AROUND ABOUT.

Randolph is talking of putting in a gas plant.

The hitching posts along Main Street were removed Wednesday by Street Commissioner Townsend, and hereafter no team will be allowed to be hitched along this thoroughfare. The object of the removal of the posts is to allow the water to drain, which has been impossible.—Randolph Reporter.

Little Olare Thompson met with an accident Tuesday which might have proven fatal. In some manner he secured a large pair of scissors, and in playing fell upon the sharp points which made a serious wound in the little fellow's throat, dangerously near the jugular vein, from which the child bled until almost unconscious. He was taken to Dr. Hubel's house where the wound was properly dressed, and he is now doing nicely.—Allen News.

A great fight is being made on the Talbot street car project here, and a numerous signed petition will be presented to the county board next Monday, asking to reconsider their action in refusing the Sioux City Traction company a franchise. If a reconsideration is refused, which is probable, then a subscription paper will be circulated to buy a right-of-way for the traction company from the south limits of South 300 to the cemetery—about a mile and a half. This would keep the line out of the road for that distance.—Dakota Co. Herald.

Mrs. F. S. Tracy was in Wayne Monday. Mrs. Frazier, of Wayne, has been in Wislode several days visiting at the home of her brother, F. S. Tracy. Over at Ponca last week there was a wedding and under the account of the affair was a card of thanks signed by the bride's parents, the groom's parents and friends of the groom, which said that it was most gratifying that there was such good order and kindly feeling manifested at the wedding, and they thanked the marshal for his good service. What's the matter with Ponca, or is this some new fad?—Wislode Tribune.

At last, after several months of weary waiting, the new iron bridge over the Logan north of town has been completed. During the time the old bridge went down last fall under the strain of a herd of cattle and the completion of the new one, a temporary bridge was put in on the west side of where the old one stood but it was so low down that every little raise in the Logan overflowed it making it a dangerous to cross on. It also was washed away several times and the completion of the new bridge will be hailed with joy by the farmers on the north side as well as by the business men of Wakefield. The new bridge is a fine one, is well put up and will stand the travel for years to come. Mr. and Mrs. Ed Laughlin, of Wayne, visited over Sunday at the home of Geo. Childs. Mrs. A. G. Mettlen and children, of Wayne, are visiting friends and relatives here.—Wakefield Republican.

Judgment is Entered.

June 23 the mandate of the Supreme Court of Nebraska was entered in the Wayne county district court in the case entitled, Chas. H. LaCroix vs. Henry G. Lisenring which was filed Nov. 3, 1900, and which was tried in this court, a verdict for $1140 and costs was given to plaintiff. The defendant carried it to the supreme court and the verdict of the lower court is sustained, except a remittitur of $109.20 is allowed and the additional cost of $63.85 is accrued. The case grew out of an accident in the early part of 1900 when LaCroix was injured by a horse falling on him, sustained fractures and called Dr. Lisenring to attend him. He claimed mal-practice on the part of the doctor and sued him for personal damages, as his fractures were improperly set he claimed. The mandate of the supreme court is a dose the defendant would probably trade his gasoline horse to avoid, but like Hamlet's ghost, it will not away.

Cholera Infantum.

This has long been regarded as one of the most dangerous and fatal diseases to which infants are subject. It can be cured, however, when properly treated. All that is necessary is to give Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and castor oil, as directed with each bottle and a cure is certain. For sale by Raymond's Pharmacy.

Opened a Keg of Giant Powder With a Pick.

Judge Hunt received a letter the first of the week from J. W. Chaffee, of Stratford, Washington, stating that Henry Layman, who removed to that place from Wayne, had met with an accident the 22nd of June, while digging a well he used a pick to open a keg of giant powder to blast with, and that he died the 25th.

A Place to Rest.

Mothers and babies will find a comfortable room furnished with easy chairs and all necessary toilet articles at my store July 3 and 4. Come. You are welcome. RALPA RUNDELL.

The Welch jewelry store is fixed up as we referred to last week, bright in paper and paint, D. K. Hern occupies the east side and H. S. Welch the west side, their stocks extend the full length of the store and present a splendid appearance indeed.

Rev. Baker and daughter who have been in Wayne for a few days have returned to their home in Chicago. Rev. Baker preached Sunday to a large and very appreciative audience at the Presbyterian church of which he was a former pastor.

The girls gave a "where-is-it party" at Dr. Williams home last week and the boys had no difficulty in locating it as they heard the girls giggling and marched in on them away inside the time limit. Fifteen couples participated and had a dream of "a time," they said.

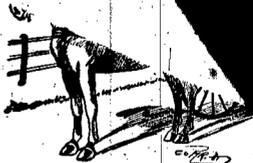

Mrs. John Harman left Wayne the first of the week for Seattle, Wash., when she will spend two or three months. John bought a couple of new shirts, so his little grandson let out, and is preparing to out a dash with tender hearted women folks who hate to see a bachelor all stuck up with dough.

Dr. Frank Gamble arrived from Fremont Tuesday to spend 'til after the 4th with his parents in this city and he will go to Ponca for a day or so before returning to Fremont. Dr. Gamble has a splendid practice established at Fremont and is one of the most successful practitioners in the Osteopathic school of therapeutics.

Wm. Pomeroy, of Allen, was in Wayne Wednesday taking the examination before the Pension Board. Mr. Pomeroy is one of the old settlers of Dixon county and was one of Uncle Sam's boys in the '60's. We hope he gets a pension commensurate with the esteem in which he is held by his Dixon county acquaintances.

Dr. and Mrs. Blair returned Sunday evening from their trip to Illinois and Indiana. Mrs. Blair spent the time with her parents near Chicago while Dr. Blair attended the M. W. A. Head Camp at Indianapolis. His re-election as Head Physician by that body is a well merited compliment and one Wayne is equally proud to share.

Prof. M. R. Snodgrass spent last week in Omaha in attendance at the national meeting of the city school superintendents. This is the first meeting of the kind held either in this country or Europe and brought together the brightest minds of the many prominent educators in the higher departments of public school work. The organization conducted a summer school last week and this week including discussion of the latest and best methods in the city schools and it cannot help but be of much good to this department. Prof. Snodgrass is high in his good opinion of the organization.

THE SILK FLAG

A Fourth of July Episode.

It seemed strange to Mrs. Lowry, that she should consider, under any circumstances, the possibility of selling her beloved flag.

She knew that her manning neighbor would never hesitate to make the sacrifice when the exigencies of the situation seemed to make the purchase of a new flag a necessity.

THE INGLORIOUS FIFTH.

"Oh, Mrs. Patterson," she said, seating herself on the lower steps of the porch, "you're at your Fourth of July party, I see. I'll do mine in the morning. Plenty of time, before the exercises."

GOOD-BYE TO STUDIES.

face of the endeared memento. The committee had certainly offered a sum out of all proportion to its intrinsic worth.

"My husband used to say," thought Mrs. Lowry, "that everything had a luminous side."

"Every man in the regiment, Mrs. Lowry, knew your husband, at least by reputation. For gallant service and a willing life to his country, it is the least you can expect me to do for you in a quarterly pension and all the back money that is coming to you."

"I never intended to ask," she said, "but I thought I'd better mention it."

Positively cleared away in a hurry. I vouch for it.

Thousands of wretched people are miserable—imagining they have a bad poisoning of the blood—when in nine cases out of ten it is purely a local parasitic manifestation in the skin which can be cleared away in a hurry.

I vouch for this—absolutely.

It has been proven to me beyond the possibility of doubt that a new medication known as D. D. D. clears up the worst skin affections quickly. It is a specific formula which, because of its fishing, amazing, almost miraculous.

Why the Judge Shook His Head.
In an Iowa law court, the other day an attorney, in the midst of his argument, paused a moment and said:
"I see your honor shakes his head at that statement. I desire to reaffirm it, although your honor dissents."
"I have not intimated," replied the judge, "how I should construe the evidence or what my decision will be in the case, and your remark is unbecomingly."
"You shook your head,"
"That may be true," the court replied; "there was a fly on my ear, and I reserved the right to remove it in any manner I saw fit. Proceed with your argument."

A Woman's Back.
Dublin, Mich., June 29.—To the many women who suffer with weak back and pains and tired feelings in the small of the back, the experience of Mrs. Fred Chalkey of this place will be interesting and profitable.
Mrs. Chalkey had suffered a very great deal with these back pains and although she had tried many things, she could find nothing that would relieve her. The pain kept on in spite of all she could do.
After the first two boxes had been taken according to directions, she began to feel some better, and she kept on till at last she was cured.
For pains are all gone, and she is very grateful. She says: "Dodd's Kidney Pills helped me greatly, and I will always recommend them as a cure for Pain in the Back."

Senator Hanna's New Story.
The other day Senator Hanna told the following story to a group of fellow Senators:
"In Lisbon, where I was born, they say a black man and a white man were once riding together along a lonely road. The road led past a fall, and in the courtyard of the fall they saw, rising above the high and dismal stone wall, a gallow's."
"Jim," said the white man, "where would you be if that gallow's had its due?"
"Guess ah'd be ridin' alone, sah," Jim replied."

DO NOT MISS HIS BOWELS.
Shark Did Not Seem Discouraged by Loss of His Internal Machinery.
Representatives of the principal Australian papers were taken out to sea about fifty miles from Melbourne in the pilot boat to meet Mene, Brisbane on Sept. 16. She was traveling from Canada to Australia by the steamship Mowera. While the pilot boat was waiting for the Mowera the ship's company had a remarkable and probably unprecedented experience. A great gray shark about twelve feet in length was hooked on a slooping line, which broke. A second time the big fish got on the slooping line, and was hooked. Then a large shark hook with a chain was thrown out and the voracious brute grabbed it and was caught.
All hands, pilot, cook and press men, tugged the shark to the vessel's side. A huge hook on the anchor tackle was put through his jaw and one eye and the fish was then hauled out of the water. One of the crew ripped the monster open from the head to the tail. The vital organs and entrails were thrown overboard and then both jaws were hacked out for the sake of securing the teeth. Nothing but the shell of the fish remained and the shark was lowered overboard. A rush was made to the side to see him sink, but the company was astounded to see the fish make off. First he swam about fifty yards away, returned to the steamer, then went off on another tack for about thirty yards, came back to the vessel and swam astern and was still swimming when he was lost sight of. That the fish could swim away with the whole of his interior from head to tail and the jaw and one eye gone simply raised the hair of the pilots and crew, who had never seen or heard of the like before.—Sydney Telegraph.

SURE NOW.
The Truth About Coffee.
It must be regarded as a convincing text when a family of seven has used Postum for five years, regaining health and keeping healthy and strong on this food drink.
This family lives in Millville, Mass., and the lady of the household says: "For eight years my stomach troubles have at the time, I was very nervous and irritable and no medicine helped me."
"I had about given up hope until five years ago next month I read an article about Postum Cereal Coffee that convinced me that coffee was the cause of all my troubles. I made the Postum carefully and liked it so much I drank it in preference to coffee but without much faith that it would help me."
"At the end of a month, however, I was surprised to find such a change in my condition. I was stronger in every way, less nervous and at the end of six months I had recovered my strength so completely that I was able to do all of my own housework. Because of the good Postum did I knew that what you claimed for Grape-Nuts must be true and we have all used that delicious food ever since it first appeared on the market."
"We have seven in our family and I do the work for them all and I am sure that I owe my strength and health to the steady use of your fine cereal food and Postum (in place of coffee). I have sent it to my relatives and I never lose a chance to speak well of it." Name furnished by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.
"Ice cold Postum with a dash of lemon is a delightful 'cooler' for warm days. Send for particulars by mail of extension of time on the $7,500,000 bonds, test for 735 money prizes."

CHAPTER IX.
It was January, and the level, cold sea air swayed softly, freeing the snow as it fell, and chilling the very marrow of the few pedestrians whom necessity compelled to be abroad that inclement morning. The fast-falling flakes obscured everything from view, but Mrs. Winans stood at a window of her elegant home gazing wistfully out at the scene that the richly appointed room, the fragrance of rare exotic flowers that swung in baskets from the ceiling, the twitter of two restless mocking birds, all invited her gaze to linger within. Now and then she walked restlessly, and finally began to walk swiftly across the floor, wending her little white hands at a sort of impotent pain.
"I can't bear this, and I won't," she said suddenly, and clapping a tiny slippered foot on the velvet carpet that scarcely gave back the sound. "I am to stay here because he says so, because he chooses to desert me. He wears my pearls, my diamonds, my carriage, my house in Washington. If I choose to go a few days anyhow, I will go up to the capital, and see his face, hear his voice once more. Ah, heaven! that I should have to steal near enough to see him! My darling—beloved, though so cruel to me—how can I bear this and live? I must, must go—must look in for the last time in life, on your door, the cruelly door face. Yes, she whispered to herself, firmly, "I will go."
For this one time she would take her own way, right or wrong. Go to Washington she would, see her husband, her self unseen, once more, she would; then she would go back to her dull, wearisome life—her rebellion extended no further than that. But she wanted, oh, so much, to see how he looked, to see if he had written his dreary line on his face as on hers; to see him because—well—because her whole warm, womanly heart hungered, thirsted for a sign of the dusk-prone beauty of her husband's face. The honest Irish face of Nora's, facing with little Paul, clouded as it was by the swollen veins of her forehead, enough to read the direct intention in the face of the young lady, and now she saw the stamp of pain too plainly written there to be misunderstood.
"Nora," she said, looking suddenly up with a glittering blush, "what do you say to a trip to Washington next week, after this snowstorm is quite cleared away and you think it would be safe for little Paul?"
"Hurt him! I think not. He is so strong and healthy; but has the Senator written for you to come on?" asked Nora, eagerly.
"No," her brow clouded, and that warm flush hung on its signal flag so her heart was as much as I do not wish to hear of him to know anything about it. I shall stay but a day or two, only taking you and baby; then we shall return as quietly as we went, and no one be the wiser; and now, Nora, baby is falling asleep, take him to his nursery, and bring me the Washington papers, if they have come yet."
"Have I not taken breakfast? I believe I do not want any. I have been thinking so intently I have lost my appetite, and am almost forgetting my hat and my breakfast," then, noting the pained look that shaded Nora's face, "Oh, well, you may bring me a glass of milk with the papers."
As she read her cheek glowed, her pearls twinkled, her eyes shone, and her smile half-pleased, half-sorrowful. Praise of her husband could not be dear to her, but her pride in him was a tender, burning by the thought that he cared not that she—his wife—should be witness of and sharer in his triumphs. And turning away from the record of his brilliant speech on Southern affairs, she glanced indolently down the column of society news, recognizing among the names of women who stood high in the social scale, the name of a friend, a friend, a friend, a friend, the preceding winter. She had been the queen of them all then, reigning by right of her beauty and intellect no less than by her wealth and high position—best of all, queen of her husband's heart—and as the thought of all that she had been came over the memory of her husband, she turned the page again, burning with passionate resentment, stirred to her soul's deepest depths with the bitter lesson of scorn, not less a queen to-day though despoiled of her kingdom.
And thus one vassal, still loyal, found her as she sat there, and in quite unbecomingly into the room, the visitor, startling her for a moment as he came forward, a few wisps of snow still clinging to his brown curls, and melting and dripping down upon his shoulders in the pleasant warmth diffused around. She glanced at him, shrunk back an instant, then came forward with rising color and extended her hand.
"Captain Clendenon! This is indeed a pleasant and very welcome surprise."
He bowed low over the slim white hand, murmured some inaudible words of greeting, and stooped to replace her shawl where she had dropped it on the floor. Then a momentary embarrassment silence ensued, during which he seated himself in a chair indicated by her, and opposite to one into which she had languidly fallen.
In that silence she glanced a little curiously at the face whose dark gray eyes had not yet left themselves to hers. She had not seen him in some months before, and he looked a little altered—somewhat thinner, a trifle more serious, but still frank and noble, and with an indescribable respect and sympathy in the clear, honest eyes that fitted just then and met her glance full.

I must ask your pardon for intruding on the entire occasion, which you reserve, Mrs. Winans," he said, with the slight pleasant smile she remembered so well. "The fact that I am your husband's lawyer, and that I come on business, must plead my excuse."
The bowed, then, called for her surprise, and she, in her turn, called on the valued friend like Captain Clendenon, needed no excuse to make him welcome in her home. A faint flush of gratification tinged his white forehead an instant, then faded as a look of pain on the lovely face before him showed that some indefinable dread of his mission to the entire occasion, which you reserve, Mrs. Winans," he said, with the slight pleasant smile she remembered so well. "The fact that I am your husband's lawyer, and that I come on business, must plead my excuse."

Be Careful of the Children.
In this day of sanitation, when we are sterilizing milk and various foods we use, filtering the water, using germ-proof brooms, sanitary clothing, plumbing, heating, etc., you should investigate your refrigerator. Never before in the history of the world has there been such precautions taken against microbes and bacilli as at the present time. Did you ever stop to think that you have perhaps overlooked your refrigerator. All the food, the very substance that enables us to exist, passes through the refrigerator. Then why do you keep your food in that poisonous, corroded, zinc lined refrigerator that is lurking with microbes and disease? Children form the most delicate thermometer of health, having less strength they show quickly the evil effects of any cause. Milk, the baby's food, should be kept in an absolutely pure and clean place if we expect baby to keep well. We should respect hygienic truth for baby's sake, even though we do not for ourselves. The HERRICK REFRIGERATOR is built on sanitary principles and is the only one that is so built. Sold in Wayne by TERWILLIGER BROS.

Greatly Reduced Rates via the Wabash Railroad.
Below is a partial list of the many half rates offered via the Wabash railroad:
Atlanta, Ga. and return $32.10. Sold July 5, 6 and 7.
Indianapolis, Ind. and return $10.00. Sold June 13 and 14.
Saratoga, N. Y. and return $32.20. Sold July 4 and 5.
Detroit, Mich. and return $21.00. Sold July 14 and 15.
Baltimore, Md. and return $32.25. Sold July 17 and 18.
Baltimore, Md. and return $32.25. Sold Sept. 17, 18 and 19.

All tickets reading over the Wabash are good on Steamers in either direction between Detroit and Buffalo without extra charge, except meals and berth. Long limits and stop overs allowed. Remember this is "The World's Fair Line." Go this route and view the grounds.
For folders and all information address Harry E. Moores, G. A. P. D. Omaha, Nebr.

City Council.
At the regular meeting of the city council Monday evening June 20 a large number of bills were allowed, mostly for labor and supplies for city improvements which the council is wisely making and which will continue for some time yet.

Ordinance 134 passed its second reading.

Ordinance 135, general revenue ordinance was introduced and read the first time.

A motion was made and carried that the city attorney investigate the sidewalk ordinance and secure the proper remedy for the repairing and rebuilding of the many defective sidewalks.

Very Remarkable Cure of Diarrhoea.

