Prof. R. Durbin has been at work for several weeks in improving his business place on Main street and has now finished it. Convenience for loading and unloading stones from wagons is first-class, the floor at the back end of the shop coming to the right height. Inside each of the three compartments open into each other by large double doors for the convenience of shifting large pieces of stone in the process of working them. Every facility for turning work out rapidly and with the ease that makes work enjoyable. A broad porch on the front and south side makes it quite inviting in all fair weather. These improvements are the result of the day in Wayne and in this case, too, the result of a fast growing business.

Prof. Durbin tells us he has orders for work and work in process of completion amounting to close to two thousand dollars, and we venture that if he solicited orders as agents do for this class of work he could make it ten times that in a few weeks. The fact is, however, that Prof. Durbin sells at prices a little too low to admit of agents' commissions and the people come to him from any place they hear of and know of his work.

The noted St Perkins solo orchestra of twelve skilled musicians, is the strongest ever presented to the public by a traveling company. One of the most necessary features for a first-class performance is the best of music rendered in an artistic manner—especially this so in St Perkins, running over with songs, dances, catchy music where a good orchestra is absolutely necessary.

James Britton has recently made a deal or two whereby he has purchased all but two shares of the opera house stock, P. L. Miller and Mrs. Jones still holding theirs. These parties have arranged to fix up the building at once. New paint and paper will be applied, and the windows will be fixed up the lower sash being closed. This will make it very nice and many attractions will come here that heretofore have passed us up.

Rev. C. N. Dawson is in the city and expects his household goods tomorrow and will forthwith make himself at home with us. Of course he will live in the M. E. parsonage as he is to be pastor of that church. He comes here direct from Omaha where for fourteen years he has worked in the clerical field. He is a man of pleasing personality and easily approached and we predict a pleasant sojourn for him in this city. Services at the usual hour next Sunday.

G. H. Darnell had a little fire last week, burning out the floor of his bake oven. This is being repaired and by the latter part of this week he will be fixed better than ever. "St Perkins" the celebrated rural drama, is billed to appear at Wayne on next Monday evening. Judging from the flattering notices which the company has received from the press in the cities which it has visited, the prospect for fun on the above date is good.

"St Perkins" the great rural drama, with Sam J. Burton, America's leading Yankee dialect comedian, heading the organization, is the next attraction at the opera house. The celebrated "St Perkins" band will give a street parade, October 13 is the date. Prices 25, 35, 50 cents.

James Britton, the fusion nominee, says he and Gregg will have to pull straws to see who will go to Lincoln as representative. We protest, that won't do. Jim is all right, he would make a good representative and would be one of the best of 'em in the house, but Jim needs a clean, new bill of lading before we send him down to Lincoln. He ought to cut loose from fusion—it is bad company for a fellow otherwise as level headed as Jim is.

PROMISE TO MINERS

ROOSEVELT UNDOUBTEDLY HAS DECIDED ON ONE.

Another Conference at the White House Sunday—All of Those Present Decline Absolutely to Discuss What Took Place at the Meeting.

A Washington special says: In an earnest effort to expedite the adjustment of the coal strike problem, another conference over the situation was held at the White House Sunday, and adjourned after three hours of deliberation. No statement was given out as to the conclusions reached, and every participant absolutely refused to discuss what had taken place during the meeting. The conference was called for Sunday in view of the extraordinary importance to the American people of a speedy solution of the question. Besides the president, there were present at the conference Secretary of War Root, Secretary of the Navy Moody, Attorney General Knox, Postmaster General Payne and Colonel Carroll D. Wright, United States Commissioner of Labor.

The last named was summoned to attend the conference on account of his expert knowledge of the situation in the anthracite coal fields, and because of his personal investigation of the conditions there which he made some months ago at the instance of the president.

It was notable that only four of the members of the cabinet were present. This, however, was significant only of the fact that three of these four were lawyers, and that the issue involved was one which called for the deliberation of trained legal minds.

The fourth cabinet member, Postmaster General Payne, has taken a prominent part in the preliminary conferences over the coal situation which led up to the conference with the railroad presidents and miners' representatives Friday, and besides has had a lifelong identification with corporate interests which are involved in the present question.

When the conference adjourned, a few minutes before 1 o'clock, all those who had joined in it declined to talk. Every member of the cabinet and Col. Wright, the only outsider who was present, was pledged to the president to absolute secrecy as to what had occurred within the conference room.

BLOWN UP WITH DYNAMITE.

The Philadelphia and Reading Track is Destroyed.

A Tamaqua, Pa., special states: At an early hour Sunday morning a section of track on the Silver Creek branch of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad was blown up with dynamite. The explosion shook the houses in New Philadelphia and Silver Creek.

When the workmen's train reached the scene of the explosion Sunday morning a force of fifty deputies was on hand to escort them to the colliery.

