cousin Joshua dead!" repeated Chloe, incredulously. "He lived to a good old age," remarked Celia, cheerfully. "At last," breathed Persis. "He left $150,000," went on mother, taking off her bonnet. "Dear Cousin Joshua," said Chloe, still more cheerfully. "And he was a bachelor and father's first cousin," said Chloe, oracularly. "Italy," sighed Persis, blissfully. "He left $100,000 to various churches, libraries and charitable organizations," said mother, sinking into her chair. "Well, that leaves $50,000," said Celia, a little less cheerfully. "The rest goes to the son of a dear friend of his youth, Charles Frederick Greyson," went on mother. "But what about his first cousin's children?" gasped Chloe. "To the children of his first cousin, your father," went on mother, as if she were reading from the will of the late Joshua, "he left the half-acre lot with the six-room cottage thereon, situated at Tyler's Crossing."

"The wretch!" cried Chloe. "It is all because you married papa, and he wanted you himself," snapped Celia. "Perhaps the six-room cottage on the half-acre lot contains one of those desks with a secret drawer concealing a fortune," said Persis, in whose breast "hope springs eternal." "I'm sorry for you, girls," said mother, "but you know Aunt Hannah always said that all we should ever get from Cousin Joshua was that 'put in our eye and see clear.'"

"We'll go to that six-room cottage in summer," said Persis. "A few months later mother and the three girls took the barge at Tyler's for the cottage. After riding a mile or two without passing any house, the driver stopped at the first of two weather-beaten cottages. "This 'ere's the old Josh Slocum place and 'olter's the Widder Basett's. She and her son's stagin' there now, so you'll have neighbors. There isn't any others for two miles away."

"Let us hope 'Widder' Basett's son is young and charming," said Persis, as they went into the cottage. The next morning as Persis was weeding what she termed their "Garden of Eden" (more let it be confessed in the ropes of seeing the "widder's son" than rom love of gardening), a snake glided across her path. The shrill, unearthly cry which came from her throat brought a young man over the dividing fence with as much celerity as even crabs could wish. "What is it? Can I be of service?" cried the young man, hastily lifting his ap. "Twas a snake! An enormous snake!" gasped Persis. "There it is now!" and a second cry rent the air. "A well-directed blow soon killed the invader of this second garden of Eden—a small, harmless, green reptile. "Are you sure that is the one? I certainly thought it must be a boa constrictor at least," said the young man, ying Persis and the snake rather drowsily. "You wouldn't stop to think whether it was one foot or one hundred if it was running under your skirts," said Persis, then stopped rather suddenly. "No," said the young man, soberly, "that would certainly alter the case."

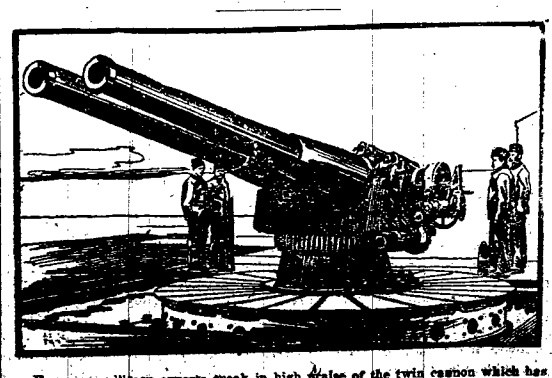

The two families became good friends, finding each other most congenial. "You would hardly suppose this small cottage represented $50,000 and a trip to Europe, would you?" asked Persis one afternoon, as she lay swinging in a hammock. "The best thing you can do," said Mrs. Bassett, after hearing the explanation, "is to find Charles Frederick Greyson and marry him. 'I wouldn't marry him if he had a million,' retorted Persis. "The idea of robbing a defenseless widow with three charming daughters." "Really, though," said Frederick Bassett, "I don't see how young Greyson is to blame."

"Well, he is," snapped Persis, with an air of finality. "I despise him. I shall marry some young struggling doctor or lawyer or—" and she stopped, blushing furiously, for it occurred to her that Frederick Bassett was a lawyer, although he did not appear to be struggling for fame just at present. The summer wore away, and as a natural sequence its close brought the engagement of Persis and the "widder's son."