"About six years ago for the first time in my life I had a sudden and severe attack of Diarrhoea," says Mrs. Alice Miller, of Morgan, Texas. "I got temporary relief, but it came back again and again, and for six long years I have suffered more misery and agony than I can tell. It was worse than death. My husband spent hundreds of dollars for physicians' prescriptions and treatment without avail. Finally we moved to Lesque county, our present home and one day I happened to see an advertisement of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with a testimonial by a man who had been cured by it. The case was so similar to my own that I concluded to try the remedy. The result was wonderful. I could hardly realize that I was well again, or believe it could be so after having suffered so long, but that one bottle of medicine, costing but a few cents, cured me." For sale by Raymond's Pharmacy.

Republican Judicial District Convention

To the Republican Electors of the Ninth Judicial District of Nebraska: Notice is hereby given that a republican judicial convention will be held at Norfolk, Nebraska, on the 17th day of August, 1903, at 11 o'clock a. m. for the purpose of nominating a candidate for judge of the Ninth Judicial District, and the transacting of such other business as may regularly come before it. The several counties of said district are entitled to the following representation, based on the vote of J. H. Mickey, governor, in November, 1902:

|               |    |
|---------------|----|
| Antelope..... | 13 |
| Knox.....     | 16 |
| Pierce.....   | 19 |
| Madison.....  | 17 |
| Wayne.....    | 10 |
| Total.....    | 65 |

It is recommended by the committee that no proxies be allowed in said convention, but that the delegates be allowed to cast the full vote of the county represented by them.

By order of the committee.
Geo. F. Boyd, Secretary.
J. B. Barnes, Chairman.

Plant Lice, and How to Kill Them.

A good many people have asked how and when to treat plant lice in a fatal way. The inquiries refer to the order, Hemiptera and mostly to the species Aphis Corni and Lyzus Corni, closely related Aphides infesting plum and cherry.

These insects are now propagating very rapidly by "budding" females, that is they are viviparous. They may be further distinguished by their natural enemy the ant, feeding upon or among them, this is due to the fact that the Aphides exude from two horn-like processes at the extremity of the abdomen, fragrant small drops of sacharine fluid called "Honey dew," a favorite food of ants.

Next month some of the lice will develop four wings characteristic of the hemiptera and from the pairing of these will result the eggs which will hatch the next year's females.

To destroy the Aphid, dissolve half a pound of hard soap in a gallon of boiling water, then add two gallons of kerosene and churn from five to ten minutes with the spray pump. Dilute fifteen times with water and apply fresh. If used before they curl the leaves around themselves Aphides are easily killed, otherwise they are hard to get at with any remedy.

Order of Hearing on Probate of Foreign Will.

The State of Nebraska, } ss:
Wayne County,
At a County Court, held at the County Court Room, in and for said county of Wayne, July 1st, A. D. 1903.
Present, E. Hunter, County Judge.

In the matter of the estate of John H. Cunningham, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Ephraim Cunningham praying that the instrument purporting to be a duly authenticated copy of the last Will and Testament of said deceased, and of the probate thereof by the Probate Court of the county of Juniata, State of Pennsylvania, and this day filed in this Court, may be allowed, filed, probated and recorded as the last Will and Testament of said deceased in and for the State of Nebraska.

Ordered, that July 22d, A. D. 1903, at 10 o'clock a. m., is assigned for hearing said petition, when all persons interested in said matter may appear at a County Court to be held, in and for said county, and show cause why the prayer of petitioner should not be granted; and that notice of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, be given to all persons interested in said matter, by publishing a copy of this order in the WAYNE REPUBLICAN, a weekly newspaper printed in said County, for three successive weeks prior to the said day of hearing. (A true copy.)

WHAT DID? BEER OR BINDERS? BOTH!

The products of breweries and binder factories have kept up to the front, and while the brewery product is all right in harvest time, the binder is the main thing then and the one you think about now. You save money by buying the money you save on one—the binder with the very best improvement, (fastest longest) improved binders have fewer bearings and gears, hence run easiest, no weight on the horses necks, means no sore necks, the best steel and malleable construction means the lightest yet strongest frame and the whole means to you an investment that will please you, not one you will regret. We sell both the Milwaukee binders and the Minneapolis binders, mowers and rakes. Kindly call and see them.

A cloudburst in the territory between Allen and the Missouri river has played havoc with the Great Northern railroad. A few miles east of Allen a bridge and several rods of track were washed out. The country clear to the river has been under water.

Dr. Elliott, of Concord, returned from Ontario, Canada, Tuesday evening, accompanied by his newly wedded wife. The doctor, like many others, believes it was not meant for man to live alone. We wish the young couple happiness and prosperity.—Dixon Herald.

A young child of Mr. and Mrs. Matt Assenmacher, of Emerson precinct, wandered away from home last Saturday afternoon, and the whole country around Emerson joined in the search for the little one. It was found after a search stuck knee deep in the mud in Fiddler creek, five miles from home.—Dakota County Herald.

Randolph is agitating the light question. According to the Times the first move in the matter will be to reorganize the town under a charter for cities of the second class and thus be enabled to increase the bonded indebtedness and raise the $10,000 necessary to install the plant. Gas or the new crude oil system are being mentioned.

Foy Wilson expects to leave Sunday night for the Black Hills to visit a brother who conducts a store at Lead, South Dakota. A. M. Wilson, of Wayne, will have charge of the store during Foy's absence. W. H. Pomroy was in Wayne Wednesday. He says there will be no corn on the Logan bottom between Wakefield and Wayne, owing to excessive rain, and that the small grain around Wayne was almost totally destroyed by a hail storm about a week ago.—Allen News.

A very peculiar, though effective, idea was brought into practice in locating the position of the body of Emmet Livermore, in the Sioux River at Oto, Sunday. A load of bread was tied to a string and then to a boat, the occupants of the boat following the course taken by the bread which took them to a clump of willows at the bottom of which was found the body. When one thinks of it, only common sense is utilized, there being no magic or spiritualism about it. The loaf is so light that it would be carried by the natural current of the river which carried the boy's body away.—Anthon (La.) Herald.

Henry Raabach finished a very successful term of school at Tekamah last week and came home Saturday expecting to spend the summer on his father's farm southeast of town. Henry is receiving much honorable mention as the democratic candidate for county superintendent this fall. Word has been received that Gus Marquardt, the Norfolk musician, well known to Pierce young people, who went insane in Kansas last winter, is much better and will probably entirely recover.—Pierce Leader. Gus Marquardt is also well known to a number of Wayne people, especially members of the old Wayne band with whom he played cornet on numerous occasions. He was formerly a jeweler at Norfolk.

Joseph Haldapler, a German living on the John Schmidt farm four miles east of Randolph, was arrested Sunday night on complaint of his neighbor, Mathias Konz and the defendant's wife, Marshal Carroll served the warrant and the man remained in jail until morning, when he was taken before Justice Miller and witnesses called to substantiate the complaint. It appears that Haldapler severely beat his wife and abused the infant child in a most vicious manner Sunday afternoon. To escape him the wife fled to the home of Matt Konz in the afternoon, and upon Haldapler appearing and entreating her to return the went back, when the deed was done. It was finally decided to take the man to Hartington where he will await the decision of the commissioners as to his sanity. If the commissioners fail to find him insane it is the intention of the wife to apply for a divorce. Haldapler is quite an old settler here, having been in the employ of August Kuwald and James Carmichael years ago. He has been to the Philippine Islands and traveled considerably in Europe, where he met and married his wife. It is a most lamentable case, and one in which the public is inclined to question the man's sanity.—Randolph Reporter.

Homer, Neb., June 29.—Dr. James O. Mess, a representative of the Sioux Falls Dental company, who has an office in the Richards hotel here with Dr. F. S. Prettyman, formerly of Sioux City, was seriously burned this morning by the explosion of a hand gasoline engine. In order to do some work on gold fillings in the cool of the morning Dr. Mess a one at five o'clock. Scarcely one was moving around the hotel. With his coat off and sleeves rolled up the doctor had everything ready to begin and turned on the air in the engine. Instantly there was an explosion, and the burning gasoline was thrown all over the doctor's clothing. As the flames shot up in his face the doctor snatched a rug from the floor and attempted to smother them by wrapping it around him. This would not do, and with his clothing ablaze he ran upstairs and threw himself upon a bed in the first room he reached. His agonizing cries for help had aroused three or four persons in the sleeping rooms and they ran in and held the bedclothes around him until the flames were put out. The man's face, back and both hands were frightfully burned and his finger nails were burned off. Both eyes still are closed. Dr. D. D. Stidworthy, who is in attendance, is of the belief that the eyesight will be saved.

Otto Thompson, the 11-year-old son of Chas. Thompson, of this place, was the victim of a sad accident Monday afternoon. Otto and his brother Charles were playing about the barn where they found an ordinary tin can with about an inch of powder in it that had been left in the barn by some renter. The boys did not understand the danger of the thing they were playing with and after a while concluded to see if the powder would melt if a match was held to it. Otto lit the match, and holding it in his hand proceeded to make the test. The result is readily imagined. The boy was seriously burned, his hand, arm, face and side being all in a blister, and for some time Monday evening it was feared that he could not survive, but at present he is slowly mending. Charles, who was standing near by to watch the performance, was also badly burned about the face. An irate subscriber the other day refused the copy of the Picket addressed to him and in doing so threw it half way across the postoffice. The poor fool will never know what a hearty laugh we had over the act or how little an editor really cares for such things until he himself becomes an editor, which he never will. It takes brains to be even a common country editor.—Stanton Picket.

Randolph now has the assurance that the free rural delivery routes will be established July 15, two weeks later than the date originally fixed. Many farmers have already received their boxes from the dealers in the field and are prepared to get mail the first trip out. Four routes will center at Randolph and will cover the territory for eight or nine miles around the town. We sincerely trust that the routes will prove a benefit to both town and county, and that the interest of neither may suffer. The Weber postoffice was officially discontinued yesterday and rubbed off the slate at the postoffice department. For the 15 days before the routes are established the Weber mail will be cared for at Randolph. Geo. Hyatt made a most excellent showing at the tournament of the Allen Gun Club at that town last week. He took part in ten 15-target events and got a piece of the money in each event. In the last four shoots he made 14 out of a possible 15, or 56 out of 60. In these four he got three first moneys. In the direction of the town council J. W. Fox is taking the census of the city and next week we hope to announce that Randolph is the metropolis of Cedar county by actual count. The board believes the town has the required population for organization as a city of the second class, and if such hopes are realized expect to reorganize the municipality for the purpose of voting bonds for a lighting plant. The genial and rotund James Fox will ferret out every inhabitant, and if, peradventure, one should be missed, it will not be because Jim's intention wasn't right. A gang of seven men took a whirl at cleaning up the Omaha's stock yards this week and succeeded in digging out several car loads of an aromatic composition that would knock a dog off a swill wagon. The stuff was loaded on flat cars, but will make better fertilizer than ballast. The town board went after the company good and strong, and made them clean up as well as other people. Residents east of the tracks can soon take a long breath without nausea. The first whirl was not satisfactory and the company must get to the bottom or move the yards. The Short Line folks are also invited to get busy on their yards. In order to have the aid of the strong arm of the law, the board passed a double strength clean-up ordinance last night. It takes double strength to reach the stock yards case.—Randolph Times.

Fred and Helen Pile were in Sioux City Friday. Mrs. M. S. True was at Hartington the first of the week. Judge Boyd and E. R. Gurney were in town Tuesday morning. Sandy Scott has lost a horse this year and one last year in a peculiar way, supposed to have been bitten by a large rattlesnake at least four feet long and carrying fifteen rattles. Mrs. Scott saw his snakeship once. Mr. Scott hasn't seen him yet but can tell by infallible snake lore that the dep is near the Scott hostelry.

Mr. Nextdoor (to little Willie, who has been invited in to dinner)—What part of the chicken will you have, Willie?

Willie (earnestly)—Some of the white meat, part of the wing, a piece of the second joint, some stuffing, the gizzard, and some gravy, please. Mamma made me promise not to ask to be served more than once.—Judge.

On the outskirts of a town where a lot of negroes lived, a citizen had a house to rent, says an exchange. A young darkey, lately married, called on the citizen to bargain for the house and the following conversation took place: "When were you married?" "Bout three months ago," replied the darkey. "How many children have you?" "Fo' de lawd's sake, boss, we'se only eulud folks; we'se no Belgian hares."

Some towns are determined not to be outside in any line. One town boasts of a man who has been married thirty years and yet kisses his wife every time he leaves home. Another town boasts that with a man who has been married thirty-five years, and kisses his neighbor's wife every time his neighbor leaves home. And now an exchange from a third town comes to the front with an account of a citizen of that burg who not only kisses his wife every time he leaves home but kisses the hired girl every time his wife leaves home.—Ex.

An exchange tells of a young man who had been corresponding with a Minneapolis lady for three years, intending to ask her some day to marry him. The other day he received a letter and a picture from her. The letter told him that she had been married two years and the picture was of her baby. "My husband and I have enjoyed your letters greatly," she wrote, "but I guess you had better stop writing now as I have to spend all my time caring for the baby." The exchange remarks that the words the young man used after reading the letter would shock a field of oats.—Ex.

Senator Tillman tells of an old darkey in his employ that he once permitted to make use of a certain land for farming purposes, on condition that the darkey should give to the Senator one-fourth of the crop raised. At the harvesting of the crop the Senator was amazed to find that the darkey had not kept his part of the agreement, for, while he hauled away three wagon loads of produce, he had not sent a single one to the Senator's barn. Tillman called the negro's attention to the fact that he had taken the entire crop, asking: "Now, how's that, Zab? Wasn't I to receive a fourth of the crop?" "You was, Massa Tillman, you was," excitedly exclaimed the darkey; "but dere's only three loads, sah, only three loads!"—New York Times.

A picture of Secretary Shaw, by Chartist, which will be placed in the Treasury Department, was received recently from New York. It shows Mr. Shaw standing with both hands in his pockets, a characteristic attitude. Mr. Shaw likes the picture, because it shows him in his most natural position, without having both hands plunged deep into his trousers pockets. Some of Mr. Shaw's friends objected to the painting, because they said the attitude was not dignified enough for a Secretary of the Treasury. They said he should have at least one hand out of his pockets. Mr. Shaw listened to their objections until he got tired. Then he declared himself. "Well, gentlemen," he said, with great decision, "my hands are in my own pockets, anyway." That ended it.—Boston Post.

We happened in a home the other night, and over the parlor door saw the legend worked in letters of red, "What is home without a mother?" Across the room was another brief, "God bless our home." Now, what's the matter with "God bless our dad." He gets up early, lights the fire, boils an egg, grabs his dinner pail and wipes off the dew of the dawn with his boots while many a mother is sleeping. He makes the weekly hand-out for the butcher, the milkman, the grocer and baker, and his little pile is badly worn before he has been home an hour. He stands off the balliff and keeps the rent paid up. If there is a noise during the night dad is kicked in the back and made to go down stairs to find the burglar and kill him. Mother darns the socks, but dad buys the socks in the first place and the needles and the yarn afterwards. Mother does up the fruit; well, but dad buys it all, and jars and sugar coat like the mischief. Dad buys chickens for the Sunday dinner, carves them himself and draws the neck from the rules after every one else is served. "What is home without a mother?" Yes, that is all right; but "What is home without a father?" Ten chances to one it is a boarding-house, father is under a slab and mother is the widow. Dad, here's to you; you've got your faults—you may have lots of 'em—but we'll miss you when you're gone.—Ex.

WILBUR ITEMS.

The home of Adam Grier loomed up in a new coat of paint last week. Mr. James' little 10-year-old son is slowly recovering from a long and severe illness. Mrs. Chas. Shulteis and Mrs. Emil Weber, of Wayne, visited at the Goss home last Wednesday. Mr. Kasper Korn, of Wilbur, lost six head of cattle by lightning during the storm of last Friday. Wm. House, of Wayne and his son and wife from Pierce Suddled with Mr. and Mrs. Harty Roland, of Wilbur. Wilbur Sunday school is progressing nicely there being thirty-five in attendance. Miss Tessie Hanson is doing good work as superintendent. Mrs. T. S. Goss returned home Friday morning from Sioux City where she has been visiting her daughter, Blanche, who is taking training in the Samaritan hospital. A Scientific Bear Story. Uncle Charley Robbins, (whose record for veracity is O. K., or we would not stand for the narrative's appearance in this paper) told a story the other day that has in it a point of scientific interest. He was living in Canada in the early day, in fact he was a small boy and made a shadow only with the aid of a big straw hat and dad's pants rebuilt. His was a quiet lot until one eventful day when dad was far from home when time came to get the cows home, a task fraught with danger on account of bears—really, truly bears that made folks climb trees. Charley had never gotten the cows home and didn't care a King George's copper whether they ever came home, but dad's gun hung high up on two pins drove into the logs of the Robbins log cabin and the powder horn hung beneath it, both smiling an invitation to Charley to go after the cows and help dad who would be home late. Charley accepted the invitation, tip-toe and lots of effort brought down the powder horn that dragged on the ground until a double reef was taken in the shoulder strap, and the flintlock which was many inches longer than an 8-foot show case, offered as evidence of its great effectiveness and the accuracy of Mr. Robbins' memory. Mother called to Charley to inquire what he was doing with that gun just as he bolted over the stake and rider fence that enclosed the cabin on the clearing, but Charley didn't hear well, and trailing the flint lock went pell mell down the trail for those cows. He didn't see any cows, but managed to get about half a mile from home when pater-pater behind him came something that Charley had not met and was not most happy to meet either. He wasn't acquainted with bears, but concluded that this was a bear all right and prepared to give battle as no time was to be lost. Right here he made a discovery and that was that he couldn't hold out that gun, try as he would, the muzzle would not come up to meet the bear and just as the bear was about to conclude the matter by reaching for little Charley she turned around to count her cubs and give them first choice in the division to take place forthwith. "Fortune favors the brave," and poor little Charley, desperate, but full of fighting blood, had dropped the gun, and picking up the flint from the lock, threw it at her with all his might just as she turned up the trail. This reversed her pretty quick and on she came again down the trail, full tilt, with her mouth open. The brave hunter never flinched, but had the only thing left, the powder horn, unswung and threw it full at her open mouth. There was an explosion. How it occurred Mr. Robbins could not tell, but in the interest of science we would like to inquire if a piece of steel was not required somewhere to strike that flint. Mr. Robbins told us about 'bear meat all winter, and other things immaterial to the point we raise, which is purely in the interest of science, and we await its explanation with interest.

A Scientific Bear Story.

Uncle Charley Robbins, (whose record for veracity is O. If there is anything on earth worse than a husky boy who eats regularly at the family table three times a day and refuses to help supply the larder, it has not yet been discovered. Yet every town is afflicted with boys of that kind. They loaf around the streets from morning till night, save for the time spent in consuming grub earned by father or mother, smoking cigarettes, chewing tobacco, spitting on the sidewalks, and making obscene remarks concerning women and girls who pass by. They are not worth the powder to blow them to kingdom come, and they never will be unless they change their ways. They are worse than any of the lower animals, for even the young hogs hie out and root for themselves as soon as they discover the fact that they can do it. The boy who loafs while his father boils deserves attention. He should get it in the shape of a moist slab. And if he persists in his course he should be taken into the back yard and kept there. There is no harm in killing a thing like that.—Williston.

CUMMINS IS CHOSEN.