Sunday night the officials of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company learned that a plot was on foot to tear up the New Jersey Central tracks at a certain point. Two companies of the Thirteenth Regiment guarded the tracks all night.

CUT OFF THEIR FINGERS.

Illinois Convicts Mutilate Themselves Rather Than Work.

A Chester, Ill., dispatch says: Rather than perform the heavy work assigned to them, John Reagon and C. Rose, two convicts in the southern Illinois penitentiary at this place, with a rusty hatchet cut off three fingers from the right hand of each, thereby incapacitating themselves from further work. Both men claim to be in poor health.

After they were discovered with their mutilated, bleeding hands, they were sent to the prison surgeon, who bound up their wounds. Then the two men were taken out into the prison yard and compelled to stand on a block the remainder of the day.

INSANE MAN KILLED.

Cook in a Lumber Camp Fires in Self Protection.

A Marquette, Wis., dispatch says: The insane man who was supposed to have shot and killed John Kouche, a St. Paul fireman, who was fatally wounded in his cab last week while the train was speeding along at thirty-five miles an hour, was killed Saturday twenty-five miles west of Wausau.

Otoe Wenzel, a cook in a lumber camp, shot him as he was coming toward the camp.

TOY TRUST.

A Pawtucket, R. I., special says: A proposed combine of forty concerns throughout the country engaged in the manufacture of toys, games and novelties, is to be joined by a large manufacturing company of Pawtucket. The combination is understood to involve a capitalization of $10,000,000.

The Big Fire at Amoy.

A Shanghai special says: News received here from Amoy says the fire which has been raging there has spread to the British concession. Three foreign warehouses and the custom house were burned.

Big Failure in Russia.

A dispatch from Odessa, Russia, says: The failure of the great metallurgical works at Kerch for $9,000,000 caused a flutter on the stock markets, and has resulted in putting idle 5,600 men.

La Soufrière Threatens Again.

A advises from Kingston, Island of St. Vincent, state: After a period of tranquility, La Soufrière showed signs of disturbance again Wednesday. There was a slight eruption at 6 o'clock at night. Thursday the volcano resumed its quietude.

American Locomotives the Best.

A Wellington, N. Z., special says: After having made exhaustive trials of American and British built locomotives on the government railways, the officials report that the best results have been achieved with the former.

EFFORT WAS FUTILE.

Conference at White House Results in No Agreement.

A Washington, D. C., special states: Great disappointment is felt here over the failure of the president's efforts to end the anthracite strike. It was hoped when he summoned the coal operators and the head of the striking miners to meet him that it would lead to a speedy resumption of mining in the hard coal regions. Apparently no good has resulted from the conference held here Friday. Indeed, they may result in stiffening the opposing lines and indefinitely postpone an amicable settlement of the controversy.

The operators' only proposition was that the miners return to work as individuals and refer their grievances to the judges of the local courts, whose decisions would be respected.

Mr. Mitchell and his advisers rejected this proposition. They proposed that the differences be referred to a committee of arbitration appointed by the president, the miners meantime returning to work and to remain at work even if the committee decided against them.

The operators rejected this, saying they would consider no proposition emanating from Mitchell.

This situation left the conference nothing to do except to adjourn.

Since adjournment it has been alleged that the bituminous coal operators were encouraging the anthracite strikers by contributions of money in order that they may profit by extending the market and increasing the use of soft coal. If this is so it adds a serious complication to an already very grave situation.

Constitutional lawyers here say that the situation is one that can only be dealt with effectively by Pennsylvania; that as the mines lie wholly within that state it is Gov. Stone and the legislature, and not President Roosevelt and congress that must handle it.

RIOTING NEAR WILKESBARRA

News from Washington has a Depressing Effect.

A Wilkesbarre, Pa., dispatch says: The news from Washington that no agreement was reached at the conference Friday had a depressing effect on all interests here.

Some of the local operators who were interviewed think that the miners, knowing that all hope of arbitration seems to be gone, will gradually return to work.

The strike leaders are of the opinion that the struggle will continue, and that cold weather will yet compel the operators to make concessions.

Some excitement was caused Friday by a row near the Nottingham mine. A negro deputy was assaulted by a party of strikers, and shot one of them in the abdomen. The mob threatened to tear down the stockade and lynch the negro, but the prompt arrival of six companies of the troops restored order.

MAYBURY STILL HOPES.

Expects Some Good Results from Conference in Detroit.

A Detroit, Mich., special says: Upon receiving from Secretary Cortelyou Friday night a brief message announcing the result of the conference in Washington, Mayor Maybury wired the following reply:

"Many thanks for courtesies extended. We all deeply regret that the kindly intervention of the president was unsuccessful. The conference called to meet at Detroit, Thursday, October 9, will surely assemble, and we earnestly hope that out of the deliberations may come such results as will stay the calamity which now threatens the comfort, health, and even the lives of our citizens."