"Persis," said Frederick one night, "do you think you could have confidence in one who had deceived you?" "Do you mean to say that you have deceived me?" said Persis, sitting up very straight. "Well—or that is, Persis—" "Are you married?" gasped Persis, with such a tragic air that the heartless young lawyer laughed. "No—not yet, Persis, but my mother was married twice, and I am the son of her first marriage. My name is—" "Don't say it is Smith," interrupted Persis; "anything but that." "My name," he went on, rather hurriedly, "is Charles Frederick Greyson." "Why, Fred Bassett!" cried Persis; "then you are Cousin Joshua's heir; and I always said—" "Never mind what you said. You didn't know what a nice fellow he was, did you?" "But why didn't you tell me before?" asked Persis. "Why, bless your heart, Persis, you always said you wouldn't marry Charles Frederick Greyson, and I have found you a person who knows her own mind quite thoroughly; but you were so adorably lovely I couldn't resist trying to win you as Frederick Bassett." "Well," said Persis, "I suppose I can forgive you, but—" "Of course you can," said Charles Frederick Greyson.—Indianapolis Sun.

LONG TOUR IN AUTOMOBILE.
Dr. Lehwess Has Set Out for Paris to Circle the Globe.
Dr. Lehwess, a naturalized Englishman of German birth, who lives in Paris, proposes to complete this cosmopolitanism by going around the world in an automobile. The doctor says the journey on which he set out from Paris is undertaken partly from love of motoring, partly because he wants material for a book, partly because of a keen financial interest in the prospects of increased trade between Russia and England following the completion of the Trans-Siberian railway. From Paris the route route proposed is as follows: Brussels, Cologne, Berlin, Warsaw, St. Petersburg, Moscow, Nihil Novgorod, Kasan, Omsk, Tomsk, Irkutsk, Krasnoyarsk, and then across the desert of Gobi to Pekin and Tien-Tsin, or by Nirchinsk, Ghabarov to Vladivostok, according to the political situation in

NOVEL TWIN CANNON.

European military experts speak in high praise of the twin cannon which has just been constructed in Germany. The two pieces can be fired from a single carriage, and that they occupy far less space than two separate pieces would occupy. Moreover, they can be fired with extreme rapidity, and either singly or at the same time as may be desired. Lieut. Col. Delauney, a French authority on modern guns, thinks very highly of the new weapon. "It combines," he says, "great efficiency as regards firing, with notable economy as regards weight, and though the present model is not of very large caliber, it is so constructed that the same principle will very soon be applied to the largest guns."

STEADY NONSENSE

Briggs—"What sort of a fellow is Willowsnap?" Griggs—"I don't know, I've only seen him when he was with his wife."—Puck.

Ho—"But she spends too much money." His wife—"No-o, I don't think so; but her husband doesn't make enough."—Brooklyn Life.

Ted—"Why are you so opposed to the small families of the rich?" Ned—"Our millionaires haven't daughters enough to go around."—Town Topics.

"The Governor—"I know French and German—" Mrs. Updodate—"That is not sufficient. I want some one who can teach my children Scotch."

Heard in a book-store: "I suppose that work in sixty volumes is an encyclopedia." "No; it is called 'The Love Letters of a Mormon Elder.'"—Smart Set.

Father—"In choosing a wife, one should never judge by appearances." Son—"That's right. Often the prettiest girls have the least money!"—Puck.

Nervous Employer—"Thomas, I wish you wouldn't whistle at your work." Office Boy—"I ain't working, sir; I'm only just whistling."—Boston Transcript.

Mac—"Where is Marron these days?" Editor—"He's out in the country writing a special article on how to keep cool in the city during the summer days."—Chelsea Gazette.

"Well, doctor, what's the matter with me?" the Anglomaniac patient asked. "Lumbago," replied the physician. "Good? Good?" "Yes, that's what King Edward has."—Pittsburg Chronicle.

"Your daughter is so very modest, Mrs. Dupont! Her eyes are always on the ground." "Yes, you see, her sister found a purse in the street one day, and she hopes to find one, too!"—Le Rire.

"Your daughter's taste in music is improving perceptibly," said the professor. "I think it must be," answered Mr. Higgins. "She doesn't try to play nearly as much as she did."—Washington Star.

Young Man (bitingly)—"Oh, of course. You can't keep anything a secret in this town. I did hope my engagement to be married wouldn't get out just yet." His friend—"Why did you tell the girl, then?"—Chicago News.

Two Irishmen were arguing—who was the cleverer. "Well," said Pat, "I'll bet you can't tell me what keeps bricks together." "Shure," said Mike, "it's mortar." "No," said Pat, "you are wrong; that keeps them apart."

Rev. Goodman—"I was surprised to see you playing golf last Sunday. I should think you would try to do better." Hardkiss—"O! I usually do much better. I was in wretched form last Sunday."—Philadelphia Press.