RENOMINATED FOR GOVERNOR BY IOWA REPUBLICANS.

Tariff Plank Written by Senator Allison Embodied in the Platform—The "Shelter to Monopoly" Feature Eliminated.

Des Moines, Ia., June 20.—Gov. Cummins was renominated for Governor and Senator Allison's tariff and trust platform was indorsed by the Republican State convention. As a result both factions of the party are claiming the victory.

Gov. Cummins and his supporters say the tariff plank contains in substance all that is found in last year's plank, while the "stand-paters" are congratulating themselves upon the elimination of the "shelter to trusts" clause which attracted so much attention to the Iowa platform of 1901 and 1902.

Gov. Cummins' name was suggested by Senator Allison, after conference with representative Republicans of the State. No objection was made to it in the committee on resolutions nor upon its presentation to the convention.

Gov. Cummins, in his speech accepting the renomination, approved the platform in its entirety, but announced that he would continue to hold to all the views expressed in his speeches within the past two years.

Senators Allison and Hollister, who made speeches, endorsed the platform as a sound statement of Republican principles, and Senator Allison, after conference with the House and Congressional Cousins of the Fifth Space in opposition to the tariff changes to the Iowa platform of 1901 and 1902.

It was 2:30 o'clock before the convention was called to order for the afternoon session. The resolutions committee reported the platform and all the committee members were present. A committee named N. E. Kendall, J. H. Johnson and E. W. Works of Guthrie Center for secretary.

Mr. Kendall spoke briefly, but did not refer to political issues. "As the report of the committee on resolutions was not ready," he said, "the resolutions were taken up." A motion that Gov. Cummins be renominated by acclamation was received with a volume of "Ayes," cried for by a chorus of cheering and cries for Mr. Cummins. A committee was named to bring him into the ballroom.

In a similar manner Lemg, Gov. John H. Packer was renominated. The ballroom was required to receive a candidate for State Superintendent, the final ballot being cast for J. J. Higgs, 633; H. L. Adams, 518; and R. C. Bremer, 10. The nomination of Mr. Rigas was made unanimous.

The report of the resolutions committee was presented at this point by the chairman, J. W. Dyer, of Burlington. The platform was adopted by a unanimous vote just as the committee appeared with Gov. Cummins. When the delegates caught sight of the Governor on the stage he was cheered and applauded.

The platform congratulates the nation on the general prosperity, prosperity, commends the administration of Gov. Cummins, rebuffs an Iowa's leadership in national affairs, favors good roads legislation, indorses the Louisiana Purchase commission, and in its tariff declaration eliminates the "shelter to monopolies" plank of 1901 and 1902, and favors trust legislation and support.

The convention completed its business with the renomination by acclamation of Chief Justice Charles A. Hixson of Des Moines and of Col. J. Palmer of Washington, for railroad commissioner.

KANSAS' GREAT WHEAT OUTLOOK

Despite the Flood a Hundred Million Bushels May Yet Be Raised.

Throughout the basin of newspaper editors' interest was aroused by accounts of the enormous loss of property and the attendant loss of life incident to the flooding of the State. It is now estimated that the loss of crops is over a large section of the State. Estimated by one of the poorest of farmers many people as by a common impulse, have dropped into their pockets and said that the suffering of their Kansas neighbors might be alleviated.

It is not likely to say that the people of the Southwest are a high-spirited and brave of the sympathy and assistance showed upon them in their hour of distress. They are, however, that Kan. 84 is not so badly crippled as might appear at first glance. While the people of the flood-stricken area have suffered great loss, it is not so dire as the State, as a whole, will not be ruined. The crop of the wheat crop and that under conditions favorable during the remainder of the season 100,000,000 bushels of this staple crop will be raised.

Rash as has been said to be, it is a substantial number of acts regarding the wonderful productivity of the State during the last few years. In 1895 Kansas ranked sixth among the States in the production of wheat. In 1896 she was third, and a 27.78 second. A temporary relapse followed, but for two years she held first place. According to the United States Department of Agriculture, Kansas holds the record among the leading wheat grain States for the value of wheat and corn raised in five years period beginning with 1896. She was first in the value of her wheat. In 1900 and 1901, first in the value of her grain as compared with population.

INCREASE OF IMMIGRANTS.

Reports from Ellis Island Show 604,424 Aliens Arriving During Year.

During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1902, 604,424 aliens arrived at New York through Ellis Island, as against 479,791 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1901, an increase of 124,633. The first six months of this calendar year show an increase of 50,729 over the same period of 1901.

When the flag was raised at sunrise July 1 on Ellis Island the Federal jurisdiction over the island passed from the Treasury Department to that of the new Department of Commerce and Labor, with Secretary Clegg at its head.

When the inspectors and other employees arrived for their daily work they found their desks supplied with stationery from the new department and all the old Treasury Department forms removed.

CROPS DOING BETTER.

GENERAL CONDITIONS NOW REPORTED ENCOURAGING.

Deterioration in Wheat in North Dakota on Account of Drought—Corn Shows Improvement, Though It Is Late in Western Portions of Belt.

Following is the official weekly crop report of the Department of Agriculture:

Throughout the central valleys, the lake region, the Atlantic coast districts, and the northern portion of the Southern States the weather has been steadily cool, and the Atlantic coast and the east Gulf districts have suffered from continuous rains.

While too cool for rapid growth, crops have made favorable advancement in the central valleys. Warmth and sunshine are greatly needed in the Atlantic coast and the Gulf districts.

Further improvement in the condition of corn is generally reported, and while the crop continues late it is making good growth over the western portion of the corn belt, the condition of the crop in Iowa now closely approximating the average.

In the middle Atlantic States, corn has made slow growth and is backward and much in need of cultivation.

Except over local areas the weather conditions have been favorable for winter wheat harvest in the central valleys, but this work has been interrupted by rains in the middle Atlantic States. A marked improvement in the condition of wheat is reported from New York, Michigan, and the crop is maturing rapidly and is in good condition in Nebraska.

In North Dakota there has been a decided deterioration in the condition of spring wheat as a result of drought, which also has proved damaging in portions of South Dakota and northern Minnesota. The crop continues promising in Wisconsin, Iowa and Nebraska. Decided improvement is reported from Washington and Oregon, except in central Washington, where drought is causing injury.

The condition of cotton is generally improved throughout the belt, but continuing late and suffering from low water in the eastern districts, where low night temperatures have checked growth. Lice and rust have caused injury in North Carolina and Missouri and in Texas both weevil are spreading and are more injurious.

NEED 100,000 MEN.

Wanted to Gather the Harvest in Great Wheat Fields of the West.

From the big wheat counties of Kansas come appeals for help. The farmers cannot harvest their grain crops unless an array of laborers comes to the rescue. It is not only the farmers who are in need, but the public have been added to, to bring in the harvest. Within the next fortnight 25,000 men will be required to gather the wheat crop.

Indiana Temperature much below average, otherwise wheat favorable; throughout the south section, where there is not fair a crop showing promise, but better, but less than average promised; corn late and growing slowly; rice clean; oats improved, but not prevalent; good crop of clover being saved; minor crops in fair condition; prospect for apples improved; light and ample showers followed by warmer weather caused marked improvement in wheat, rice, oats, barley, peas and corn, which are doing well; cotton improving rapidly; sugar beets and early potatoes doing well.

Ohio Wheat harvest progressing, considerable damage by rust and fly in south; early crop of corn doing well; corn small and in places in north yellow; cultivation in progress; tobacco doing fairly well; clover and alfalfa doing well; weekly; early potatoes in market; garden crops, weather favorable for apples.

Michigan Apples showing improvement; warmer weather caused marked improvement in wheat, rice, oats, barley, peas and corn, which are doing well; cotton improving rapidly; sugar beets and early potatoes doing well.

Minnesota Winter wheat under way, early, and in dry portions, injury by drought in north and west; corn generally well; and in sandy soils and spring plowed lands, but wheat, oats, and barley on fall plowed lands and dry soil are standing drought safely.

South Dakota Beneficial rains, favorable wheat, except in some northern counties, where damaging drought, followed by spring wheat and oats, was generally broken Sunday night; elsewhere spring wheat, oats, barley, rice, grasses, flax and potatoes generally thriving.

Nebraska Good growing week. Winter wheat under way, early, and in dry portions, injury by drought in north and west; corn generally well; and in sandy soils and spring plowed lands, but wheat, oats, and barley on fall plowed lands and dry soil are standing drought safely.

Kansas Wheat harvesting central and northwestern sections, early, and in dry portions, injury by drought in north and west; corn generally well; and in sandy soils and spring plowed lands, but wheat, oats, and barley on fall plowed lands and dry soil are standing drought safely.

Rainfall in Northwest.

The following figures show the rainfall in Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota for four weeks of June, showing the departure from the normal:

| State        | Normal | Actual | Percentage |
|--------------|--------|--------|------------|
| Minnesota    | 4.78   | 3.32   | 69.4       |
| North Dakota | 4.78   | 3.32   | 69.4       |
| South Dakota | 4.78   | 3.32   | 69.4       |

The investment in the government printing office is $2,429,000.

One factory has marked 60,000 electrical fixtures this season.

The Democratic Labor Union in Manila has a membership of 15,000.

In shipbuilding, Pennsylvania stands first and New York second, while California is a good third.

Returns of British trades unions show a gradual decrease of unemployed members in the engineering trades.

Portuguese wharf laborers in Hawaii have refused to work because they were asked to work alongside of Japanese.

Although one-fourth of the world's sugar is consumed in the United States, but one-twentieth of it is grown there.

Skilled labor in Indiana controlled by the employers average $2.43 a day and unskilled labor $1.25, boys 71 cents, girls and women 53 cents.

New York City will no longer take its refuse to sea and dump it, but will make it into briquets, with a bituminous flux, which will probably be burned in a municipal lighting plant.

Chicago ticket agents on the elevated roads in Illinois have formed a union, securing a charter from the Amalgamated Association of Street and Railway Employees. They work twelve hours a day and have to secure a shorter work day. The union is the only one of its kind in the United States.

BLACKS KILL AT ALTAR.

Georgia Planter Who Seeks to Break Up Revival Is Shot.

Negroes in Harris County, Georgia, killed John Cash, a white man, who entered a church for colored people Sunday and tried to break up the services.

Cash was a planter and the negroes have a church near his home. A revival has been in progress at the church and Sunday night there was a great congregation and much shouting. The noise disturbed Cash and he decided to break up the meeting. He entered the church in a threatening manner and ordered the negroes to get out.

"He's profaning God's house. Kill him!" shouted the religion frenzied negroes.

"Be merciful," cried the preacher, but the negroes were overwrought and began to attack him with clubs and stones. Probably 500 shots were fired, many of them striking Cash, who fell in a pool of blood at the altar.

All during the fusillade the negroes kept shouting, "Kill the profaner!" while the preacher pleaded, "Be merciful!"

One negro, Henry White, has been arrested, but he is not believed to be prosecuted. Henry White's father once killed a white man who was lending a white sheep party.

Leading negroes of Philadelphia met and decided to send a petition to Czar Nicholas of Russia through Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador, asking him to appeal to President Roosevelt to take steps on behalf of the colored race in this country. The Czar is expected by the negroes to ask about race troubles in this country in return for America's interest in the Kishinev affair.

A mob of fifty marched from Lookinville, Ala., Monday night, to the school house and thence to the woods to be lynched. Diggs had been arrested for attacking Miss Alma Smith, white, at Lookinville. Sheriff D. O. Austin resisted the mob until he was shot down by the lynch mob.

At Evansville, Ind., a special grand jury convened to consider the case of John McCray, the negro who a week ago shot and instantly killed Detective Murphy. McCray is in the Galesburg jail, where he was taken to prevent lynching at the hands of a mob that surrounded the jail for two nights. The people were only appeased by promises of a speedy trial.

THE SUCCESSFUL MAN.

THE real successful man must combine in himself good stock, physical health, education, mental power and concentration, persistency, energy, enthusiasm, cheerfulness of disposition and politeness of demeanor.

Moral qualities are indispensable to true success. They are important in securing merely earthly advancement. There is a tendency in virtue to temporal prosperity.

Not all good people prosper, but the rule is that virtue has an earthly reward. The healthiest, wealthiest and wisest nations of the earth are the ones where the standard of morals is the highest.

Benevolence is an element of success. There is a law of benevolence which seems to run through all human endeavor.

The man who tills the farm that his fellows may have food and raiment, who builds a house where a home is enshrined and a family raised, who founds a business where just wages are paid, who makes at any trade a needed article, who contributes to the natural welfare of men, is a real benefactor.

There is not a learned profession which does not express a benevolent spirit. Generosity pays; there is a giving which gets, a throwing away of seed on the ground which comes back in an increased harvest.

In the arithmetic of life, subtraction is often addition and division is multiplication. He who most faithfully serves his customers, clients, patients, scholars, purchasers, employees, employer, will, as a rule, have the largest temporal success.

He is only fit for mastery in any calling who serves best. The leader of a nation can have no royalty like that of serving the humblest subjects of his realm.—New York American.

Where Theory Fails.

THE Collegiate Alumnae Association having "discovered" how a family of four persons can live on 20.78 cents a day for food, we are once more brought to the old-discussed question of how little money a human being can exist upon.

The hoarded discovery, however, is not a discovery after all, for there are in Chicago to-day a great many thousand families who discovered it for themselves long before the Collegiate Association thought of it. There are countless families that discovered, from sheer force of necessity, that a family can live on much less than ten cents a day, per capita.

It is an unpleasant reflection that in this land of plenty so many persons should be compelled to exist on a body-starving, soul-starving scale of life, but that such should woman to whom he was engaged. The couple became involved in a dispute over a trivial matter, and the young woman declared their engagement off. Mr. Fisher left the house, and, after wandering about the streets for some time, left Baltimore for New York. He at once wrote to his former fiancée, apologizing for his rude conduct and begging her forgiveness, but she was bent upon punishing him and did not reply to his letter. Fisher then left New York and went to Albany, from which place he wrote again to the young woman, saying that he would not burden her again with his petitions, and that he intended to commit suicide. The young woman then replied to his letter and asked his forgiveness, but the letter was returned with the stamp upon it, "Not found," and nothing has been heard from the young man since that day.—New York Tribune.

There is in Mobile a gentleman who in the past has been in the habit of oversleeping in the morning hours, and as his business requires that he come down street early it is essential that he should awaken at a certain hour. Time after time he came late to his business, in spite of alarm clocks and other appliances to get his eyes opened at the proper time. One morning last week he came into the office on time to the minute; the others in the office expressed great surprise at this unusual event and asked the why of it. He thus explained:

"I determined that this business of sleeping when I should be awake had to stop, so I called in an electrician and he fixed me up a few things. I have it so arranged that at the hour set a light flashes in my eyes. If this is not successful and I do not get up and throw the switch a mosquito bar and the frame falls on me. If I still slumber and sleep a gong like the one used on the patrol wagon goes off. Should I fail to notice all of these things there is over my bed a bucket filled with water, having a small nozzle attached, and a ratchet releases a stop so that a stream of water is squirted into my face. When I sleep through all these it will be time to order my coffin."—Mobile Register.

Thomas W. Fisher's disappearance more than ten years ago attracted a great deal of interest. He was a real estate broker in Washington, and, as was his usual custom, he one evening went to Baltimore to visit the young

OPINIONS OF GREAT PAPERS ON IMPORTANT SUBJECTS

Let Reason Prevail.

A CROSS the country strikes are in prospect or under way; and mingled with the reports is the announcement that the employers have united to resist the desired advance in pay and what they are pleased to term the unreasonable demands of unionized workers.

This clashing of interests is most unfortunate. Its prolongation means the postponement of the erection of numerous buildings and the abandonment altogether of many more. Perhaps 1,000,000 men are idle because of the strikes in the building trades, and this entails a loss of $3,000,000 a day in wages to the toilers, much of which can never be regained even with the resumption of work.

These disturbances are the invariable accompaniment of prosperity, the only regrettable feature of an otherwise most satisfactory condition. As business increases the cost of living goes up, and then the wage earner, desiring to participate in the improvement, asks an equitable share of the returns of capital. Sometimes this is fully met; again only partly so; in instances ignored completely. Out of the dissatisfaction come strikes and occasionally lockouts. This in turn breeds hatred between the employer and employee where before amicable relations existed. From every point of view the situation is deplorable.

Employers are organizing to an extent never before known. The workmen are powerful and confident of carrying to a successful issue anything they wage battle for. With both sides well equipped and determined a desperate struggle is ahead and can only be avoided by treating the questions leading up to it with calmness, with fairness, with the idea uppermost that exact justice must be done to both parties. With this spirit dominating capitalists and workmen a way out of the difficulty can be found honorable alike to each. Let reason prevail and the strikes and lockouts will be a thing of the past.—Utica Globe.

American Railroad Rates.

ONE by one the old Ulster complaints against the Transvaal administration are being vindicated. The latest is that concerning railroad rates. It was said that the excessively high rates charged by the state railroads under the Kruger monopoly were a grave handicap to nearly all industry and were absolutely prohibitive to many enterprises. Those railroads are now under British administration. It is interesting to observe what action has been taken toward remedying the grievance of high rates.

Lord Milner states that the reductions made will amount in gross to $3,750,000 a year. That is a large sum to be saved to the industries of South Africa. It means a reduction of 40 per cent on freight rates on food and general supplies for workmen, of 25 per cent on the great mass of miscellaneous freight, and of from 10 to 15 per cent on cement, iron and steel and other heavy goods. Some reductions in ocean freight rates have also been made by the steamship lines plying between England and the Cape. These changes will all go into effect on July 1.

It is authoritatively estimated that this reduction of rates on supplies for the mines will make possible the profitable operations of no fewer than one hundred low grade mines, with an output of $60,000,000 a year. It will mean a proportionate increase of profits to mines now in operation. It will also mean a marked development of agricultural and other industries, tending to make the Transvaal a country of varied and symmetrical growth. At the same time the volume of traffic will be so increased that the railroads will actually be more profitable under the lower than they were under the higher rates. Such results will be a strong vindication of the new administration.—New York Tribune.

The Extinction of Tuberculosis.

WHEN the world went wild with enthusiasm over the supposed discovery of a method of extinguishing pulmonary tuberculosis by means of tuberculin injections, an unknown and now forgotten writer said that had Professor Koch succeeded in his aim it would have been the greatest cause imaginable to the human race. The reason given for this seemingly extravagant statement was that the moral and social origin of the disease would have been neglected, and the relation of moral and physical disease can never be safely ignored. Malum and morbus are often the same, at least so intimately connected that one cannot be eliminated from human life without the other. The most striking proof of this now comes out in the fact that Koch himself admits and even preaches that the great decrease in the death rate from tuberculosis has been and will still be due to sanitary and social betterment, but chiefly to the improvement in the condition of the workmen's lives through government insurance, etc. In other words, what may be called the morals of infectious diseases are being recognized. The conditions that breed and scatter physical contagion are precisely those that degrade and morbidize the soul and character. Rightness of physical living is necessary to righteousness, and vice versa. Koch, the author of tuberculin, forgot this truth; Koch, the sanitarian, now preaches it.—American Medicine.