IGNORES INJUNCTION.

Girl Marries Man of Her Choice, Despite Order of Court.

A New York special says: Miss Helen DeLong of Scranton, Pa., despite a court injunction, has married DeWitt Tewsgury at the home of her aunt in Brooklyn. The bride's father, a wealthy merchant, opposed the match and secured last Friday a temporary injunction against his daughter, who is not 21 years old. On Tuesday the writ was continued and, accompanied by her mother, the bride came to Brooklyn, where she was married despite the Pennsylvania courts' order.

Rich Ore Land in Illinois.

A Harrisburg, Ill., special says: The organization of the Big Four Zinc and Prospecting Company here Wednesday divulgued one of the richest and finest mineral beds in the United States, consisting of zinc, lead and spar. The land in the hills of Saline County now owned by the company are found to contain resin jack, carbonate of zinc, and it is believed that silver and lead will be found

BOLD BANK ROBBERY.

Citizens of Norman, Neb., See Burglars Steal $1,000.

A Minden, Neb., special says: The safe in the bank at Norman, eight miles southeast of this place, was blown open by robbers before daylight Thursday morning. The robbers, four in number, secured about $1,000 in cash at a time, and in one case $25 was asked.

ONE CENT A POUND FOR COAL.

Some New York Dealers Charge More Than That.

A New York special, dated Thursday, states: The coal situation in New York is no better, and must be described as worse on account of the increasing fear that relief may not come before much suffering has resulted.

The supply of hard coal in the temperance districts is now at such a low ebb that dealers are charging their customers a trifle over 1 cent a pound for this article.

Owners of flats and office buildings are in a state bordering on a panic. A number said Thursday that they were unable to get more than a ton of coal at a time, and in one case $25 was asked.

EXPLOSION OF FIRE DAMP.

Three Bodies Taken Out—Nine More Supposed to Be in the Mine.

A Black Diamond, Wash., special says: An explosion of fire damp occurred Thursday night in the south end of the fourth level of the Lawson mine, badly wrecking the mine and killing twelve miners.

Fortunately no fire was started. Three bodies have been taken out. There are supposed to be nine more bodies in the mine. Three men were injured, one badly.

The Pacific Coast Company is the owner of the mine. Everything possible is being done to recover the bodies.

The fourth level is 1,600 feet below the surface. As soon as it was known that the accident had occurred the people of Black Diamond hurried to the scene of the disaster, one mile from here.

The fans are now working in the mine, and the deadly air is being cleared out.

A Parkersburg, W. Va., dispatch says: Five persons were killed and three injured in a head-on collision between two freight trains in a tunnel near Cornwallis, on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Thursday.

The trains carried several cars of cattle, and the animals were all killed or injured. Probably twenty cars were wrecked, and the tunnel is filled with debris.

Fred Pearce, engineer of one train, William Miller, brakeman, and a brakeman were killed.

It is thought others are in the tunnel, and two bodies can be seen, but are beyond reach.

ACCIDENT AT MARYSVILLE, MO.

Two Hundred Persons Injured by Collapse of Seats in a Tent.

At Maryville, Mo., fifteen hundred people were thrown several feet to the ground Thursday night by the collapse of the reserve seats in a tent where a show given by local talent was in progress.

Two hundred were injured, some seriously. J. C. Donnelly, ex-mayor of Maryville, was badly injured, having a number of bones broken.

Miss Rose Montgomery of Boleogow, Mo., sustained injuries in the back which will probably prove fatal.

An unknown child was so badly hurt that it cannot recover.

Dozens of others were removed to their homes immediately, a few of whom may die.

ENGINEER FOUGHT BRAVELY.

Kills One Robber, Wounds Others and Himself is Wounded.

A Williamsport, Pa., special says: Five masked men Thursday morning battered in the door of the Montoursville, Pa., Electric Company's power house with the supposed intention of overpowering the engine and looting a safe in the office. Engineer Adam Bly, hearing the noise made by the robbers breaking down the door, secured a revolver and opened fire, killing one robber and wounding two others.

During the fight Bly was shot twice in the hip and leg. He will recover.

Bly managed to reach the whistle, and sounded an alarm. The robbers escaped.

END NOT IN SIGHT.

Anthracite War to Go Right On, Each Side Standing Firm.

REACH NO AGREEMENT

President Roosevelt's Effort to End Coal Strike Is Fruitless.

Operators Refuse to Arbitrate with Miners, but Demand Troops to Restore Peace—Two Stormy Conferences Held at White House in Washington—The Miners Offer Peace Plan and Are Continued—Both Sides Talk Right Out in Meeting.

A private and complete failure to settle the great anthracite coal strike met the efforts of President Roosevelt Friday, and when two stormy conferences, held at the White House in Washington were concluded the solution of the labor dispute seemed further off than ever.