"Ping—"How did you come out on that stock deal last week?" Pong—"Lost $500. Ping—"But I thought you said a friend had given you a pointer." Pong—"So I thought—but it turned out to be a disappointment."—Chicago Daily News.

"What makes you so sure your composition will be a hit?" asked the publisher. "Because," answered the song writer, confidently, "my musical friends say the music is trash and my literary friends agree that the words are ton-anoyr."—Washington Star.

"Do you think it would improve my style?" inquired the "varsity man who had got into the crew through favoritism. "If I were to acquire a faster stroke?" "It would improve the crew," replied the candid trainer, "if you got a paralytic stroke."—Tit-Bits.

Brown—"I say, Dumley, Robinson has threatened that the first time he meets you he proposes to knock some sense into you. You'd better look out for him." Dumley (contemptuously)—"Poo! It would take a dozen men like Robinson to knock any sense into me."

Lady—"Here is a cent. Now, what are you going to do with it?" Weary Waggles—"Ah, mum, I'll be ver' sub'mit dat question to the Board of Directors of de Copper Trust. It wouldn't lo'er dump all dis metal outer de market at once widout considerin' de probable consequences."—Judge.

A stinging scold: Lone arrival (at summer resort)—"What are your terms here?" Hotel clerk—"Um—you will have to wait until the through express gets in. If it is loaded, our terms will be ten dollars a day. It is empty, we will pay you twenty-five cents an hour to sit on the porch and look happy."—New York Weekly.

"What it's coming to: 'I will have to have three more days out a week, and receive my company in the parlor,' said the cook-lady firmly. "Bridget," replied the mistress of the house, "I am not to push me too far. You seem to forget that I belong to the housewives' Union, No. 17."—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

"I—I trust you have forgiven me or not recalling your name the other evening, although I remembered you were perfectly." She—"Oh, yes, but my name is such a plain one I should think you would have remembered it quite readily." He—"Not at all; your name isn't half as plain as—er—beg pardon: your face is much more agreeable than your—I mean to say that our name is harder than—"

A Homemaker.
A woman to be the best homemaker needs to be devoid of intensive nerves. She must be neat and systematic, but not too neat-let her destroy the comfort she endeavors to create. She must be distinctly amiable, chile firm. She should have no "excess" or desire for a carpet if she could fill to perfection the space there. She must be affectionate, sympathetic and patient, and fully appreciative of the worth and ability of her men. Miss Webster.

requires physical and mental ability of a high degree to withstand its hard labors. The high tension to which the nervous system is constantly subjected, has a depressing effect, and soon headache, backache, neuralgia, rheumatism, sciatica, etc., develop in severe form. Such was the case of Mail Carrier S. F. Sweinhart, of Huntsville, Ala., he says:

"An attack of pneumonia left me with muscular rheumatism, headache, and pains that seemed to be all over me. I was scarcely able to move for about a month when I decided to give Dr. Miles' Pain Pills and Nerve Plasters a trial. A Communication.

Mr. Editor:—Allow me to speak a few words in favor of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I suffered for three years with the bronchitis and could not sleep at night. I tried several doctors and various patent medicines, but could get nothing to give me any relief until my wife got a bottle of this valuable medicine, which has completely relieved me.—W. S. Brockman, Bagwell, Missouri. This remedy is for sale at Raymond's Pharmacy.

Water Cure for Chronic Constipation.

Take two cups of hot water half an hour before each meal and just before going to bed, also a drink of water, hot or cold, about two hours after each meal. Take lots of outdoor exercise, walk, ride or drive. Make it a regular habit and in many cases chronic constipation may be cured without the use of any medicine. When a purgative is required take something mild and gentle like Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. For sale at Raymond's Pharmacy.

A Certain Cure for Dysentery and Diarrhoea.

"Some years ago I was one of a party that intended making a long bicycle trip," says F. L. Taylor, of New Albany Bradford county, Pennsylvania. "I was taken suddenly with diarrhoea and was about to give up the trip, when Editor Ward of the Laceyville Messenger, suggested that I take a dose of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. I purchased a bottle and took two doses, one before starting and one en route. I made the trip successfully and never felt any ill effects. Again, last summer I was almost completely run down with an attack of dysentery. I bought a bottle of this same remedy and this time one dose cured me." Sold at Raymond's Pharmacy.

Bad Wreck on the Branch.