Many Persons Drop from Sight.

"The most remarkable instance of disappearance ever known," were the words used by a detective a few days ago when speaking of a case he was employed upon. It was not a hazardous expression, nor was it original, for it has been used of many in the list of those who have mysteriously disappeared. A report of the Commissioner of Police of London recently noted that 174 men and women of that city had sunk out of sight of their friends in the year. Many persons disappear every year in this city. One of the most remarkable cases of disappearance was that of Lieutenant Edward W. Remey of the navy, a brother of Judge Advocate General William B. Remey and Rear Admiral George C. Remey. The last seen of him was when he walked down the gangplank of the steamship Roskoe in this city on Feb. 17, 1887. Every effort was made to find him, but no trace was discovered. Had he been a man of irregular habits there might have been some suspicion as to the cause of his disappearance, but he was a sober, straightforward officer, and no officer had a better record, stood higher in the profession or was more greatly esteemed.

Another naval officer who disappeared a few years ago was ex-Passed Assistant Engineer Richard H. Buel, an officer who had served in the civil war with distinction. He started for Boston on Dec. 20, 1859, after which no trace of him could be discovered. His father was the Rev. Samuel Buel, at one time dean of the General Theological Seminary of this city.

There are many who will recall Stillman S. Conant, one of the editors of Harper's Weekly, who started from his sabbath for his home in Brooklyn on Jan. 16, 1855, and though search was made for him in various parts of the United States and Europe, where he was reported to have been seen, nothing about him has ever been learned.

Thomas W. Fisher's disappearance more than ten years ago attracted a great deal of interest. He was a real estate broker in Washington, and, as was his usual custom, he one evening went to Baltimore to visit the young the fact is a natural consequence of the invasion of the great cities by people ill-prepared to earn a living in the city. A poor man, with a family and without any special business or trade, is more apt to find himself reduced to the 10-cents-a-day table than otherwise.

It should be some means of helping these thousands of ill-advised, incompetent, enslaved men to a more independent livelihood. The first thing that suggests itself is farming. There are obstacles in the way, of course. Most of the city poor are ignorant of agriculture, and contemptuous of its handicaps. Education, both in the spirit and methods of cultivating the land, is the prime requisite. How to bring about this education is the problem that has troubled many minds interested in enticing the crowded poor into the country.

But other forms of education are more easily available. Every boy should be embarked upon some definite plan of life. If he is not to be a farmer, he should be taught a trade or business that will be tolerably sure to command more than a 10-cents-a-day fare in after life, and not left to grow up a general noughtout. The time may come when the public scheme of education may embrace some such policy. Until then the fathers of the land are largely responsible for their sons' futures.—Chicago Journal.

The government has finally decided to transform Culebra island, east of Porto Rico, into a great naval base, with powerful fortifications. Not only will defenses be established on Culebra island itself, but the three smaller islands lying close to it will be fortified.

The latest electrical apparatus placed on the market is one for killing flies. It resembles a grid-iron placed vertically with the horizontal shelf. The fine wires of which it is made are connected with a battery and are placed so close together that a fly alighting on it must touch two wires. As the wires are alternately positive and negative, the fly completes the circuit and is instantly killed.

The Wayne County Republican Central Committee meets Saturday, the 11th, at the office of Dr. J. J. Governor Mickey refused a week ago, after looking fully into the case of William Rhea, the condemned murderer who was hanged at Lincoln today, to interfere with or commute the sentence imposed by the court. He said his office was to prevent the execution of innocent men, not to interfere with the ends of justice. The jury and the judge passed upon the evidence and found Rhea guilty, and Governor Mickey recognizes the court's work as sufficient to the ends of justice. One thing we find as we come to know Mickey better that he is a careful executive and that he alone is governor.

Judge Boyd seems to be the unanimous choice of the republicans and a good share of the democrats of this district for renomination and election this fall. We have yet to hear of a single instance wherein the judge has disappointed the litigants in his court and he is held in highest esteem by the barristers who practice therein. It is source of congratulation to the judge to notice this very friendly feeling to his renomination and it may well be a source of equal concern to the people of this district to know our district court will be so well taken care of for the next term as in the past.

In reply to the question, "Who pays the expense of the President's junketing trip?" William Allen White says: "It is a stock built man with a ratty mustache, a font of double pica teeth and a jaw set with a Yale time lock; a man rather below medium height, inclined to be pussy, with a voice that needs a machinist and a vocabulary—a man named Roosevelt—T. Roosevelt, to be accurate. He is the first president of the United States in recent years who has refused all courtesies from the railroads and pays his way, and by the same token he is the first President in recent years whom the railroads are going to fight."—Fremont Tribune.

When you go to Omaha don't stop at the Murray Hotel. The writer held up folks there. The writer registered there this week under the assurance of the President and Secretary of the Nebraska Press Association, who wrote: "Arrangements have been made for headquarters at the Murray hotel for members of the Nebraska Press Association while attending the National Editorial Association at Omaha July 7 to 11. Special rates of $1.50 per day, two occupying one room, and $2.00 per day, one in a room." They taxed the writer fifty cents per meal and $1.00 for the privilege of sharing a room with another gentleman of the press. If this is a special rate, we will plead inability to see it and will have to be shown. It resembles a graft, a plain bunco.

The National Editorial Association has been in session at Omaha all the week. The writer went down to attend the opening session Tuesday and listened to the flow of wit and wisdom of some of the brainiest men of the country. Men and women who paint the day pictures of the world's news flashes upon the screen, men and women foremost in the field of publications of a national character. The addresses were very fine, but none more so than those of our western men. Nebraska was represented by Dr. Miller, E. Rosewater, John L. Webster, Ross Hammond and Hon. G. M. Hitchcock. After listening to their high opinions of Nebraska, her resources and possibilities, her press and her people, one may be pardoned for a feeling of satisfaction that next to a long and happy residence in this garden of Providence, one is privileged to tell of it with the potent pen and the modest country newspaper. Omaha is doing herself credit in entertaining the National Association. The State Editorial Association also met the 7th and is sharing in all the courtesies extended the National Association. After the conclusion of the week's program the entire party is afforded the pleasure of western excursions, many to Yellowstone park, some to Hot Springs and the Black Hills, others to Colorado points.

BOER LANGUAGES.

The Different Kinds of Dutch Spoken in South Africa.

It seems a strange thing to say, but there are three Dutch languages in South Africa. The earliest Dutch settlers at the Cape were largely Dutch sailors and others belonging to the lower orders of Amsterdam, Rotterdam and other Dutch seaports. Their language was a low Dutch dialect to begin with, and although the sprinkling of Dutch officers at the Cape did their best to preserve the language of the Netherlands they could not prevent the dialect of the settlers from still further degenerating into a mere colloquial patois. Its degeneration was doubtless largely brought about by domestic servants and slaves—Hottentots, Malays and Mozambique Kaffirs—who spoke it very imperfectly and introduced into it many strange words and idioms. This, then, is the genesis of what is variously known as "Cape Dutch," "Kitchen Dutch," "Patrol Dutch," "Afrikaans" and "Afrikaander Taal."

Its basis is Dutch, but the nouns have lost their inflections and the verbs their conjugations, while grammatical gender and syntax are really have gone by the board. To the educated Hollander of today it is a literary atrocity, and he cannot away with it, but to the Afrikaander it is his mother tongue, the language of his home and his childhood, the exponent of all that he knows of humor and pathos. It is full of expressive idioms, pitiful proverbs and piquant expressions, like those so dear to the lowland Scot, and yet it is not a language, for it has no literature.

The second of the three Dutch languages referred to might be called "ecclesiastical Dutch," or, if you like, "African Dutch." It is the language of Holland as that language was written about 200 years ago. It is the language of the Dutch Bible and very much resembles our own authorized version in its simplicity and directness of style. It is the language of the Dutch psalm and Gesang books and of the devotional works of old Dutch divines, which make up the balance of the Dutch farmers' literature. In it are also written many tracts and a few devotional works by living ministers of the Dutch Reformed church. To the Boer wherever you find him it is the language of his church and of his religion. This is the Dutch language which the leaders of the Dutch Afrikaander party are determined to preserve. It is never spoken by Afrikaanders among themselves, however, and it is never written grammatically by them in their correspondence. "Huis-taak," Cape Dutch, will die out, but for as long as his children will forget or neglect to learn the language of his church and of his forefathers.

The third Dutch language might be called modern literary or "high Dutch"—that is, the language written and spoken by educated Hollanders of today. It is florid, involved in construction and very artificial in style as compared with the language of the Dutch Bible. Its pronunciation has also changed considerably in the interval, and even an educated Dutch speaking Afrikaander listening to a voluble Hollander can hardly make head or tail of what he is saying.—Scotsman.

A Legend About Cats.

The ancient Greeks thought that all creatures except cats had souls and that that animal lost its soul through a bargain made between a bridge architect and the devil. The architect had besought the devil to get his help in constructing an exceedingly dangerous bridge structure, and his Satanic majesty only consented to lend aid on condition that the first creature to cross it should lose its soul.

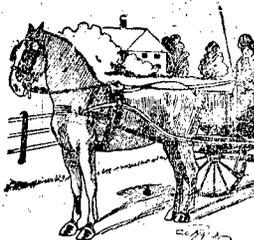

This was agreed upon, the bridge finished in due time and the devil sent to the opposite side to await his prey. The shrewd architect took good care to send a cat over before any human being was allowed to cross. On learning of the bargain the cat recrossed the bridge and scratched the architect's eyes out.

Pedigrees of Arabian Horses.

The Arabs have no written pedigrees. It is all an affair of memory and of notoriety in the tribe. Certain alleged pedigrees of Arabian horses, couched in romantic language and represented as carried in a small bag and hung by a cord around the animal's neck, have been published, but these are forgeries got up probably by horse dealers, Egyptian, Syrian or Persian. The breeding of every horse is a matter of common knowledge, and it would be impossible for his owner to fabricate pedigrees so as to deceive the natives, even if he were so inclined. The Bedouins, it seems necessary to admit, are in general great liars, and they will lie (to a stranger) about the age, the qualities or the ownership of a horse, but they will not lie about his pedigree, even when they can do so with impunity. To be truthful on this subject is almost a matter of religion, certainly a point of honor in the desert.—Atlantic.

Animals That Delight to Play.

In animals the faculty of amusement awakes very early. Our four footed friends seem to be aware of this and make it a part of their parental duties to amuse their young. A ferret will play with her kittens, a cat with hers, a dog with her puppies. A mare will play with her foal, though the writer has never seen a cow try to amuse her calf nor any birds their young. If their mothers do not amuse them, the young ones invent games of their own.—London Tit-Bits.

HOW DOGS FIND THEIR WAY

Evidence That They Possess Feelsur Power to Guide Them.

In the old days of the James river canal a fine setter was taken by his master on a packet boat which was so crowded that the dog was put in the captain's cabin to be out of the way, says the New York Mail and Express. His owner reached his destination after midnight and had taken so much wine by that time that he was carried off the boat, and no one remembered his setter.

Next morning the captain took the dog on deck with him, but was much afraid he would jump off to the tow-path and try to return that way, and so handsome an animal would have been in danger of being stolen.

Carlo, however, lay perfectly quiet, but with an air of listening that attracted notice. Toward noon he heard the sound of the horn of a packet coming from the opposite way, and as the boats passed each other he made a leap and was next heard from as having got off at the place where his master had stopped and as having gone at once to the house where he was a guest.

Could human intelligence have surpassed that?

This same dog lay on his master's grave and refused food until he died from starvation. But I do not give this as a case in point.

A gentleman who lived a hundred miles from a city moved there with all his possessions, including a bulldog which had been raised at his father's home, where he had hitherto resided. He was locked up in the car with the furniture and in the bustle of unloading disappeared, and two days afterward he reached his former home, coming by an inland route, as was known by parties who recognized him, so that he evidently marked out his own path without reference to the railroad on which he had been carried away.

Favored the Clarinet.

"So ye're goin' to make yer by a musician," said Mr. Rafferty.

"I am," answered Mr. Dolan. "I'm goin' to have 'im learn to play the clarinet."

"Why don't ye learn 'im the violin?"

"Because I want 'im to have every advantage. A violin makes fine music, but a clarinet is a heap more to be depended on in a serenade."—Washington Star.

Quite Enough.

"I never could understand why a woman puts anything on her face. She deceives no one but herself."

"Isn't that enough?"

Like the Rest.

"They tell me Biggins is working in politics. Is that true?"

"Well, parly. He's in politics."—Baltimore News.

BLACK-DRAUGHT STOCK and POULTRY MEDICINE

Stock and poultry have few troubles which are not bowel and liver irregularities. Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine is a bowing and liver remedy for stock. It puts the organs of digestion in a perfect condition. Prominent American breeders and farmers keep their herds and flocks healthy by giving them this occasional dose of Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine. If your stock do not feed and 25 cents for a sample can of this medicine from his dealer and keep his stock in vigorous health for weeks. Dealers generally keep Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine. If you do not send 25 cents for a sample can to the manufacturers, The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

ROUSELLE, GA., Jan. 30, 1902.

Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine is the best I ever tried. Our stock was looking bad when you sent me the medicine and now they are getting so fine. They are looking 20 percent better.

PIANO CONTEST!

THE WAYNE REPUBLICAN will give a beautiful Concert Grand Piano made by Chickering Bros., Chicago, and listed by them at $725.00, to the most popular lady in Wayne county and vicinity absolutely free, this lady to be designated by ballots cast for her by subscribers to, and by readers of the WAYNE REPUBLICAN, according to the terms and conditions set forth as follows:

- 1.—Any lady, married or single, may enter the contest.
- 2.—Any and every lady receiving one or more votes will be accredited with them at once and the result announced in these columns.
- 3.—In every paper printed from June 15, to December 24, 1903, will appear two columns; one is a FREE VOTE and may be voted by any one, the other is a SUBSCRIBER'S BALLOT and is to be voted by subscribers for whom they choose. For each cent paid by the subscriber, new or renewal, or arrears on account of subscription, one vote may be cast.
- 4.—Free votes may be cast within the time limit print ed on each else they become void. Subscriber's ballots may be cast at any time before the contest closes, which will be at six o'clock p. m. December 24, 1903.
- 5.—A ballot box will be placed in the REPUBLICAN office in which the ballots may be placed by the person voting or by some one for him, ballots may also be sent by mail. As votes are received they will be deposited in the ballot box, which will be kept under lock, and once each week in the presence of some disinterested person the same will be opened and the votes counted for the purpose of ascertaining the standing of the candidates.
- 6.—The piano may be seen (or its counterpart) on exhibition at the M. S. Davies Book Store in Wayne at any time, and all interested may thus know it is in fine shape, and for reason of its high grade was selected especially for this contest, to lend character and interest to it, for too often a cheap piano is selected to give away in a piano contest and the winner is wasting time in competing for it. But we are going to do this right—we are going to give the winner a piano equal to the best one in any home in the county, and to gain as the acquaintance we wish, to add to our subscription list as many new readers as possible, and to clean up the last dollar of a large amount of back subscription, we desire the interest to be genuine and make those who participate in the contest feel that they are doing something worth while and that their efforts are appreciated by this paper.
- Any lady contesting, or any one else, may act as agent to receive subscriptions for us, and a liberal commission will be paid them to do so. Blanks will be furnished them on application, also, they may extend to subscribers any and all clubbing combinations offered at any time.

The work of putting in stone crossings has rested a few days, two cars of stone have been used so far one of Maquoketa and one of Maquoketa to see which is the better. The Maquoketa costs but little more and is decidedly the better and cheaper in the end being more easily placed. About a car of stone per week will be used from now on until about sixty crossings have been built.

Slight injuries often disable a man and cause several days' loss of time and when blood poison develops, sometime result in the loss of a hand or limb. Chamberlain's Pain Balm is an anti-septic ointment. When applied to cuts bruises and burns it causes them to heal quickly and without maturation, and prevents any danger of blood poisoning. For sale by Raymond's Pharmacy.

Two accidents occurred July 4th, both were slight and the patients are not liable to much further danger now, though blood poisoning often results from much smaller injuries. One was the 13-year-old daughter of Henry Westerhaus who resides six or seven miles northwest of Wayne, she had one of her lower limbs bruised and skinned from the knee to the instep by a mis-step on the merry-go-round, the only wonder is that her limb was not crushed badly. The other accident occurred to Mr. Coogan, foreman of the Sberbahn brick works; a cannon cracker exploded in his hand, badly lacerating it and putting it out of commission for a few weeks but he will not lose the permanent use of it. A great wonder in this case is that he does not lose his hand as is most often the case. Both accidents occurred down town and were dressed by Dr. McIntyre to whose office their friends took them.

Cupid Won Out.

When Cupid gets over some folks with his little bow and arrows he makes it so hot for them that they just must get married right away and they usually do. Pretty Bessie McNeal, daughter of W. H. McNeal of this city, has kept her father in hot water for several months while the darts from Cupid's bow have made her blood boil with amorous longings. About Thanksgiving time last year she was infatuated with a college student named Jess VanNorman, of Plainview, but things did not materialize to requit the love she lavished upon the less responsive lover and Bessie drank some chloroform, wrote a note to those she loved telling them why she would die and waited while the supposed poison got in its work as an emetic instead. She felt relieved for some time, but in mid-winter the busy Cupid filled her full of darts again and she attempted to clope with the dashing young baker at Steen's Bakery, but her father boarded the same train the eloping pair took and after searching his daughter allowed the luckless swain to go, so badly scared that he never came back. But Bessie just would love somebody and a few weeks ago when Harry Hunt struck town the ideal of her heart was found. Cupid's darts were busy getting their blood up to a fever point and they planned an elopement that would head off the paternal restriction that stood in the way of their inclinations. There wasn't anything slow about Harry either. He is twenty, dashing and great with the girls, he is an orphan boy, and it is to his credit, he is an industrious fellow and those who know him say he is in earnest and will do the right thing by his young wife. Bessie is fourteen, pretty, and clearly beyond her father's restraint. The last chapters of the short and rapid courtship of Harry and Bessie commenced with their appearance at Wakefield Tuesday morning. Bessie attired as a boy in a dark suit and white vest, a black derby hat, necktie, cane, and all the other things a boy can wear with unobtrusive appearance. But Bessie, in the grace and fullness of figure, never was intended to wear trousers. Someway the crowded smoking car was aware something was going on and at Emerson a friend, recognizing the couple, wired her father. At Hubbard another friend phoned him to the same effect and the wires were kept hot with "stop 'em" messages to Dakota City, South Sioux City and Sioux City. The elopers left the train at South Sioux City and ran plump into the city marshal who was waiting for them. They were detained in that place until Sheriff Sides, of Dakota county, took Hunt in charge on a warrant sworn out by the girl's father and Mrs. McNeal took Bessie to her Wayne home on the evening train. Sheriff Sides delivered his charge to the Wayne authorities Tuesday evening and the fortunes of Harry Hunt were weighed in the balance of expediency during the following twelve hours and Wednesday morning it was fixed up. The button had evidently been touched as paternal objections melted and it was thought best to let the wedding proceed. The groom was released from custody and owing to the statutory barriers of Nebraska which provide that girls must be sixteen, they could not wed here and took the Wednesday afternoon train for Sioux City where the Iowa law is easy on folks in a hurry to wed and permits girls of fourteen to sip the nectars of the honeymoon. Mrs. McNeal went along to see that they were hitched up to stick and the last chapter near it is close as Mr. and Mrs. Blunt will remain in Sioux City and Mr. Blunt is employed there. The course of love seldom runs smooth in life or in fiction story, but to the young folks who have created a furor in social, legal and family circles and have enriched the gossip columns of the press, there is but the hearty good wishes that young folks deserve. May they live long and happy lives and never know cause for regret that they assumed the burdens of a new home in the bright but over-early morning of their youth. With the anxious father, whose solicitude for his daughter's welfare has caused him many anxious days, and instead of the fond and joyous farewell to his daughter there was the tremulous, choked voice and heartache a parent only can feel, there is a brotherly sympathy. Some say Bessie is a "chick of the old block" and that she is the one to be pitted, but it is a pretty tough job to dose up to Mac anyway.