President Mitchell, representing the striking miners, offered to submit the entire question to a board of arbitration appointed by the President, who was asked to be a member of the board, and to abide by its decision, even if every point should be decided against the miners.

The coal presidents summarily and with some bitterness rejected the offer and demanded of the President that he impose anarchy in the coal regions, and declared they never would talk with Mitchell.

Summary of the Conference.

The rock upon which the conference stalled was recognition of the miners' union. The President urged the contending parties to cease strife in the interests of the public welfare.

The miners, through the president of their union, expressed a willingness to submit differences to arbitration of a tribunal to be named by the President and to enter into an agreement to abide by terms fixed by the arbitration for a period of from one to five years; and the employers, through the presidents of the railroad and coal companies and a leading independent mine operator, squarely refused arbitration, denounced the miners' labor organization as a lawless and anarchistic body with which they could and would have no dealings, demanded federal troops to insure complete protection to workers and their families in the mining region and court proceedings against the miners' union, and offered, if the men returned to work, to submit grievances at individual collieries to the decision of the judges of the Court of Common Pleas for the district of Pennsylvania, in which the colliery was located.

The President asked Mr. Mitchell if he would agree to submit the questions to these courts, and he said "No."

Verdicts Announced Used.

The final session was a stormy one. President Roosevelt did not look up from his desk to the attitude of the coal presidents and did not hesitate to say so in no uncertain manner, as characteristic of him. President Mitchell rested on the attacks under the men he represented, and the coal presidents then elaborated and magnified the charges made in their statements.

Every one spoke right out in meeting, said one of the officials, "and it remained me of the Senate chamber during bitter debate. By my word, so much importance did he not realize how vicious was the language used."

From the time the second conference opened until shortly after 5 o'clock this heated argument continued. At the meeting the labor representatives and the Presidents were in a speculative mood, but the coal presidents evidently did not intend to yield an inch, and threw down the gauntlet by making a searching attack on the miners.

Mr. Mitchell made a most favorable impression. He was cool, calm, self-controlled, and during the invectives made against him by the coal presidents, he was earnest and forceful in the presentation of the miners' side of the controversy and resented with dignity the attacks made upon him. He was the spokesman for the miners, and his three colleagues who were present by courtesy did not open their lips.

The coal Presidents were exicted, even after the conference adjourned. When they arrived there were smiling and confident, but upon leaving, their faces were flushed and their humor was apparent. On leaving the mansion, they passed through a line of humanity, plentifully sprinkled with newspaper men, who fired a volley of questions at them. They declined to answer, and would not indicate if any conclusion had been reached.

MR. PEARY AND HER BABY

"TRUSTEE OF PROVIDENCE."

G. F. Baer, the man who was determined Miners Should Yield. George F. Baer, the self-proclaimed "capitalist by divine right," is president of the great Reading Railroad, coal and iron companies. He was elected to these important offices a little more than one year ago in succession to Joseph S. Harris, who retired at that time. This great captain of industry holds vast interests in probably a score of great enterprises and is the employer of nearly 5,000 men. He began life as a comparatively poor man, but his extraordinary talents for financing properties soon brought him to the front.

Mr. Baer is regarded as a sincerely religious man. No matter what business may be occupying him, he never misses church on Sundays. In person Mr. Baer is tall and slender. He is the incarnation of nervous force, and this, in fact, shows throughout his whole career. He is a deliberate talker, but low spoken; forceful but mild, and he never fails to give the impression of a man who is perfectly self-contained and with a tremendous reserve force.

Miss Edith Helena of New York is said to be able to reach a higher note than ever was attained by any singer. She excels Patti Nilsson or Beach Yaw. She has rendered F sharp in a tristino, a note that has been considered almost beyond human power. Her voice also has another extraordinary quality. She is able to imitate the violin with such accuracy the audience is startled. She appears on the stage with a violin, going through the motions of playing the intermezzo from "Cavalleria Rusticana." The audience believes the music is coming from the instrument until the hand of tuning the bow drops to the young woman's side, the strains continuing. In this performance she keeps her lips nearly closed, which increases the illusion. In private life Miss Helena is Mrs. Edith Helena Jennings.

PRESIDENT'S WOUND OPENED.

Surgeons Find Bone Slightly Affected

—Early Recovery Predicted.

President Roosevelt submitted to another operation on the abscess on his left leg Sunday. In the first operation at Indianapolis a simple needle was used to relieve the trouble, but Sunday the surgeons used a knife, making an incision into the small cavity. The bone was exposed and carefully examined under a microscope. It was found to be slightly affected. The physicians believe that this operation will hasten the President's complete recovery.