A bad wreck occurred on the Bloomfield branch about two miles northwest of this city on last Thursday afternoon. Six freight cars and a passenger coach were derailed, all of which were more or less damaged. The freight cars were all loaded, two with oats, one with flour, one with wheat and two with produce, butter, eggs, etc., and all except the cars loaded with oats were smashed to kindling wood and the contents scattered along the track which was badly torn up for a distance of about 150 yards, the rails being twisted and many ties broken as though they had been teapicks. No one was injured. A broken axle under one of the freight cars was the cause of the accident. The track was soon cleared and trains were running the next day. This is the second bad wreck on this branch during the past year.

More Trouble at Carroll.

The vicinity of Carroll was the scene of another serious fracas last week. It seems that a party named Rasmussen living near that town some time ago leased a farm of J. T. Bressler and moved onto it. Later the farm was purchased by Richard Reece and some of the buildings having been blown down and somewhat damaged. Mr. Reece went out to the farm on last Thursday to make some disposition of the lumber when he was met by Mr. Rasmussen who told him that he (Rasmussen) had leased and was living on that place and asked Mr. Reece to get off the premises without delay. A free-for-all fight followed in which it seems the whole Rasmussen family went after Reece who picked up a 2x4 and proceeded to clobber them out, badly injuring the elder Rasmussen and a grown daughter. Reece was arrested and was brought to this city Friday and placed under a small bond to appear at a hearing to be held here on next Saturday. Although he does not seem to regret the trouble with Rasmussen Mr. Reece is very sorry of the occurrence on account of the daughter, who, we understand, is quite badly injured.

Cures Loss of Appetite.

Cascarine. Cure after all others have failed is the result of the experience of the wonderful remedy and relief generally from the distressing ailments that come from diseases of the liver, stomach, kidneys and bowels, are usually very pronounced in their manifestations. In pronounced symptoms the head aches, the backs grows weaker and more painful, patient becomes debilitated, the eyes duller and more lifeless, inability to sleep at night is more pronounced than ever, constipation, catarrh of the stomach, dyspepsia, inability to digest food, loss of appetite and all the distressing symptoms of diseased or inactive stomach and bowels, liver and kidneys become more aggravated and the sufferer feels more wretched and tired of existence than ever. You may take remedies and medicines which will relieve, perhaps, for a short time, but you cannot get rid of the trouble unless you effect the cure of what causes it. Cascarine will do this. Cascarine will regulate the liver and kidneys, cleanse and purify your stomach and bowels, and when that is done you cannot be a sufferer from these troubles because the cause of such suffering is removed. Do you suffer? Do you dread the aggravation of those sufferings during the coming months? You can be cured, and not for awhile, but forever. Cascarine will cure you in an incredibly short time, and you will be restored to the state in which you will be able to once more enjoy life. Don't delay a day. Cascarine, at drugists, 50 cents.

If one was to judge from the tone in which Childs and Ecker speak of the street fair held here recently he would think that two gentlemen had gone up against some shell game or other money loser that the rest of us were fortunate or wise enough to escape. You fellows ought to come to town often.

Are you thinking of going to Dakota? If so do not fail to see me before going. I have been making trips for the last three years into this country. I am thoroughly acquainted with the soil and the lay of the land and think I can save you some money and assist you in getting properly located.

J. P. Gaertner has the largest and best selected stock of goods in northeast Nebraska and the prices can't be beat. Bring in your catalogues for comparison and see how much better you can do at home, besides saving freight. Some of the cheap department stuff is dear as any price and after one experience you would not give it a second thought.

Henry Roher, living northeast of town in Dixon county had the misfortune to lose eleven head of cattle, that pastured on clover early last week. Just why, no one can tell, the weather was the same as usual and it was before the frosty nights. Chris Wischoff informed us they saved a couple of them but careful inquiry failed to locate the cause beyond the general one supposed to be due to clover.

While the Allan girls were badly beaten by the Wakefield girls, they can console themselves with the fact that all the newspapers said the Allan girls were the prettiest, which is certainly a great compliment for the Wakefield girls are an exceedingly pretty bunch, and were conceded to far surpass the Wayne team as to looks.—Allen News.

Well now, we like that. We thought a bunch of girls that would beat our basket ball team for good looks would be hard to find. And we think so yet.

The Sioux City Tribune of Friday has the following to say of the former Wayne band: "Sioux City has never had a street carnival at which the Wayne, Nebraska, band was not present. That organization was not only unusually strong, but was made up of the most willing men imaginable. They played early and late and always headed the jolliest of processions. The band has broken up and so cannot be here this year."