July is usually a dull furniture month. We will make it save money to you to buy of us this month.

FLEETWOOD & JOHNSON.

A little affair occurred Wednesday morning that deserves attention from the insanity commission. An old man named Kimball, whose nerves are apparently in a shattered condition, and whose unseemly thoughts have been apparent whenever a calico gown was in sight, came to grief by contact with the sledge-hammer fists of B. Ebener who works in the Dammeier cigar factory. Ebener's daughters were employed in the Rundell grocery store and Kimball from the outside was performing unmanlylike and somewhat Ebener was making him proper advances to his daughters, or something to that effect. This was sufficient and he hunted up the old man and gave him several punches that badly marked Kimball's face and also broke the bones in Ebener's hand so he will be laid up for a month. There is no doubt the old man is not able to resist the cerebro-genital impulse that has quered him with his fellow men and he should be adjudged non compos mentis and helped, if help is possible.

Deering twice at Terwilliger Bros.

Lloyd Prouty, of Randolph was in Wayne Thursday. Mrs. Ella Whitney and children are visiting near Pilger. The College boys cross bats with the Hubbard boys Saturday afternoon. G. W. Crossland made a business trip to Lyons the first of the week. Mr. J. N. Rolston, of Mantia, Iowa, visited at the Frank Whitney home last week. Charlie Whitney, of Hartington, visited friends and relatives here the later part of last week. Cholera Infantum. This has long been regarded as one of the most dangerous and fatal diseases to which infants are subject. It can be cured, however, when properly treated. All that is necessary is to give Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and castor oil, as directed with each bottle and a cure is certain. For sale by Raymond's Pharmacy. At an adjourned session of the District Court here Monday, two cases were considered. Isaacs vs Isaacs, a divorce case was submitted on evidence and is held under advisement. Hanson vs Hanson a case that has been in the courts seven years through the supreme court and back again, remanded for retrial, is in the District court again as an original action, some new points being brought in and this was hearing upon some of the preliminary features. The date of trial will probably be at one of the regular sessions of court if both parties are prepared, the plaintiff and defendant are brothers, one John E. Hansen lives near Concord the other Hans E. Hansen lives north of Wayne. The cause of action involves the title and possession of property of consid rable value and the case has been and will be hard fought. Welch & Davis, of this city and Millquist of Sioux City, are retained by Hans E. Hansen and Marshall, of Kearney, and Post, of Columbus by John E. Hansen, Judge Boyd has under advisement the points submitted. The best sensation of the season was enacted a few days ago by the Normal College boys. One, whom we will call Dead Easy, was right in it when a trip to a cherry patch was planned and could almost taste them in expectancy as they cautiously climbed the orchard fence only to meet a blind battery of rapid fire artillery and one of the confederates went down. Dead Easy helped carry the wounded student back to the College and a physician was hastily summoned from the boy's dormitory to diagnose the case and prescribe the proper remedy for "red ink" stains on the wounded man's clothing. The case was found to be serious and Mr. Dead Easy was given visions of hades when next morning an improvised officer was looking into the matter and it was found all parties concerned in the cherry patch raid were criminally responsible for the injured man's condition. However, the injured party felt some better and agreed to recover and not appear against anyone in so much as they were all boys together if enough cash was in sight, and just as Dead Easy had it all fixed for his share the light commenced to dawn upon him that the injured man was about frisky enough to make another cherry patch raid and went around to tell his troubles to sympathetic ears of the corn fields. Wayne celebrated July 3rd and 4th under difficulties. She prepared well, planned well but the flood gates of the heavens opened wide on the 3rd spoiling the entire first day of the M. W. A. Log Rolling Association picnic. In the forenoon of the second day, the 4th, it even rained some but towards noon it cleared and a fair crowd arrived. It was carefully estimated at four thousand and it was a most good natured crowd too. Mud was supreme but towards evening under the fast drying sun it was possible to pull off the ball game which the college boys won from Bascroft, 5 to 2, a few of the minor races, the balloon ascension which was an unusual pretty one, the aeroaunt going up about 3000 feet in the clear and quiet atmosphere of a perfect summer evening. He tried to detach his parachute, but it was tangled and the rope would not work the detachment lever, so he fired six shots from a revolver up through his balloon and this permitted enough hot air to escape to permit the descension which took place nearly two miles southeast of town. He came down quickly considering the buoyancy of the balloon which he had to pull down with him. The crowd stayed late into the night enjoying the fireworks, the dances at the opera-house and the bowery, the fuffonery of ye little rubber ball and ye cozzetti. Those who purchased concessions aid those who purchased large stocks of fruits and perishable provisions came out about even as they only had a part of a day instead of two days to do business in. It is to the credit of the executive committee that they did so well as their work was done under difficulties from first to last. Large outside delegations of Woodmen were present both days in spite of the weather, and though A. R. Talbot made no address nor were any of the principal features enjoyed by Woodmen carried out it was a good natured crowd and they returned home feeling that though they missed a treat it was the inevitable. It was unfortunate that the M. W. A. picnic was held at this time as it was arranged without mature deliberation and it was resisted by many members of the Wayne camps but after the arrangement was made all worked faithfully and did the best possible. Wakefield was selected as the place to hold the 1904 Log Rolling Picnic and we hope they will pull off the event in better weather.

Wm. McCune has sold the Standard Oil route to J. E. Maselle who is now in charge.

For A. O. U. W. picnic held at Emerson July 21, tickets will be sold only good returning same date. Fare 60 cents.

George Barnes is very sick at the home of relatives in English where he has been visiting a few weeks. It is doubtful if he will recover at his advanced age.

The officers elected for the ensuing year by the M. W. A. Log Rolling Picnic Association were H. P. Shumway President, and J. A. Brown Secretary, both residents of Wakefield where the next picnic will be held.

I have a few bargains in Wayne property ranging in price from $600 to $1800. Some of these I can sell on monthly payments almost as low rentals. Also vacant lots. If interested call and see me. I. W. ALTRER. 3 wks

Fred Volpp returned Monday evening from his trip east, he was accompanied by his brother William and Mrs. Trautwein who are just from Germany and will make their home in this country. Mrs. Trautwein is the mother of Ed and Henry, formerly of this city, for whom she will keep house at Bloomfield where they reside.

At the M. E. church. Prayer meeting every Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock.

Rev. Dawson will deliver a temperance lecture in the evening. Baptism will be administered and probate papers received into full connection at the morning service.

Married. Ernest Ray Agler and Miss Edna Sewell, both of Wayne were united in marriage at the residence of the bride's parents, on Wednesday evening July 8, 1903, in the presence of the family relatives of the contracting parties. Rev. C. N. Dawson officiating. Presents were valuable and appropriate. This paper unites with many friends in good wishes for this worthy young couple.

Guy R. Wilbur Dead. Our citizens, though not expecting the death of Mr. Wilbur since his health took its serious turn early in the year, were nevertheless shocked Thursday morning when it was announced that he had passed away at five o'clock. He was up town the day before and conversed with friends in his cheery, hopeful way, and for the past few weeks he expressed to several that he was feeling much better. But with the disease insidiously working it became a question of endurance that he braved but could not down, and the complications were too much for the tired body—it hastened to its rest. The funeral will be conducted Sunday afternoon at two o'clock from the Wilbur home, Bev. C. N. Dawson of the M. E. church officiating in the absence of Rev. Peter Birrell of the Presbyterian church of which Mr. Wilbur was a member. Telegrams were sent to his brothers who will be here to attend the funeral, and his sister and husband J. M. Sutherland, of Ponca, have been here since Wednesday, Mrs. W. H. Buslow residing north of Wayne is also a sister. Mr. Wilbur was one of the old residents of Wayne and one of the most able and highly regarded members of the bar of this section.

Hoskins. The married and single men of Hoskins played a game of ball Wednesday and the married men got walloped to the tune of 5 to 10. We presume the old fellows begin to see (as this is the second time the boys have done them) that they are getting old, and in reality a back number when they go up against the boys, and now to add to their sorrow the kid nine are insinuating that they can beat them any day they want to try it.

The Fourth at Hoskins is a thing of the past, and it was a big day. Hoskins is proud that she can lay claim to the best speaker in the state, Gurney of Winside; the very best vocal music, and the best rendering of the Declaration of Independence. The rain of Friday put a stop to the preparations for a grand street parade, and most of the horse races and most of the other races, but dancing was in order all afternoon and evening, and a general good time enjoyed by the big crowd present.

R. Burbank was here visiting friends the first of the week.

John Shannon was in town from Carroll Tuesday.

Alma Benser accompanied C. Burbank to Norfolk Monday evening.

W. J. Weatherholt and Artie were in town Wednesday.

Mrs. Mettlen came down from Wayne Tuesday to visit her daughter Mrs. Candor.

Johnnie Keating, who resided at Mr. Fenner's over Sunday, returned to his home at Wakefield Tuesday.

Mrs. B. E. Fenner is enjoying a visit with a sister this week.

C. Linn, who had his thumb nearly taken off in a corn sheller some weeks ago, held a policy in the Woodmen Accident Association at Lincoln, received July 1st $36 in full settlement of claim for injury. We find that this is always the case that all injury claims are settled in full by this company, and goes to further prove that all claims by any part of the Woodmen order are always cheerfully and promptly paid to all, and for an insurance fraternal order the Woodmen take the lead.

The K. E. K. Mellor family left Monday for Colorado Springs to reside, having purchased property there. Friends gave them a hearty farewell party last Friday evening and wish them a pleasant residence in the west, and that they will return to Wayne in the near future.

An unknown man was run over by the Bloomfield branch train on last Monday night and instantly killed, being mangled in a horrible manner. The accident occurred just this side of Bloomfield and the body was found the next morning by the returning train. A half smoked cigar and a couple of whiskey bottles, one empty and the other nearly so, were found beside the body. It is presumed that the man became intoxicated and lay down on the track and went to sleep. He was later identified by Bloomfield parties as a farm hand who had been around that place the past few days. He was buried at Bloomfield Wednesday.

The work of putting in stone crossings has rested a few days, two cars of stone have been used so far one of Maquoketa and one of Maquoketa to see which is the better. The Maquoketa costs but little more and is decidedly the better and cheaper in the end being more easily placed. About a car of stone per week will be used from now on until about sixty crossings have been built.

Slight injuries often disable a man and cause several days' loss of time and when blood poison develops, sometime result in the loss of a hand or limb. Chamberlain's Pain Balm is an anti-septic ointment. When applied to cuts bruises and burns it causes them to heal quickly and without maturation, and prevents any danger of blood poisoning. For sale by Raymond's Pharmacy.

Two accidents occurred July 4th, both were slight and the patients are not liable to much further danger now, though blood poisoning often results from much smaller injuries. One was the 13-year-old daughter of Henry Westerhaus who resides six or seven miles northwest of Wayne, she had one of her lower limbs bruised and skinned from the knee to the instep by a mis-step on the merry-go-round, the only wonder is that her limb was not crushed badly. The other accident occurred to Mr. Coogan, foreman of the Sberbahn brick works; a cannon cracker exploded in his hand, badly lacerating it and putting it out of commission for a few weeks but he will not lose the permanent use of it. A great wonder in this case is that he does not lose his hand as is most often the case. Both accidents occurred down town and were dressed by Dr. McIntyre to whose office their friends took them.

Cupid Won Out.

When Cupid gets over some folks with his little bow and arrows he makes it so hot for them that they just must get married right away and they usually do. Pretty Bessie McNeal, daughter of W. H. McNeal of this city, has kept her father in hot water for several months while the darts from Cupid's bow have made her blood boil with amorous longings. About Thanksgiving time last year she was infatuated with a college student named Jess VanNorman, of Plainview, but things did not materialize to requit the love she lavished upon the less responsive lover and Bessie drank some chloroform, wrote a note to those she loved telling them why she would die and waited while the supposed poison got in its work as an emetic instead. She felt relieved for some time, but in mid-winter the busy Cupid filled her full of darts again and she attempted to clope with the dashing young baker at Steen's Bakery, but her father boarded the same train the eloping pair took and after searching his daughter allowed the luckless swain to go, so badly scared that he never came back. But Bessie just would love somebody and a few weeks ago when Harry Hunt struck town the ideal of her heart was found. Cupid's darts were busy getting their blood up to a fever point and they planned

CHAPTER X.—(Continued.)

Lulu sat still and speechless, charmed with the eloquence of the speaker, her eyes shining, her full red lips apart. At some argument more telling than the rest, something that appealed to her heart, she turned instinctively to look straight into the eyes of Bruce Conway, only to discover, with dismay, that he was not looking at her nor the speaker. His face was strangely white, his eyes were looking across at the opposite gallery at some one—a pretty girl, Lulu judged from the expression of rapt interest he wore. Silently her glance followed him, and in the seat of faces till it found the form of his, and this is what she saw:

Near to and on the right of the Reporter's Gallery, a lady leaning forward against the railing, her dark, passionately beautiful eyes following Paul Winans with an earnest, intense gaze. The face of fair woman around her pale into insensibility as Lulu looked at that pale, clear profile, as classically chiseled, as "fauntly faultless" as if cut in white marble by some master hand, the white line of the crimson lips, the black, arched brows so clearly defined against the pale complexion, the eyes so dark and so bright, that, as Lulu looked at her, she felt as if she were looking at the face of a goddess.

Between eight and nine o'clock Grace had specified as the hour when her husband might call—and the French clock on the mantel of her private parlor at Willard's Hotel chimed the half-hour sharply as he was ushered in by an obsequious waiter. A child was toddling in from the other, feeling all the while a little nervous, for the surface as mother stirred for an instant. Then her lawful master drew her hand through his arm, with the cold deference he might have accorded a stranger. She bowed to Mr. Conway, and was led away and placed in the carriage that awaited her, without once looking back to her aunt and Lulu, whom he had left talking with some friends in the rotunda. He said nothing to them, however, of the scene that had just occurred.

CHAPTER XI.
Between eight and nine o'clock Grace had specified as the hour when her husband might call—and the French clock on the mantel of her private parlor at Willard's Hotel chimed the half-hour sharply as he was ushered in by an obsequious waiter. A child was toddling in from the other, feeling all the while a little nervous, for the surface as mother stirred for an instant. Then her lawful master drew her hand through his arm, with the cold deference he might have accorded a stranger. She bowed to Mr. Conway, and was led away and placed in the carriage that awaited her, without once looking back to her aunt and Lulu, whom he had left talking with some friends in the rotunda. He said nothing to them, however, of the scene that had just occurred.

The unhappy mother entering at that moment on her way toward the door, at that night, with a quivering lip, and pale hands clasped above her wildly throbbing heart. It was but for a moment. As he turned to the right of her sister, with their child clasped in one strong arm, she came forward slowly, very slowly, not standing before him at last, but bowed her head and hands clasped together.

"Oh, my husband," she breathed, in low, intense accents, "you have scorned all words of mine, turned away from me with my defence unheard—let the pure love of our innocent babe plead for its innocent mother!"

It was like the low plaint for forgiveness, which a wayward child that comes sobbing home, after a mother with its own fault to confess—and she was so childish, so very young, so very wretched. A sharp thrill of agonized pity and self-reproach made his firm lip quiver as he looked down at her, his eye and hate streaked in his soul. A wild impulse to dash her to his bosom—to crush against his own heart all the thorns of her life, for one moment to forget her pain, to be sharply dispelled by the memory of his jealous vow, and he answered not, but gazed on her for speechless moments, marking with eyes that had hungered twenty months for a sight of her, every feature of her face, that distinguished this fairly famous beauty.

"You will not even answer me?" she moaned, at last.

"It needs not his love to plead your cause, Grace," he answered, in heart-wringing accents. "While I thought that your only fault was in despoiling me before our marriage, my own love pleaded unceasingly for you, my every effort was directed to the destruction of my very jealous heart. I have loved you with my whole soul, heart and mind, and I have succeeded. The message I sent you by Captain Chendon was the outgrowth of that tender mood. In all probability I should soon have returned to you—glad to call you mine, even though I knew you to have once loved another."

"Mamma, pretty mamma!" lisped the baby, reaching his arms to her in vague adoration, all the while with his eyes on her, and with cold deference, he laid him in his mother's arms, as he answered:

"Not to blame for meeting him accidentally, of course, Grace; but you were to blame for stopping him, for clinging to him, for looking into his eyes as you did, knowing what you did of the feeling existing between himself and me—deeply to blame."

"I was frightened," she pleaded. "I did not think—it would have happened just the same had it been a stranger, and not Mr. Conway."

"Ah, no!" he sneered, beside himself with jealous passion. "I have learned, too late, that your marriage with me was one of utility and pride. The only love in the book you gave him, Grace—such love as you have never accorded me."

He was walking excitedly up and down the floor, never even glancing at her. She sighed bitterly, following her burning cheek against her child, as though to smother its tears before she spoke again.

"You are mistaken; not love, anything else but that! I do not know how to please you, my husband. You are, for aught, carelessly jealous—oh! what did you want me to do?"

"I did not want you to touch him! I did not want you to speak to him or to see him. I am jealous, Grace," stopping suddenly beside her, and gathering all her long fair ringlets into his hands, and lifting one bright tangle carelessly to his lips—"so jealous that I am almost sure that with the very winds when they dare lift this treasured glory from your shoulder."

She trembled so violently that she was forced to put down the child on a cushion at her feet. As she turned, with a mute gesture, as if to throw herself into his arms, he dropped the golden mass from his hands and coldly turned away.

you, Paul, so much—oh, so much—that I felt I could have your blame—there all your anger, but to look on your dear face once more! I hoped you would not see me. I did not know you could be so cruel and unjust to me, or I would have fought harder against the temptation."

Moving toward her, he half opened his arms, then dropped them again at his sides, with something like a moan.

"Oh, if I could only believe you!" "And do you not?" she asked, slowly. "I cannot. The miserable doubt that you have never loved me, the fear that your marriage with me arose from selfish considerations while your heart was in the keeping of one who valued it so little then, however much he may now—Grace, with all these torturing doubts on my soul, I try to believe you, and— I cannot."