The surgeons agreed that it would be better to open the cavity, drain its contents and establish complete drainage for the future. A local application of cocaine was made in the region surrounding the cavity instead of giving the President an anesthetic and Dr. Rixey performed the operation.

It was a very simple operation, one which is performed many hundreds of times a day for the relief of persons who, in popular parlance, have "popped their shins." Its importance in the President's case is magnified by reason of the public position which he fills.

The effect of the operation will be to permit the wound to heat from the bottom, which is the best way, according to the surgeons, for wounds to heal. If it had been permitted to remain in the condition in which the surgeons at Indianapolis left it, the healing process would have been slow and unsatisfactory. All the doctors agree that it is likely now to be very rapid. They agree also in stating that there is not even a remote probability of other complications, such as blood-poisoning.

TO COUNT FILIPINOS.

Uncle Sam to Undertake a Census of All the Islands.

A census of the entire Philippine archipelago is to be undertaken, and before the end of the present year the first complete count of the inhabitants ever taken, and the only one since that of the Spaniards in 1857, will be made.

The formal order to carry out the law has not as yet been issued, although the papers are all ready for the President's signature. The schedules have come to Washington from Manila and have been approved. The regular census bureau in Washington will undoubtedly tabulate and publish the results of the census, but the enumeration, it is believed, can best be undertaken by the force to be organized for the purpose in the islands, it being essential that persons familiar with the localities and prevailing language and dialects should be employed. The expense will be borne by the insular treasury.

It is expected that such a careful census as is contemplated will settle many disputed questions about the population of the islands, which are thought to contain over 7,000,000 inhabitants, and particularly in regard to the vital statistics, the death rate and the rate of increase or decrease in the population.

Nicholas Fish, the well-known New York banker, who was found fatally injured in front of a saloon, and who expired at Roosevelt hospital, was a member of the distinguished family of that name and a man of high position on account of his wealth and business prominence. BANKER FISH.

Henry Watterson, whose bitter attacks on the 400 of New York have roused comment and criticism throughout the entire country, is the dean of the Southern press. He was born in Washington in 1840 while his father was a member of Congress and was educated almost wholly by private tutors. He has been editor of the Courier-Journal for many years and has preferred that position to a membership in Congress and to other offices which might have been his at any time he cared to take them. Mr. Watterson is widely known for strong opinion will be strong in favor of its adoption that both the miners and mine owners will be forced to make concessions and end a situation which has become intolerable.

If moral influence is not successful then the President will resort to legal means and every law upon the statute books which has any bearing on the situation will be invoked for the purpose of bringing about a resumption of work in the mines and giving relief to the people. Just what the powers of the federal government in the premises are will necessitate a thorough search of the statutes to determine and instructions have been given by the President to the Attorney General to prepare to make a winning fight against the coal companies.

It may be necessary to call an extra session of Congress. An extraordinary session of Congress will be called if there are no other means to reach the trouble. Attorney General Knox, who will devote his time to this important question to the exclusion of everything else, is of the opinion that laws already exist which can be utilized in forcing a cessation of the strike.

Few-Line Interviews.

I pity the creature who does not work at which end of the social scale he may regard himself as being.—President Roosevelt.

It has been the history of strikes among the miners in the past when the passions of the strikers have been roused to a high pitch that as a result there has been violence following violence, until finally the trouble has broken and the men returned to work.—President Baer.

A few years ago a soldier received an honorable discharge and drew $1000 from his savings and interest and another soldier, who had received the same amount, deposited it with the government. During the last fiscal year the government deposited with the Department of War $100,000,000 in savings and interest.

The strike will end when the men come back on their own accord and on the terms on which they worked before the outbreak of the strike. In no other manner can this strike be ended.—President Roosevelt.

The American soldier is coming to be a thrifty person, who saves his money and uses the government of the United States as a depository. A long time ago, when rates for money ranged from 5 to 6 per cent, a law was passed by Congress authorizing the War Department to take deposits from soldiers and pay interest on them at the rate of 4 per cent.

Of course, at the time that was a low rate of interest, but in these days of 2 and 3 per cent from the savings banks it is a very high rate. For a few years after the law was passed the savings fund amounted to almost nothing. Then the soldiers realized that this was an exceptionally good way of saving, and many of them started accounts with the government.

The people prefer to bank their votes with the party of action rather than with the party which only promises.

The current market quotations for farm products of all sorts make the best possible Republican campaign literature.

When the Democratic party returned from its free silver excursion it found itself almost exterminated, and now the free trade excursion will complete the work of extinction.

Every shot fired thus far in the present campaign by the Democrats has been a blank cartridge. In fact the party seems to be making a sort of sham battle.

An appeal has gone out from the Democratic Congressional Headquarters at Washington for more speakers. That is strange in view of the fact that the orators have already talked all the "issues" to death. Perhaps they are needed for post-mortem contingencies.

There is one great danger that must be guarded against by all Republicans in the present campaign—that is apathy and over confidence. No reasonable man will doubt the success of the Republican cause, yet it is always well to be on the safe side, and every vote cast is an endorsement of prosperity. This much you owe the country.

If any hesitating voter is in doubt as to the material prosperity of the country under Republican rule, let him take heed of these four measures, which are indisputable. Increase in the volume of business transacted, increase in the output of industrial plants, increase in the earnings of industrial workers, and increase in the savings of the people. These all apply to this nation at the present time, and it is for a continuance of them that the splendid institution of Republicanism is striving.

PROF. F. M. GREGG FOR REPRESENTATIVE.

As we stated last week this gentleman has been selected to make the campaign for representative of the 17th district comprised of Wayne and Stanton counties. This was a most wise and judicious choice for several reasons: Prof. Gregg is a man of highest qualifications fitted by experience as a splendid parliamentarian, and organizer, and as a business man of the best type. He is one of the permanent residents of Wayne county whose interests are identical to those in common with other property owners and his several years residence here engaged always in work of advancement material and physical as well as moral and intellectual. Another reason: Prof. Gregg is well informed in all those essential points wherin Wayne and the normal school question is concerned. He is such an one as will protect our interests when the matter comes up, as it very surely will, this winter and continually thereafter until it is settled. Wayne will profit or lose in this by the alertness of our representative and in having named Prof. Gregg with the fullest approval of Stanton county we may feel pleased to present him to the progressive and liberal voters of this district as a man most worthy of their support and confidence. Stanton county deferred to Wayne county in all these questions, they are that generous and whole hearted that they wish us to do the best we can. We wish to assure them in return that in Prof. Gregg they will have a representative who will be faithful in every way to their every interest. Prof. Gregg accepts the nomination in the spirit of a duty to his party and fellow citizens, he will avail himself of every opportunity to meet the voters of the district in the short time remaining before election.

THE MAN WHO WAS MUSTERED OUT....

BY LEO CRANE

Copyright, 1901, by Leo Crane.

And big Connelly, the man with an intense longing for home, bent down his head and walked with a swagger to the far end of the town.

* * * * *

The next morning, when the bugle called the men of the Twelfth from the dingy white huts, they sprang forth with alacrity.

"We're a mighty slim crowd compared to all that came up, ain't we?"

"Well, I should say! There was Sam Johnson and Jerry Patterson, Bill Williams, Harry Carter—but what's the use in countin' 'em—all gone, and good boys, too, all good boys. But then, that's what we 'listed fur."

"And we're the lucky dogs! I wouldn't be one of them fellers what's come to relieve us—no, not for a cool million. Would you, Connelly?"

"I don't know," replied Connelly wearily.

"You don't know?"

"No, I don't know."

Then the bugle blared again. The tall man turned and walked to the lieutenant and saluted:

"Well, Connelly?"

"I—I think I'd like to stay and enlist with the other regiment sir—and—"

"Stay out the war. You see?"

The face of the lieutenant became as a stone mask and for a moment he stared fixedly. Then, remembering his rank, he said kindly:

"If you think so, Connelly, you may report to Major Southern."

The Twelfth marched out and the last man, looking back from a distant hill saw a forlorn figure watching by the old gate. He waved a last farewell to the man in the sun painted landscape. A fellow by his side started to hum again the song of the swinging meter:

"Oh, we're goin' home! We're goin' home!"

"Our ship is at—"

"Oh, shut up!" growled out the man.

The skeleton of the Twelfth, minus one of the larger bones, marched on in silence.

And big Connelly, the man with an intense longing for home, bent down his head and walked with a swagger to the far end of the town.

"Oh, we're goin' home! We're goin' home!"

"Our ship is at—"

"Do you mean San Pedro or do you mean the real home?" asked another.

"Why, I mean home, across the water, where the people are of the white brand, and where there's hot biscuits, and a bed, and clean water and girls. Oh! I meant home!"

Harrison looked at the man and shook his head strangely.

"Don't git that way often, Parsons; it affects the head so."

"But I had a dream last night and we were all goin' home."

"Funny dream, that," said Martin.

"What you want is a good stiff dose of quinine—somethin' like twenty-five grains."

"No doubt the poor lad's nerves are gone," said another, "all jangled and out of tune."

"Wish I could dream, though," growled Connelly. "There's lots of things I'd dream about—there's—" But Connelly broke off with a murmur in his throat. The things he would dream about were evidently not for the ears of the regiment.

"You'd dream about what?" asked a man.

"But his question went unanswered.

The straggly line of men emerged from the shadow and came to where they could see the white huts of San Pedro glaring in the tropical sun.

"Seems to me there's somethin' a-goin' on down there," said Martin.

"There just is that," replied Harrison, shading his eyes from the sun and gazing at the town's gate.