"Once for all," she says, still patiently, "let me tell you, whether you credit or not, Paul, that my love for Bruce Conway compared with my love for you was as moonlight unto sunlight, or as water unto wine. He was the deal of my silly, inexperienced girlhood—my childhood—he never could have been the object of my affection. You are all I can ask for in perfection of manliness, saving this unhappily jealous nature, and my whole heart is yours. I did not marry you for any selfish consideration, except that I loved you and waited always to be near that strong, true, noble heart, sheltered by its warm affection. Paul, can you believe these things if I tell you so on my very knees?"

"I cannot! My vow is recorded—I cannot help myself—it must be fulfilled!" "Since this is your decision," she answered, in calm tones, that belied her tortured heart, "would it not be as well to separate altogether? Would not your better self be inspired by a complete divorce from one who has so deeply deceived you that it seems impossible to trust her again? I confess that it is irksome to me to live upon the splendors of your wealth supplies while I am in exile and an alien from your heart. Once fairly divorced, and we could go away—my baby and I—and never trouble you again. I have worked for myself before; I am sure I can do it again."

BASEBALL TRICKS OF OLD.

Odd Plays that Have Marked the Game in Days Gone By.

Charlie Daniels, the ex-umpire, who is now with the Hartford Baseball Corporation, was talking of freak plays the other day. He said:

"A game between Boston and Washington was played at Beantown. Charlie Bennett was catching and Mike Kelly was sitting on the bench when a foul goes up in the air, and Kelly, being captain, yells to the umpire that he will put Bennett out of the game, and at the same time he puts on a mitt with lightning speed and catches the ball."

"He then tries to make the umpire allow the catch. But the umpire, after wrangling a long time with Kelly, decides the ball was in play and Bennett could not be removed from the game until the ball had been caught by a player in the game, so he ordered the batsman to hit over. This was quick work of Kelly, even if it did not work."

"New York was playing Philadelphia at the former's grounds. Charlie Bassett was on third and Jack Glasscock on second. The batter hit an infield fly. Bassett rushes to the plate, with Glasscock close behind, the ball is fielded to the catcher, who touches Bassett, but at the same time Glasscock slides through Bassett's legs and scores before the catcher can put him out. This one of the trickiest plays ever made in baseball, as it brought in the winning run."

"Archie Latham scored on a run by making an attempt to slide home; the catcher gets in front of the plate and waits for the runner, but as the throw is low the catcher has to get on his knees, and Latham takes advantage of this by leaping over him. This is the only aerobic run ever made."

"Jack Boyle, while catching for New York, made a double play unassisted. Two men were on bases—one on second and one on third. The batter was instructed to bunt, and he responded by dropping the ball about three feet from the plate. At the same time both runners tried to score, and Boyle touched both of them, making the only double play like this that ever happened on the diamond up to that date."

"In a game between Scranton and Wilkesbarre a very amusing incident occurred. Tim Hurst was umpiring Sandy Griffin, who was at the bat, makes a feint to hit the ball, but draws back. Tim yells out, 'Strike one.' 'What for, Tim?' asked Sandy. 'You went a little too far, Sandy.' The next ball was the same, and the umpire says 'Strike two,' saying that Sandy went too far again. The next ball came straight over the plate. Hurst yells, 'Strike three; the man is out.' At the same time he cries to Sandy that he did not go far enough that time."

"In a game between Detroit and St. Joseph at the latter's grounds a ball was hit to left field. The fielder saw a big snake in the grass and refused to go after the ball, and the batter was credited with a home run."

"Daddy, an outfielder for St. Joseph, hit a ball for a home run, but instead of going down to first he started and ran to third base, completing the circuit the wrong way. He was declared out for running out of the line of base."—Baltimore Sun.

Birds of a Feather.
"What are your rates?" queried the bold man as he entered the health-resort hotel.

"Ten dollars per day," responded the proprietor.

"Can't you make a reduction? I'm a robber."

"What has that to do with it?" "Why, I thought perhaps you recognized the profession."

JOAN

A GREAT old sweet-smelling garden, and one little maid among the flowers and bees and butterflies. All alone she was, for mother did not come out into the garden much these days. Joan stopped before a tall pink hollyhock, and spoke.

"I don't think this is such a nice summer as most," she said. "I used to say 'fink,' once—oh, years and years ago, when I was ker-wite a little baby, but now 'therink,' now, 'cause I'm most grown up, you see."

Then she walked on again down the little twisted gravel path, with her hands clasped behind her, and her brows furrowed with thought. For so Man Daddy used to walk when he was having a big "therink."

"But it's whole days—most years—since Man Daddy went away," she said, stopping beside a gray green bush of lavender, "and he said goodby so lastly, he squeezed me so hard that he hurt, and his eyes were angry, and I hadn't been naughty at all. Are you sorry, sweet lavender?"

She buried her face in the fragrance, then trotted on down the little path. The sky came to a tall foxglove. She tilted back her yellow head and gazed up at the white and red bells with wide eyed gravity, her hands still clasped behind her back.

"One day," she said, "a lady came to see mother. It was—it was a long, big time ago, afore you were borned, pretty ladies what bow, and she tried to kiss me when she was going, but I didn't like her, you see, and I would not kiss her, and I ran in to mother, and mother was ill on the—I forgot—the bed without covers in the drawing-room, you know, and the lady was smiling ever so, and her dress was as long as a new little baby's, and that was the day Man Daddy went away."

She bowed gravely to the polite foxgloves, and trotted on.

Before a group of tall, white lilies she stopped again. She came closer, and, stretching up her arms, pulled one gently down and laid her soft cheek against the snowy petals.

"Man Daddy loved you the bestest of all. 'Queen of the Garden'—that's what he called you, you know." Then a cry went up in the warm, sweet air. "I want Man Daddy—oh, I want him so bad!"

The little hands were unclasped only to be locked together tighter still. "For I'm most grown up, you see," whispered Baby Joan to the tall white lily, "and grown-ups don't cry, you know."

She left the lilies, and walked on in deep thought. At the end of the path her wet sunshade was tied with a string to a nail in the wall. Such a long while it had taken to fix that sunshade "propely," but Joan eyed it proudly now.

"Are you ker-wite happy?" she said, peeping round at the clamorous white and pink convolvulus behind the little parrot. "Poor muslin ladies, didn't the wind blow you dreafly?"

Then she watched a little blue butterfly as she fluttered about from flower to flower, and finally sailed over the wall.

"If I was a butterfly," she said to the convolvulus, "I would soon find Man Daddy." She sighed, so that her small muslin-plumfered bosom gave a big heave. "I'd had them," with another thought, "I'd had them, you know."

She sighed again. "Mother says, 'Don't worry, dear, when I ask when Man Daddy's coming home, and then she kisses me ever so, to make up.'"

She trotted on again with hands behind her back.

A woman looking from a window turned away in disgust from the small feminine imitation of Man Daddy. Suddenly the chubby legs twinkled in wild haste up the garden, across the velvet lawn, out of the open gate into the road.

"I can go 'most as fast as a butterfly," said Joan, "and I find Man Daddy at the nice places where Pido was took when he was lost, where there were such a heap of heaps of dogs. I know Man Daddy'll be there, with a gleam of chuckle that heeps of the dimples laughing to her cheek."

"Mother never thought of that. I believe it was the lilies what put the therink in my inside."

I must be quick, 'cause Man Daddy will be fonesome without me and mother, 'cause I'm most grown up and I'm lonesome, too."

She started at a run, then looked back over her shoulder at the sunflower with a troubled little laugh. "My legs won't work propely," she said, and struggled on. The sun had gone behind great threatening clouds, but Joan took no heed. All her mind was centered on getting on. She took no more rest till she came suddenly upon a group of poppies growing in the grass at the wayside; by then her legs stumbled and gave way, and she sank down on to the grass. She whispered to them in a little voice that was breathless and full of tears. "I want mother and Man Daddy," she said, and then she lay still and set all her teeth together to keep the sobs back. But presently she sat up. "Day's coming," she gasped, her grammar growing weak in her extremity. A sudden gleam lit her face.

"Grow-up angels cry to give the flowers water," she said, as a great tear rolled down her cheek, and kneeling, she bent over the poppies and sobbed her heart out, while the tears dripped on to the flowers. But other drops came and mingled with hers—great angry drops from dark clouds overhead—drops that beat the poppies shuddering to the earth. "The angels are crying, too," murmured Joan, sleepily, and rolled over and lay still.

The angels' crying was long and vehement. It woke Joan several times, but she was dazed with weariness. Once she murmured with a smile: "It's most a cold bath 'stead of a teppy-to-day, mother," and went to sleep again.

In the dimly lit room on the white little bed Joan tossed wearily from side to side. "You see, little blue ladies, it hurts bad in your stummick—jus' here," laying one hot little hand on her chest, "but I'm not crying, you know."

"No, my brave little darling," murmured the woman, bending over her. "But you is, mother," in an access of utter surprise. "I felt it on my head. I finked—therinked—grown-ups never—Oh, it—hurts, mother," her fingers clinging around her mother's, "it hurts, you see," drawing a long, sobbing breath.

Presently she began anxiously: "That did sound like crying a bit, but, with a tremulous little laugh, 'it wasn't—it wasn't, really—'"

"No, no, dear—I know—try to go to sleep," and she began to sing a lullaby.

"You sing very nice, all of you," babbled the restless voice. "I do like to hear singing—you can hear the wind shaking their voices—but Man Daddy won't come! One day, it was years and years ago, little pink ladies, I ran and ran, you see, I'm not really a butterfly, but then, when butterflies use their legs they go quite slow, and I haven't any wings, you see—"

A frock-coated figure bent over the bed now, and the woman's eyes never left his face.

"Fever high—she must be soothed," "I want Man Daddy—you're not Man Daddy—do you know, out day, when I was ker-wite little—I cut mine finger—I cried—wasn't it funny? But Man Daddy tied it and I laughed, 'cause he said it was a dolly. Would he tie my stummick up if he was here? It hurts, you see—oh, it hurts!"

Anguish and broken came the woman's voice: "I do not know where he is."

The doctor looked grave, and presently he went.

"Darling, you are so brave and good, will you try to go to sleep, to be well when Daddy comes back?" "Is he coming back, mother? Oh, it hurts!" with a sob. "It hurts so, mother."

"If you go to sleep, dear—oh, do Joan, do you try?" "I will shut mine eyes—tight, mother, so—"

The restless little body lay rigidly still.

"Think of the sheep, dear," said the mother, using a recipe she had found successful with Joan in a former childish illness. "Count them as they come up to the gate and jump over it. See, there they go—two, two, three."

Presently the great eyes opened with a pitreously worried look.

"Mother, they stick! They won't jump over the gate at all!" "All the woman's pride had gone. She racked her brain for some clever of her husband's whereabouts. At last she thought she had one faint and elusive, but she would try—she would telegraph. She crept from the room while Joan lay in an uneasy doze, and wrote her telegram, and sent it off with a wild prayer in her heart.

"Never mind now, little one. It is all through you I am here." "Honest Inghin, Man-Daddy?" "Honest Inghin, Joan." She beamed, satisfied.

"If I hadn't looked for you, you wouldn't have come. Aren't you ever so glad, mother?" "Low and earnest came the woman's answer: "Yes, dear."

"May I go and tell the flowers now, Man Daddy?" "Not yet, Joan." "But you haven't tied up my stummick into a dolly—"

"Not this time. It's still and be good, little one."

"Yes, Man Daddy. Kiss me." "It bent over her and kissed her. "You, too, mother." Then suddenly she dimbled gleefully. "I want a jumble kiss," she said.

"There was a little constrained pause. "You haven't forgotten, Man Daddy," in shrill tones of woe. "No."

"Then be quick," holding out her hands. "Come 'long, mother." "We must humor her," murmured the mother, with downcast eyes. "It is a foolish game, but—"

"The man kept his arm around her when the 'game' was over. "We must pretend well, she is so sharp," he muttered, weakly. Joan lay and chuckled drowsily. When the long lasses rested on the baby's cheeks, the woman made a slight movement away from him; but his arm tightened.

"Suppose she wakened?" he said. "There was no sound then in the room save the ticking of his watch. Presently he spoke: "No, I cannot go away again."

"Stay," she breathed—"I do not believe that talk." "God bless you, dear!" Silence again. Then—"I should have denied it, Nora."

"No—no; I was wicked to doubt you."

"I don't do it now, before—"

But she stopped him with a kiss. "Man Daddy, kiss me, too. May I go and tell the flowers in the morning? I am ker-wite well now."

"Go to sleep again, little one." She shut her eyes obediently, then opened them with a gleeful smile. "All the sheeps are jumping over the gate now, mother," she cried—"every one of them!"—Quiver.

USES OF FRUITS.
Often More Useful Than Prescriptions of Physicians.

Many of our common fruits are just as useful and much nicer than doctors' prescriptions. The apple, for instance, not only is the apple an excellent purifier of the blood, but it is a cure for dysentery, and has also the peculiar effect of restoring an intoxicated person to sobriety. A diet of stewed apples, eaten three times a day, has worked wonders in cases of confirmed drunkenness, giving the patient an absolute distaste for alcohol in any form.

The pineapple is another fruit most valuable in throat affections. Indeed, it has saved many a life of a diphtheritic patient. The juice squeezed from a ripe pine is the finest thing in the world for cutting the fungus-like membrane which coats the throat in diphtheria, and is used in time never fails to cure.

After a severe attack of influenza the throat is often relaxed and the tonsils painful. An old-fashioned remedy still in use in many parts of the west of England is a conserve of roses. This is a sort of jam made from the hips of the common wild rose. It is not unpleasant in taste and certainly possesses strongly astringent properties.

To eat a grape a minute for an hour at a time, and to repeat this performance three or four times a day, eating very little else meantime but dry bread, may seem a monotonous way of spending the time. This treatment works wonders for thin, nervous, anemic people whose digestions have got out of order from worry or overwork. It is no mere quack prescription, but a form of cure recognized and advised by many well-known physicians. Grapes are perhaps the most digestible of any fruit in existence.

A cordial made from the blackberries is greatly recommended by the Devonshire country folk as a cure for colic, and many a farmer's wife makes blackberry cordial as regularly as elderberry wine. The latter, heated and mixed with a little cinnamon, is one of the best preventives known against a chill. The flowers, too, of the elder come in useful. An ointment made by layering them in mutton suet and olive oil is soothing in case of boils. Nowadays doctors forbid quack patents to eat any kind of sweet foods, but recommend them to eat at least a dozen walnuts a day. There is no doubt that walnuts are most useful to gouty subjects, or in cases of chronic rheumatism. Swelling goes down and pain decreases.—London Answers.

COMMERCIAL AND FINANCIAL

New York. The clothing industry is apparently in a somewhat better business situation, but there are several uncertainties connected with the more conservative feeling in regard to distribution of merchandise, the long period of low temperatures has curtailed trade in dry goods, clothing and other seasonable lines. Stocks have advanced, but the prospects for semi-annual inventories are not altogether encouraging. Railway earnings thus far available for June surpass last year's by 10.3 per cent and exceed those of 1901 by 17.4 per cent. After further moderate excursions in prices of iron and steel, especially in pig iron and pig iron finished shapes, it is expected that the steel market there are indications that no additional collections of consequence are probable for the present.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade makes the foregoing summary of the industrial situation. Continuing the Review says:

Buyers are still uncertain as to whether the bottom has been reached, and the consequent conservatism to public contracts. "Unseasonable" weather has not been obtained, however, and the time is improving. While it is well known that a large amount of new machinery is specified in plants in course of erection, or contemplated, there is an inclination to delay the placing of contracts as long as possible, in view of the fact that the foreign situation. Contracts for steel rails were placed abroad, presumably because of early shipment required, while rebate of duty on materials for manufacture and export encouraged foreign trade, which has begun to revive as the domestic market recovers.

Manufacturers of cotton goods have again shown a greater confidence in the market, notably sheetings, although there is no attempt to secure prices in proportion to the present position of the raw material. Production is being steadily curtailed, and supplies of goods will soon be abnormally light. No improvement is expected in the character of reports from foreign markets in regard to the distribution, except that moderate success has attended the semi-annual clearance sales of local jobbers. New lines of light-weight wools for next spring are still confined to narrow and low grade goods. Only a fair supplementary demand is noted for men's heavy-weight wools. Wool is unchanged in price. New England shoothers are busy on fall footwear, with sufficient orders on hand to assure activity for some time.

Failures this week were 223 in the United States, against 201 last year, and 19 in Canada, compared with 20 a year ago.

Bridgport's Review: Wheat, including flour, exports for the week ending June 25 aggregate 3,571,152 bushels, against 3,115,115 last week, 3,382,701 this week last year and 4,684,147 in 1901. Wheat exports since July 1 aggregate 221,607,689 bushels, against 248,698,250 last season and 217,777,724 in 1900. Corn exports aggregate 1,285,724 bushels, against 1,089,353 last week, 1,310,141 a year ago and 1,455,400 in 1901. For the five-year period exports are 65,150,104 bushels, against 26,222,013 last season and 175,081,410 in 1901.

Chicago. The grain markets, those centers of instability, of international trade and special activity, have been attracting wide attention during the past week. Prices of all cereals have been fluctuating over widening ranges, with the trend continuously upward, until new high figures for the crop year have been recorded all around, while in wheat the price levels are higher than for several years past. The Northwest has struck into a period of nervousness over the crop outlook, and this will in all likelihood be witnessed again if no good rains fall by the middle of next week. The speculative element in grain, always on the alert for the possible development of uncertainty, has been anticipating in an extraordinary degree, and upon the first faint indication of the rise of an influence of an adverse nature respecting the crop, is to be found operating accordingly. The fact that it is the business of speculation to discount the future, finds powerful and forcible illustration in the grain trade.

It is not to be denied that the bulls in the present campaign have had a basis upon which to build up prices, for it has been dry all over the Northwest for some time. Without doubt there has been no damage done anywhere that is worth pointing relative to the crop as a whole, and there is probably no important district in the three States where there is any such deterioration as to cause alarm.

Jokes and Jokelets that Are Supposed to Have Been Recently Born—Sayings and Doings that Are Old, Curious and Laughable—The Week's Humor.

The Mistress—But what made you leave Mrs. Smythe so suddenly, Maria?

Putting This and That Together. "Charley, dear, there aren't any races in town, are there?"

Wary Walker. "I don't know whether that sign means 'shotgun' or 'health food,'" but I don't take no chances!"

No Invitation Received. "I wonder why none of those McGabblen girls has married?"

Honest Artist. First Art Lover: "I never praise his own paintings. He's so modest, you know."

A Pointed Innuendo. "Come in here a minute. I want to buy you a good cigar."

Brisk Indeed. "You do quite a trade in soda, don't you?"

An Unpropitious Start. "Tapa," said the distinguished statesman's petted daughter...

The New Waiter Girl. Customer at dairy lunch country—What is this?

He Didn't Know Her. Nance—Jack Morton has proposed to me by letter. I wonder if he really likes me; he has only known me a week.

BABY WEATHER. Little Fellows Don't Like the Hot Days. Mothers should know exactly what food to give babies in hot weather.