"Derped if I don't believe it's the reserve that's comin' up."

"Too good to be true, and, besides, Parsons, you're always believin' and dreamin' things."

"But if it is maybe we'll go to some place farther down the coast. Maybe we'll see somethin' new. Maybe—"

"Well, ain't you done with may-bein'?"

The tall man looked at the questioner and replied slowly:

"And maybe we'll go home!"

It seemed to stun the lot of them. One gasped and turned pale. Home! They had never given that a thought. Home? While the rebels were yet hidin' in the bush and the war in progress? Then a fellow who never did anything of note before began to sing to a wonderful tune of his own:

"We're goin' home! We're goin' home!"

"Our ship is at the starry track,

Fur we won't come back no more,

Oh, we won't come back no more, my boy,

We won't come back no more!"

and the whole rank took up the burden of the chorus:

"Oh, we won't come back no more, my boy,

We won't come back no more!"

With a quickened step, born of the swinging meter of the song, the Twelfth marched to the town's little gate. The hot sun, the tropical smell, the petty ill's and the quinine were all forgotten in their curiosity to learn why strange sentry paced forward and back before the place. Like so many statues they waited for the lieutenant to reappear from the commander's hut. He came out with a smile on his face.

"The Twelfth is mustered out!"

A yell went skyward that made the vines rustle, and above all the rest big Connelly bawled:

"Hurrah! Hurrah! We're goin' home!"

* * * * *

Five men surrounded a pair of the new guard and begged from them an old newspaper.

"Look here, Connelly!"

"What? Newspapers? Gimme one!

"What a find! A newspaper!"

"Spose you almost forgot there was such a thing."

"Perhaps. See if there's anything from home."

"Home? Where d'you live anyway,

"Gloucester."

"Why, that's in Massachusetts."

"Of course, dummyhouse! Look fer the news, will you?"

"What's the date? Five months old,

this paper! Gloucester—Gloucester—here 'tis—Gloucester:

"Man killed at the town hall last night—abt that's what I call 'an interesting piece of news, seemin' as we don't know what a killin' is. George Hall convicted of stealin' from Nathan Forrest—that sounds like home—Marriage—that's very homelike—Bill Thompson dead; leaves forty thousand dollars." That's all, Connelly, from Gloucester."

"Humph! Who's married?"

"Lemme see—Miss Bessie Williams and—"

"You lie! Let me see that!"

"What in the name of nation is the matter with you, Connelly?"

"Lived!" exclaimed the embittered trager.

The Boy and the Farm.

How often we hear parents discourage the boys who wish to stay on the farm! They refer to farm work as drudgery and that which tends to make them slaves to work rather than independent men. The biggest boys are educated for professional men and in many instances excel, but the vast majority of these, with a good practical education such as can be gained in our schools of agriculture, would become wealthy, progressive farmers, with fine farms and beautiful homes, if they had been encouraged and advised to be a peculiar variety of basalt found in the mountains to the north of China.

The Chinese King.

The king is the favorite musical instrument in Chinese temples. In its most perfect form it consists of a number of large flat stones of different shapes and tones. The sound is that of a chime of bells and is singularly clear and musical. The stones are said to be a peculiar variety of basalt found in the mountains to the north of China.

The Whole Thing.

Seedman—I saw your advertisement in this morning's paper and I've called to see what you'd give me for these half dozen volumes."

PHIL H. KOHL.

D. C. Taugh, of Earlham, Iowa, is the gentleman who has purchased the Everham farm. He gets it for $60 per acre and it close to a cash deal we understand. Mr. Taugh is an acquaintance of G. W. Albee who arranged the deal. He will take possession towards March and as yet has not decided whether he will live upon the place or lease it. Mr. Everham will sell his personal effects and go to his recent Iowa purchases where he will be nearer relatives. We lose a mighty fine citizen, while we gain one with the same reputation. We hope each one makes a thousand or two on the deal.

PHIL H. KOHL.

Dr. J. M. Alden, the republican candidate for representative in this district was a Wayne visitor today. He is a very pleasant gentleman to meet and has several acquaintances among the residents here.

William Mertz and Miss Louisa Koch were married at the Linedenker home in the east part of town on last Saturday evening. The groom has been a resident of the city for some time, having been employed as harness-maker in the shop of Wm. Pleinstock. The bride is a niece of Mrs. Linedenker. This paper joins in wishing the young couple much joy.

Noticing the feather renovator men doing business here, we call to mind gentlemen in this business who carry a pill box full of moths to dope the sample of feathers they induced the housewife to show them. These fellows we knew also traded cheap hen feathers for nice duck and goose feathers to a large extent. They swindled people to a fine turn. These people may be doing a straight business, we only advise our readers to keep their eyes open.

Married.

Today occurs the weddings of Geo. H. Stringer and Miss Retta Perdue, and Rollie Ley and Miss Pearl Reynolds. None of the contracting parties need any introduction to our readers as all have grown from childhood to manhood and womanhood in our midst and are well known and highly respected by all who have the pleasure of being within the large circle of their acquaintance.

Geo. Stringer is the youngest son of Mark Stringer, Sr., for years a resident of this place, but now of Lincoln. The young man has been in the blacksmith business here for years, having recently purchased the interest of his father in the shop on West First street and now operates it alone. He is a hard working and industrious young man and he and his bride deserve the best wishes of all. The bride, Miss Retta Perdue, is the daughter of James Perdue, one of our best and most prosperous farmers, living just southeast of the city, and is a lady beloved by all.

Rollie Ley is the son of Mayor Henry Ley, of this city, and is a rising young banker at present acting as cashier of the State bank of Wayne. He is a young man, well known and highly esteemed by everyone, while Miss Reynolds is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Reynolds, formerly of this city, but now of Fullerton, and was formerly one of the leading teachers of this county.

The latter couple will be married at high noon today at the home of the bride's parents at Fullerton and the Stringer-Perdue wedding will occur at the Perdue home this evening at 8 o'clock. Both couples will become residents of this city and THE REPUBLICAN joins the hosts of friends in welcoming them to our midst, and in extending to the contracting parties our best wishes for a long and happy wedded life.

Misses McLaughlin and Palmer the Grammer and Intermediate teachers at Winside spent Saturday and Sunday visiting at the College.

Messrs. Ramsey & Needham spent Sunday visiting their parents at Winside and—well it isn't best to tell all you know about anything, so I won't tell who else they were visiting.

Miss Bellows left Saturday for Madison county where she will teach this year. The school district that secured her to teach their school may congratulate themselves. She was an exemplary student and she will be fully as strong in her teaching.

Mr. A. E. Littell passed through Wayne Saturday 3:15 p. m. and when interrogated as to his destination replied that he was on his way to Wakefield to attend the Teachers' Association that met there, we think Saturday a. m. We can readily agree with him that he was going to "teachers' meeting" but as to where and the number of teachers present we will resume the privilege of forming our own opinions.

Buying Clothes For Boys

THE modern boy is a boy that's skipped boyhood—he comes into the world almost a man—anyhow, in so far as his tastes are concerned. He wants to do what his father does, wear what his father wears, and it most always happens that he gets what he goes in for. So, when it comes to buying clothes for him, the father or mother is pretty apt to get lost in a maze of myriad styles and uncertain qualities. Each maker of boys' clothing has his own ideas of what's right, and each pursues his own ideas as what he considers quite the right ones. The average mother buys more by sight than she does by feel. She often seems to think that what looks good must be good; but in this she is frequently and sadly mistaken. She loses sight of the fact that poor cloth and bungling workmanship may be and are often disguised by the very things that tickle her vision. That this sort of thing may be avoided and that any and all buyers may be certain to get what's right in spite of themselves, we have safeguarded the matter all around by buying only such clothes for boy's clothing from the largest and best maker. Consequently we offer you a better, a more varied and extensive assortment to choose from. This positively insures exceptional style, cut and workmanship of every item in our stock; that the garments are fit for the most critical buyers. In short, the boys' clothes we sell are as near perfect as it is possible for skilled tailors to make them, and you can make no mistakes in what you buy here.

Why Is It?

That music teachers or piano tuners cannot get a commission for recommending Chickering?

That competitors who cannot get them to sell are continually advertising Chickering pianos?

That Chickering agents 50-40-20-10 years ago are Chickering agents today?

That the largest and finest music stores in New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Pittsburgh, Denver, San Francisco and other principal cities are representing the Chickering as their "finest pianos."

That the Chickering costs the most money?

That the Chickering purchasers are always satisfied?

Competitors have spent fortunes in the attempt, yet never been able to duplicate the Chickering Tone?

That Chickering & Sons made more pianos last year than all the other high grade makers combined?

That no one has ever yet purchased a Chickering and worn it out?

That you can buy them for the least money at Johnson's Furniture store in Norfolk?

Johnson's Furniture Store, Norfolk Nebraska.

CRAVEN BROTHERS

A Sensible Question.
"I say, pa," began little Clarence.
"what?"
"Oh, I don't know!" replied his long-suffering sire weary.
"But the question I wanted to ask isn't foolish, pa."
"Well, what is it?"
"Well, pa, if the end of the world was to come and the earth was destroyed while a man was up in a balloon, where would he land when he came down?"

It Was of Him.
Dibbs (affectionately)—This is a picture of my wife's first husband.
Dobst—Great snakes! What a brainless looking idiot! But I didn't know your wife was married before she met you.
Dibbs—She wasn't. That's a picture of myself at the age of 29.—Tid-Bits.