Strenuous Treatment. Larry—Did yez iver try massage treatment, me boy?

Why He Is Buttonless. Barnes—Holding goes around with two or three buttons off his clothes to make the girls think he is a bachelor.

Probably a Counterfeit. She—They say that good-looking chap with the eyeglass is an English nobleman.

It's Good Fortune. While the train was delayed at the little station in consequence of a hot box the passenger who had stuck his head out of the car window opened a conversation with the longer sitting on a null keg on the platform and smoking a cornob pipe.

Perhaps She Was Envious. Miss Flirty—How do you like my new engagement ring?

What Women Believe. He—I hope you didn't believe what they said about me.

His Worst Recitment. "Your husband doesn't use any kind of alcoholic beverages, does he?" asked the caller.

Cruel Joke. Edith—Yes, last night Jack said he was going to change my name.

Would Not Part. "Take my advice," said the Throop street man, "and stick to Chicago."

Vandalism. Mr. Robyn—This is a fine state of affairs when a gentleman can't go South for the winter without coming back to find his house in ruins.

Real Boss of the Household. "What yer so happy about?" demanded Willie Brown.

Hunting a Refuge. "Have you picked out a spot for your summer vacation yet?"

An Odd Circumstance. During his last illness Curran was one day told by his medical attendant that he appeared to cough with more difficulty than on the previous day.

His Reminiscence of Grant. I can recall a remark that General Grant made to me once at dinner.

Another Variety. Mabel—The idea of your being afraid to kiss her? Why, that kind of microbe is not a bit dangerous.

Ahead of the Game. Skinkins—By the way, did you recover the umbrella you lost last week?

A Teacher Taught. Dr. Vaughan, for many years head master at Harrow, once had an amusing encounter with a small boy who carried off the honors of the occasion.

At the age of 90 a woman regrets that her past didn't begin a few years later.

BIG RIVER OF THE NORTH.

Steamboat Captain Who Navigates It Comes South. A relative of a prominent Ottawa civil servant is expected in the city.

Captain Mills, in writing to Ottawa from Winnipeg, says the Peace River country is a magnificent one, and the trip north on the steamer up the Mackenzie River between great cliffs and untouched forests, on a river as great as the St. Lawrence, is one never to be forgotten.

At Fort Simpson the temperature in the winter has reached as low as 64 degrees below zero, but this is not often.

On the way down Captain Mills shot two moose and twelve bears from his canoe. The moose are very plentiful and are not afraid of the steamer, but run from a canoe.

Give Warning of Approach of More Serious Trouble.

Do you experience fits of depression with restlessness, alternating with extreme irritability, bordering upon hysteria? Are your spirits easily affected so that one minute you laugh, and the next fall into convulsive weeping?

How Mrs. Holland, of Philadelphia, suffered among the finest physicians in the country, none of whom could help her—finally cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Another case of severe female trouble cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, after the doctors had failed.

Will not the volumes of letters from women made strong by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound convince all of the virtues of this medicine?

Couldn't Change Him. A boy 5 years of age, who had recently become the brother of another little boy, was sent to the grocer's shop the other day to get some loaf sugar.

WHAT DID? BEER OR BINDERS? BOTH!

The products of breweries and binder factories have kept up to the forefront, and while the brewery product is all right in harvest time, the binder is the main thing then and the one you think about now. You save money by buying the money you study up on—the binder with the very best improvements, lasts longest, improved binders have fewer bearings and gears, hence run easiest, no weight on the horse necks means no sore necks, the best steel and malleable construction means the lightest yet strongest frame and the whole means to you an investment that will please you, not one you will regret. We sell both the Milwaukee binders and the Minneapolis binders, mowers and rakes if you call and see them.

In this day of sanitation, when we are sterilizing milk and various foods we use, filtering the water, using germ-proof brooms, sanitary clothing, plumbing, heating, etc., you should invest in a refrigerator. Never before in the history of the world has there been such precautions taken against microbes and bacilli as at the present time. Did you ever stop to think that you have perhaps overlooked your refrigerator. All the food, the very substance that enables us to exist, passes through the refrigerator. Then why do you keep your food in that poisonous, corroded, zinc lined refrigerator that is lurking with microbes and disease? Children form the most delicate thermometer of health, having less strength they show quickly the evil effects of any cause. Milk, the baby's food, should be kept in an absolutely pure and clean place if we expect baby to keep well. We should respect hygienic truth for baby's sake, even though we do not for ourselves. The HERRICK REFRIGERATOR is built on sanitary principles and is the only one that is so built. Sold in Wayne by TERWILLIGER BROS.

Greatly Reduced Rates via the Wabash Railroad.
Below is a partial list of the many half rates offered via the Wabash railroad: Atlanta, Ga. and return $32.10. Sold July 5, 6 and 7. Indianapolis, Ind. and return $10.00. Sold June 13 and 14. Saratoga, N. Y., and return $32.20. Sold July 4 and 5. Detroit, Mich. and return $21.00. Sold July 14 and 15. Baltimore, Md. and return $32.25. Sold July 17 and 18. Baltimore, Md. and return $32.25. Sold Sept. 17, 18 and 19. All tickets reading over the Wabash are good on Steamers in either direction between Detroit and Buffalo without extra charge, except meals and berth. Long limits and stop overs allowed. Remember this is "The World's Fair Line." Go this route and view the grounds. For folders and all information address Harry E. Moores, G. A. P. D. Omaha, Nebr.

August Number of the New Idea Woman's Magazine.
In addition to the splendid array of clever fiction which marks the August issue of the "New Idea Woman's Magazine," especial mention of the practical articles upon household or garden matters in that number is worthy of the careful reader's attention. "The Economics of a Summer Girl," by Minna Irving, is among these; and of equal interest are "The Evolution of a Home," by Alice Chittenden; "Furnishing a Flat," by Wynogene Fargher; "Psycho-physical Culture," by Adele Marie Rique; "A Woman's Two-acre Investment," by Ethel Walbert; and others of equal value presented by the well-known contributors to the magazine departments.

The Self-growing Barn Industry.
An esteemed correspondent, writing from Danville, Ky., tells of a novel industry which will probably soon spread as far as Billville. Tan Crawley, a farmer in the Carol hill neighborhood, has a barn which is growing rapidly. The structure which is a spacious affair, was built several years ago. Willow posts were used on the ends and along the sides. Being in moist and virgin soil, the posts took root and the entire structure has flourished like a green bay tree. It ascended nine feet in the first three years and Mr. Crawley was compelled to lay a second floor, using the first as a loft. The second floor is now too elevated for use and next year a third floor will be added. The innovation has proven very advantageous, and a large crop of barns will be planted this spring by farmers of that vicinity.—Atlanta Constitution.

Very Remarkable Cure of Diarrhoea.
"About six years ago for the first time in my life I had a sudden and severe attack of Diarrhoea," says Mrs. Alice Miller, of Morgan, Texas. "I got temporary relief, but it came back again and again, and for six long years I have suffered more misery and agony than I can tell. It was worse than death. My husband spent hundreds of dollars for physicians' prescriptions and treatment without avail. Finally we moved to Bosque county, our present home and one day I happened to see an advertisement of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with a testimonial by a man who had been cured by it. The case was so similar to my own that I concluded to try the remedy. The result was wonderful. I could hardly realize that I was well again, or believe it could be so after having suffered so long, but that one bottle of medicine, costing but a few cents, cured me." For sale by Raymond's Pharmacy.

Republican Judicial Dist. Convention
To the Republican Electors of the Ninth Judicial District of Nebraska: Notice is hereby given that a republican judicial convention will be held at Norfolk, Nebraska, on the 17th day of August, 1903, at 11 o'clock a. m. for the purpose of nominating a candidate for judge of the Ninth Judicial District, and the transacting of such other business as may regularly come before it. The several counties of said district are entitled to the following representation, based on the vote of J. H. Mickey, governor, in November, 1902:

| Pierce.....   | 9  |
| Madison.....  | 17 |
| Wayne.....    | 10 |
| Total.....    | 65 |

It is recommended by the committee that no proxies be allowed in said convention, but that the delegates be allowed to cast the full vote of the county represented by them. By order of the committee. GEO. F. BOYD, J. E. BARNES, Secretary, Chairman.

Order of Hearing on Probate of Foreign Will.
The State of Nebraska, ss: Wayne County. At a County Court, held at the County Court Room, in and for said county of Wayne, July 1st, A. D. 1903. Present, E. Hunter, County Judge. In the matter of the estate of John E. Cunningham, deceased. On reading and filing the petition of Ephraim Cunningham praying that the instrument purporting to be a duly authenticated copy of the last Will and Testament of said deceased, and of the probate thereof by the Probate Court of the county of Juniata, State of Pennsylvania, and this day filed in this Court, may be allowed, filed, probated and recorded as the last Will and Testament of said deceased in and for the State of Nebraska. Ordered, that July 22d, A. D. 1903, at 10 o'clock a. m., is assigned for hearing said petition, when all persons interested in said matter may appear at a County Court to be held, in and for said county, and show cause why the prayer of petitioner should not be granted; and that notice of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, be given to all persons interested in said matter, by publishing a copy of this order in the WAYNE REPUBLICAN, a weekly newspaper printed in said County, for three successive weeks prior to the said day of hearing. (A true copy.) E. HUNTER, County Judge.

PIANO CONTEST!

THE WAYNE REPUBLICAN will give a beautiful Concert Grand Piano made by Chickering Bros., Chicago, and listed by them at $525.00, to the most popular lady in Wayne county and vicinity absolutely free, this lady to be designated by ballots cast for her by subscribers to, and by readers of the WAYNE REPUBLICAN, according to the terms and conditions set forth as follows:

- 1.—Any lady, married or single, may enter the contest.
  - 2.—Any and every lady receiving one or more votes will be accredited with them at once and the result announced in these columns.
  - 3.—In every paper printed from June 15, to December 24, 1903, will appear two coupons: one is a FREE VOTE and may be voted by any one, the other is a SUBSCRIBER'S BALLOT and is to be voted by subscribers for whom they choose. For each cent paid by the subscriber, new or renewal, or arrearages on account of subscription, one vote may be cast.
  - 4.—Free votes must be cast within the time limit printed on each else they become void. Subscriber's ballots may be cast at any time before the contest closes, which will be at six o'clock p. m. December 24, 1903.
  - 5.—A ballot box will be placed in the REPUBLICAN office in which the ballots may be placed by the person voting or by some one for him, ballots may also be sent by mail. As votes are received they will be deposited in the ballot box, which will be kept under lock, and once each week in the presence of some disinterested person the same will be opened and the votes counted for the purpose of ascertaining the standing of the candidates.
  - 6.—The piano may be seen (or its counterpart) on exhibition at the M. S. Davies Book Store in Wayne at any time, and all interested may thus know it is no cheap affair, but that is a splendid instrument, beautiful in tone as well as in finish, and for reason of its high grade was selected especially for this contest to lend character and interest to it, for too often a cheap piano is selected to give away in a piano contest and the winner is wasting time in competing for it. But we are going to do this right—we are going to give the winner a piano equal to the best one in any home in the county, and to gain us the acquaintance we wish, to add to our subscription list as many new readers as possible, and to clean up the last dollar of a large amount of back subscription, we desire the interest to be genuine and make those who participate in the contest feel that they are doing something worth while and that their efforts are appreciated by this paper.
- Any lady contesting, or any one else, may act as agent to receive subscriptions for us, and a liberal commission will be paid them to do so. Blanks will be furnished them on application, also, they may extend to subscribers any and all clubbing combinations offered at any time.

B. Temple was a Norfolk and Lincoln visitor the first of the week.

W. H. Statia went to Bancroft Monday morning, returning Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Grier are the proud parents of a girl, born Saturday last.

The Tekamah Speed Association meets Aug. 5 to 7, big purses, good horses.

Mrs. Roba Nangle has a fine piano which she purchased from the F. H. Jones music department.

Mrs. W. H. Gibson returned Wednesday from a three week's visit at Quincy, Ill. where her parents reside.

Philo Graves will erect a brick building on his lot where the Bayer sisters' millinery store is if any one wishes to lease.

Prof. Pile was a passenger for Butte Tuesday morning where he goes to take part in the Boyd county teacher's institute.

Mrs. Haas, mother of Mrs. A. A. Wollert, came up from Council Bluffs the last of the week for a few days' visit with her daughter.

C. B. Owens left Tuesday for western Kansas where he has shipped his threshing outfit and will remain in that territory for some time.

Grandma Davies returned from her Sioux City visit Tuesday. She was accompanied by a friend, a Mrs. Cunningham, who will visit here for a few days.

Anton Lerner has purchased the light delivery business of Van Bradford and will conduct the same in the future. We have not learned what Mr. Bradford intends to engage in.

The Hubbard ball team came up last Saturday and played a game of ball with the College team of this city. The game resulted in another victory for the College, score 9 to 15.

Bruce Roos left Saturday for New York for a visit with his sister, Mrs. Kortright and family, formerly of this city. Wm Purdue is attending to business at the store during his absence.

Tom Holz and Henry Claybaugh went down to Crystal Lake Tuesday afternoon for a few days outing. They will stop with Tom's sister, Mrs. Forbes, who lives in that vicinity.

Art Lundburg came home Sunday evening from Chicago for a visit of a couple of weeks. He is employed with the dry goods firm of Carson, Pierre & Scott of that city.

A. Jett, who has been confined to his home for the past three months, is again able to be about. He and Mrs. Jett, with their son Harry, went up to Carroll Tuesday morning to visit a day or so, going from there to Belden for a short visit.

Byron Hoyle, who went to Oregon several months ago, is back at the old stand at Harrington's clothing store, much improved from his western trip. We do not know what his plans are for the future but we are glad to see him home again.

Mr. and Mrs. Fry, of Pennsylvania, who have been visiting for the past few days at the homes of W. H. Gilder-sleye and David Cunningham, near this city, were passengers Monday afternoon for Onabrook, North Dakota, where they go to pay Lloyd Cunningham a visit.

What might have been a fatal accident happened to the youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. John Soules at their home north of this office on last Saturday morning. The parents were away from home and the baby had been left in the care of the other children who left it alone for a short time, and when Mr. Soules happened to step in a few moments later he found the child in a tub of water into which it had fallen a moment before. Had the father arrived a minute or so later the accident no doubt resulted fatally as the other children were playing out in the backyard and knew nothing of the occurrence.

The line of elevators formerly owned by J. O. Milligan have recently been purchased by Benson & Co., an eastern firm, and the latter have taken charge. Elevators belonging to this line are located at Wayne, Wakefield, Pender, Hartington, Coleridge, Concord and other points. The roller mills at Wakefield were also a part of the Milligan property and were sold to the purchasers of the elevators. The elevator at this place is undergoing a complete remodeling, as we presume the others are. The office buildings have been moved, additional ones erected, new scales put in, a new brick engine room built and a new engine will be installed. A Mr. Kingsbury will be in charge.

The city is this week at work on the new walls. They will be thirty in number, two-inch, and 55 feet deep, all connected, and the big pump now located in the boiler room will be moved out into a pit north of the building that is now being dug. The pit will be 17 wide by 17 deep, bricked, cemented roofed. The hydrant formerly located north of the power house will be moved out to the street and the tank now in front of Philles & Son's will also be moved into the vicinity of the power house. When the improvements have been completed things will be in much more convenient shape down at the city's water and light plant and the water supply will be greatly increased.

Art Tucker returned to Cedar Rapids, Neb., Monday morning after a week's visit at home.

For Sale—Two full blood, red, yearling Shorthorn bulls and a few fresh milch cows. A. B. CLARK.

The writer was up northwest of Carroll the first of the week and found the barley all ready for the binder, by this time it is out in many places, lots of it too. Oats will be ready to cut in many places next week. Hay is just right to cut and corn plowing is practically done this week except a few late pieces. What the writer particularly noticed there seemed to be more ripe grain up there than down here near Wayne.

The advance representative for the "Boston Bloomers," an aggregation of lady ball players who are touring the west this season, was in the city Monday for the purpose of arranging for a game of ball with the College team. We understand, however, that the deal did not materialize. The "Bloomers" play ball at Bloomfield Sunday and at Emerson next Tuesday, the date of the A. O. U. W. picnic at that place. They travel with a special car.

From information gleaned from conversation with different farmers this week we are led to believe that the crop prospects were never better than at present in Wayne county. Some of the corn, of course, is a trifle tardy, but with a reasonably late fall to allow it to mature before frost gets in its work there will, judging from present indications, be a bumper crop. The corn as a rule is being well cultivated and is unusually free from weeds. For the small grain also the outlook is a promising one and the farmers predict a crop that will be above the average. Wayne county this year will be up to the top notch in the yields of both corn and small grain.

Guy R. Wilbur.
Died at his home in this city at five o'clock a. m. Thursday, July 9, 1903, of dropsy. Guy R. Wilbur, aged 46 years, 10 months and 23 days, after an illness of about five months. The funeral was held at the Wilbur home at two o'clock p. m. Sunday July 12, conducted by Rev. Dawson of the M. E. church. A large number of old friends and acquaintances assembled to honor the memory of the deceased and large representations of the different fraternal societies to which he belonged followed the casket to its resting place in Greenwood cemetery. The floral tributes were very pretty.

Guy R. Wilbur.
Died at his home in this city at five o'clock a. m. Thursday, July 9, 1903, of dropsy. Guy R. Wilbur, aged 46 years, 10 months and 23 days, after an illness of about five months. The funeral was held at the Wilbur home at two o'clock p. m. Sunday July 12, conducted by Rev. Dawson of the M. E. church. A large number of old friends and acquaintances assembled to honor the memory of the deceased and large representations of the different fraternal societies to which he belonged followed the casket to its resting place in Greenwood cemetery. The floral tributes were very pretty.

The deceased was born in Boone county, Illinois, Aug. 11, 1856, and three years later his parents moved to Slou City, then a straggling frontier village. They, a few years later on, located in northern Dixon county and were numbered among the pioneers of that county, Guy spending his early life on a farm and in his young manhood studied law with Judge Barnes, who was present at Mr. Wilbur's funeral. After being admitted to the bar in 1878 Mr. Wilbur took up the practice of law at St. Helena and removed to Hartington when that place was founded and made county seat of Cedar county with the advent of the railroad into that county. He served two terms as County Judge of Cedar county and in 1884 was elected District attorney of the 7th Judicial district, serving one term. Mr. Wilbur located in Wayne in 1892 and was elected County Attorney shortly following his location here. He has been a public servant, a good and faithful one, of times to the detriment of his private business he has vouchsafed the interest of the people whose interest was intrusted to his care.

He was married to Ella J. Linebarger, of Ponca and to them was born two children. One, George, and his wife survive, one died several years ago and lies where four generations lie side by side, grandfather, father, the deceased and his son. There were present at the funeral, John A. Wilbur, a brother and his wife; Mrs. James Sutherland, a sister and her husband from Dixon county; and Mrs. W. H. Buetow, a sister, and her husband residing near Wayne. There were also other relatives and friends in attendance.

Mr. Wilbur was widely known as a very able and successful member of the bar and was the senior member of the firm of Wilbur & Berry, and he will be succeeded by his son George, lately graduated from the Ann Arbor university of law. He was active in fraternal circles, being associated actively with the Masons, Odd Fellows, Modern Woodmen, Woodmen of the World, Workmen and the Fraternal Union, carrying six thousand dollars in fraternal insurance which added to their other property leaves his family in good circumstances. He was a good man, devoted to his family, a member of the Presbyterian church and outspoken in all things, such a man as we would go to to obtain aid in our troubles and advice in our dilemmas, and it is yet to be known that he ever failed his friends and his confidants who thus appealed to him in their distress.

Volumes might be written of the good things this man has done, the world is better and brighter for his having lived in it. He leaves many sincere and sorrowing friends and out down in the prime of his active life he left us thinking not of himself but of those nearest and dearest to him, a most just and generous hearted man who will be long remembered among the honored ones of Wayne county who rest at their rest.

THE SENATOR'S BRIDE

By MRS. ALEX. McVEIGH MILLER
AUTHOR OF
"Rosamond," "Guy Kenmore's Wife," "Dora Tenney," "Pretty Geraldine," "Lillian, My Lillian," Etc.

He glared at her speechless, her cool, quiet words stinging him sharply, and widening the gulf between them. Before it was a turbulent stream; now a rushing river.

"As then you might be Bruce Conway's wife," he said bitterly, at last, "and be happy ever after in his love. Is that what you mean, fair lady?"

"Oh, no, no, no. I should never marry again! I should not want to—no, no! Oh, heaven, what has love ever brought me but agony!" with a despairing gesture she clenched her hand.

"The fact," he said with a light, sarcastic laugh, "you should not judge the future by the past. You may be happy yet, as one of your songs prettily expresses it. Certainly, you may have a divorce if you wish, only—stopping to lift his leg in his grand, that dear little fellow into his sob care and keeping; though, of course, the blissful bride of Conway will not miss the child of the man she never loved."

She caught her child from his arms and held him strained to her beating heart, feeling for the first time the awful reality of a mother's love of a living child. Her husband looked at her with no trace of his feelings written on his still face, and merely said:

"Do not fear; I shall not take him from you, unless in the event to which we have alluded. But I hope you will have no such idea while he is so near me. When do you propose to leave Washington?"

"On the day after tomorrow. I only came yesterday."

"Ah! then I shall look for Norah and my baby to call on me quite punctually at ten tomorrow. I want to see all I can of the little fellow while he is here, and he is on the marble market. She watched him intently as he turned toward her, thinking gravely to herself what a great, grand, kindly nature was marred by the jealous passion that laid waste the fair garden of this man's soul."

"How now, Grace, and understand that I wrote you in my parting note to my dear wish. You will remain in our home with our little boy, command my banker for unlimited sums, and be as happy as you can. Do not, I beg of you, seek to see again."

"No," she answers, slowly and proudly; "the next time you will seek me!"

CHAPTER XII.

Four o'clock striking in Mrs. Conway's parlor, and our three friends variously disposed therein; Mrs. Conway trifling with some light affair of fancy work, in bright colored Berlin wool, Bruce with the daily paper; Lulu, a trifle restless, and sitting before the piano, striking low, wandering chords and symphonies, and then an impatient glance at the newspaper that diverts the gentleman's attention from his women are invariably jealous of newspaper.

"What a nice thing it is to be interested in politics," she says, petulantly, at last.

He is deeply immersed in a synopsis of the speech of Senator Winans, having missed the preceding day by being absorbed in contemplation of the Senator's wife; but he looks up to retort, lightly:

"What a nice thing it is to be a belle and take on airs. By the way," he says, suddenly and mischievously, "it strikes me rather queer that the newspaper editor should have sprung up between you and Captain Frank Fontenay—the man who tried to help kill me, and the little fairy who helped cure me."

"Ah, yes, now I think of it," with an infinitesimal shudder, "that was Senator Winans' second in that affair. Well, surely this, you could not have been seconded by a finer gentleman."

He rises and saunters over to her side. Long ago he has read, like an open page, the pure, adoring heart of this girl—no vanity in him, for it is so palpable to all; to a certain degree he loves her, admires her fresh, young beauty, her sunny ways; knows certainly some day to her heart's content, and something of her surface gaiety now that reveals a wistful, unsatisfied yearning towards him to greater tenderness than he has ever felt for her before. As he bends to speak she turns her head, with a deepening flush; the movement waits to him the subtle fragrance of a white rose worn in her hair, and the sweetest of the loveliest to hear the unspoken in his lips. Euphorically he disengages it from its becoming brown tassel and tosses it far from him.

"Never wear white roses when I am, Lulu; I cannot bear their perfume—it absolutely sickens me. I like you best in white. It suits your plump beauty best."

"Did she wear white roses?" she queries, with inexpressible bitterness, and reaching conclusions with a woman's quick wit.

"She wore white roses—yes," he answers, slowly, as if compelled by some fatal force, and with a wistful look.

"And, Lulu, she sat one evening with her hair full of white roses, and her hands gleamed among them as white as my life, the only dastardly speech of my life, was made then! I shall never forget the eyes she lifted to my face; white roses always sit me with roses—always breathe the funeral air of dead hopes."

"You need not grieve so deeply," she urges, trying to comfort him. "She found consolation—she has learned to love another."

"Yes, my loss has been gained, but still the influence of what I did in the past throws its blighting consequences upon her life; but let us not speak of it, Lulu. There are times more pleasant to me—ah, if I mistake not," glancing out of a near window, "there's the captain's with him this evening—do you drive with him this evening?"

"I believe I did promise him," she says, reluctantly, and the next moment the fine-looking captain is ushered in, and Bruce goes back to his former seat.

Coolly polite are the greetings between the two gentlemen. The words that pass between them are of the briefest. Lulu goes for her wrappings. He stands as standing at the window he meets her regretful smile, and knows how much rather she had been with him than dashing off in that handsome phaeton.

She carries that smile in her heart as she goes down the avenue, past the White House, and off by a pretty circuitous route for the little city of Georgetown. There is a glow on her cheek, echoed on the door with military precision. "Ah! Fontenay, is it you? I expected Keene, the detective. Come in—sit down."

"I have just come from calling on Miss Clendenon," Fontenay observed, and learned that Mrs. Conway has not yet returned from Mrs. Winans' hotel. In fact, I believe she thinks best to remain with her until she gets better. She has, as Miss Lulu informed me, taken rooms for herself, and Miss Clendenon, of course, who is to remain here this evening—Conway remaining at his hotel."

"Ah! that is kind of Mrs. Conway," said Winans, surprised. "I should not have expected so much kind feeling from one who has always appeared to me a mere cold-hearted devotee of fashion and pleasure. This Miss Clendenon seems a pleasant, or rather, a sweet little creature, one of the sort of Grace has loved who is worthy the devoted affection of any one."

"I think so," says the captain, with enthusiasm.

"I was thinking"—musingly this—"that I would like her to know my wife like to see a cordial friendship grow up between the two. Grace has loved an intimate female friend. She is singularly quiet, reticent and reserved with every one. I would, I think, be something of a comfort to her to be brought into familiar intercourse with Willard Clendenon's sister. She needs the sympathy and society of one of her own sex."

"Yes, as I hope they may become friends," says the captain, heartily.

"But, Fontenay, this illness of Grace—I heard a rumor of it to-day—our unfortunate affairs are by this time a town talk. She is not seriously out of sorts, I presume, and I am not brave enough to go there now, and look on the desolation I have wrought."

Fontenay walked across the room and laid his hand on the other's arm, gravely and sympathizingly.

"No—yes," he says; "well, the truth is, Winans, I hate to be the bearer of the tidings, but the fact is simply this: Mrs. Winans' excessive agitation and grief have culminated in what the physician calls a serious attack of brain fever."

"Great heavens! what have I done?" The strong man reeled backward as if from a blow just as another professional rap sounded on the door.

NO PURE BLOOD MONARCHS.

All Sovereigns of Europe Are Mongrels as Far as Descent Goes.

According to Charles Laurent, a well-known French author, few of the monarchs of Europe can boast an unalloyed lineage from a race of kings, and fewer still are more than indirectly related to the people they govern. Here is the result of M. Laurent's investigations:

1. The living Prince of the house of Bourbon, or house of France, are only one-sixteenth French, the remaining portions being German, Spanish and Italian.
2. Prince Victor Napoleon Bonaparte stands for only one-third of the French family of his illustrious granduncle and for two-thirds in the houses of Wurtemberg and Savoy.
3. King Alfonso XIII. of Spain is four-fifths Austrian.
4. King Victor Emmanuel III. is more Austrian than Italian on account of the numerous crossings of his race and his descendants will have Montenegrin blood in their veins.
5. Emperor Francis Joseph and his presumptive heir are as much Wittelsbach or Estes as they are Hapsburgs. Consequently they are for a large part Bavarians and Italians.
6. The King of Sweden and Norway is of Beornaise and French source by Bernadotte and of Southern French stock through the Chary family. He is also related to the Holstein-Gottorps and to the Leuchtenbergs.
7. The King of Greece is a Dane.
8. The King of Serbia is half Russian.
9. The Prince of Bulgaria is a Saxe-Coburg-Gothan or a Bourbon, and has no Bulgarian blood in him.
10. The Emperor of Russia is somewhat Muscovite and very much Danish, or German, by reason of the marriages of his male ancestors. He descends from the Schleswig-Holstein-Sonderburg-Glücksburg, of the Hesse-Darmstadt, quite as much as from the Romanoffs.
11. The King of the Belgians is Saxe-Coburg-Gothan and Bourbon-Orleans. There is nothing of the Belgian in him.
12. The Queen of the Netherlands is descended from the houses of Orange, Nassau and Waldeck-Tyrmont. Consequently she is as much German as Dutch.
13. The King of England is Saxe-Coburg-Bavarian, Norman and French.
14. The Emperor of Germany is Hohenzollern by his father, Guelph or Brunswick-Lüneburg by his mother, daughter of Queen Victoria, and French by his ancestor, Louise de Coligny, the daughter of the great admiral murdered by Charles IX. and married for the second time to William the Taciturn, of whom she was the fourth wife. From this union there was one son, Henri-Frédéric of Nassau-Orange, born at Delft on Jan. 29, 1584.

An Economical Man.

"I don't know," confessed the puzzled wife, "whether to have the house repaired to match my old dresses or to buy new dresses to match the paper we now have."

"I fancy," suggested the husband, who was a quick thinker and a lightning calculator, "that we would better repair the house."—Judge.

After the Honeymoon.

Ernie—So Mrs. Jack eloped?
Helen—Yes, and they did just what I thought they would do.
Ernie—Wrote home for forgiveness?
Helen—No, wrote home for money.

Her Only Comment.

Doubleday—I purchased a phonograph to-day, my dear.
Mrs. Doubleday—Well, I'm not at all surprised. You always did like to hear yourself talk.

Point of View.

"Is there much dissipation in London?" asked the inquisitive person.
"Not much," replied the globe-trotter. "The sun can't even dissipate the fog."

In Lent.

Dear Phillis—in these fasting days, you still have healthy, cheerful ways; Ah, charming maiden, oft I muse What brand of breakfast food you use.

A CLOSE SHAVE FOR THE LIEUTENANT

FIRST LIEUTENANT ROBERT EMMETT KAVANAUGH was pacing up and down his narrow quarters in Fort Grady, Michigan, holding a telegram in his hand. He had read it twenty times, but at every second turn in his nervous walk he read it again. The telegram was dated Chicago, and this is what it said: "Leave Thursday for Florida; Uncle Frank ill. Stay indefinite. Norah Desmond."

Lieutenant Bob Emmett and Norah Desmond were engaged. They were to be married as soon as a few accommodation superior officers would consent to be killed off or die in their beds and thereby give Bob a chance to write captain instead of lieutenant before his name on the official papers. The young officer had fixed the limit of his waiting at about a year.

"Norah's going to Florida," he muttered to himself. "I haven't seen her for three weeks, and won't see her for six months to come. Uncle Frank is one of the kind who never dies, and who never gets well, and Norah'll stay down there until the old man is willing to let her go. She's more of a stickler for duty than Old Muggs, the commanding officer, and that's saying a lot. He won't give me a leave; I've had too many. Great Wintfield Scott, but I would like to see Norah before she goes. And Lieutenant Robert Emmett Kavanagh sighed.

Bob Kavanagh couldn't keep anything to himself, and in five minutes he was telling his woes to Captain Percy Lanyard, of the artillery corps. "Bruce up, Kavanagh," said Lanyard; "Muggs is going to send a general prisoner through Chicago to Fort Sherman to stand trial. He was going to send a sergeant in charge. It isn't a very pleasant duty, but if you'll volunteer I think Muggs will send you, and you can stop off on your way back from Sherman—it is only a few miles from Chicago—and see your blue-eyed Norah before she gets on the Florida limited."

Twelve hours from that time Bob Kavanagh was sitting in a smoking car on a Chicago-bound train, with a big Colt revolver strapped around him and an enlisted man, with a downcast look, sitting alongside of him. Bob Kavanagh had a soft heart. The soldier at his side had seen eight years of service and had never been in trouble before. He had assaulted the "top" sergeant, a serious offense in the army, as may go without saying.

"Cheer up, Spencer," said the lieutenant; "you've been a good soldier, as I know, and I don't think it will go very hard with you—six months at the most—and then you'll be restored to duty."

"I hit him all right, lieutenant," answered Private James Spencer, "and he deserved it, if ever a man did, but you can't do such things in the army, no matter what the 'top' says to you, and so I'm good for two years and a 'botball' discharge. It's tough. I never saw the inside of the 'mill' before in my eight years' service, except when I was on guard."

TOMMY ATKINS OF JAPAN.

Soldier of the Mikado Aesthetic Even During a Battle.

If the British Tommy Atkins were to study the character of his Japanese brother-in-arms he would undoubtedly pronounce him a queer fish. His most striking characteristic is, perhaps, his gentleness and his estheticism. I have seen privates walk hand in hand like little school girls to certain famous Iris gardens situated at a distance of, perhaps, seven or eight miles from their barracks, pay for admittance, admire the Irises for hours and go home again, having tasted all the day nothing stronger than weak tea, says the Japanese Times.

At intervals during the hottest fighting in China in 1900 the Japanese soldier hastened to unfold the fan which he carried with him and to fan himself. Even in his looting he was esthetic, for the objects he brought away with him, when he did bring anything away with him, and that was, of course, very seldom, were bric-a-brac whose value the western soldier could not appreciate. A marked difference between the Japanese soldier and the British lies in the fact that, while King Edward's uniform has notoriously an attraction for nurses and general servants, the mikado's uniform possesses no such fascination. I have followed long processions of conscripts to barracks, but have never seen a girl waste a glance on them, and during a residence of three and a half years in this country, I have never seen a soldier "walking out" a girl. It is different with sailors, who get more opportunity of seeing foreign countries and improving their manners.

Big Collection.

"What is that our coupled behind the Presidential train?" asked the tall reporter.

"That is the photograph car," said the train hand.

"Photograph car?"

"Yes, it contains the pictures of all the big families in the West."—Chicago News.

New Motor Omnibus.

An excellent motor omnibus has just made its appearance in London and from the moment that its speed, reliability and comfort are proved that utter abandonment of locomotion, the despair of all students of traffic problems, is doomed.

GOOD Short Stories

At a dinner of Federated Women in St. Paul, the other day, one of the gentle sex, responding to the toast, "The Ideal Man," said: "Man is the paragon of animals. On his own ground he surpasses the lion in magnanimity, the fox in acumen, the parrot in repartee, the monkey in versatility, the ant in thrift, the fish in self-control, the spider in all that goes to make up a valued member of society. I dare say that, if all the facts were known, man is more of an absolute success than the mule."

An amusing instance of a minister stumbling on a text of a humorous personal application is that related of a widower, who had remarried within a year after his first wife's death. His friends and congregation thought him very expeditious, and on the next Sunday, when his text was announced, they could scarcely control themselves. He rose in his place in his pulpit and said: "My beloved brethren: You will find my text in the seventeenth verse of the fourth chapter of Second Corinthians, 'Our light affliction, which is for the moment.'"

Wirt Gerrard, in his volume on "Greater Russia," says that in the Czar's country one may not call an other a fool—there is a Scriptural injunction against that, and it is consequently a legal offense, too. Not long ago, a "wint" player called his partner a fool for needlessly trumping their trick. The offended man brought his accuser before the court. The culprit pleaded provocation, and, knowing that the judge would be a passionate follower of the national game, explained the matter in detail. The judge became interested; got excited as the particulars of the play were given. "I took the trick with my queen, and, instead of throwing away, my partner played the king," shouted the abuser.

"The fool," said the judge; "ah—hem—next case."

TRYING TO AVOID AMBIGUITY.

Difficulties of It in English Shown on Postal Cards.

Perhaps the most striking of all instances of the difficulty of avoiding ambiguity when one endeavors (like the thirty advertiser) to be lucid is to be seen in the history of postal cards. At least a dozen attempts have been made—mostly in our own language—to express the simple proposition that the message on a postal card must be confined to one side. Even yet the problem is not wholly solved. The English postal department's former inscription, "The address only to be written on this side" was held to bar the use of a typewriter or a printing press, which was not at all the intention of the postoffice. The "only" has now been dropped, in deference to a colonial precedent, and there is no direct prohibition against carrying the letter over to the face of the postal card; yet the correspondent who tries that plan will hardly be blessed by the recipient, who is fined a penny.

The Americans had no fewer than six shots before they could satisfy themselves in this apparently simple thing. On their early postal cards they inscribed, "Nothing but the address can be placed on this side," which was neither true nor elegant. "Nothing but address to be on this side" was more to the point. But it looked clumsy, and the next issue was "Write only the address on this side," which was objected to as barring the typewriter. "Write the address only on this side, the message on the other," followed, and was promptly criticised as being both clumsy and ambiguous. Then the word only was dropped, without much improvement. Finally, says the London Pall Mall Gazette, Brother Jonathan gave up his struggle to be original, and simply adapted the French announcement into "This side for address only." When a government department cannot do better than this the mere private advertiser may take heart; and, after all, is any one ever misled by these ambiguous advertisements?

EVER DESCRIBE YOUR HUSBY?

If Not, Try It Sometime on the News Man.

The man at the news stands might know. Mrs. Gibbons hovered uncertainly around the pictorial exhibit, trying to screw up a suddenly waning courage and then found voice to say engagingly:

"I am looking for my husband."

"What did you say, lady?" The man stopped in his work of sorting papers.

"I'm looking for my husband. He's been waiting for me here for a long time—with a party—but he's gone now. I thought perhaps he was gone with some messenger and with you."

"What kind of looking man was he?" asked the news clerk. He leaned forward sympathizingly.

"He—he's tall, and clean shaven, with a light overcoat, and blue eyes—and— I she groined around for some distinguishing characteristic to elicit a glim of response—"a square chin—with a dimple in it." She felt her own fatuousness. "You—you'd know him if you saw him."

The clerk turned to a boy who had appeared behind the counter.

"Did you see a man with a light overcoat, and—a dimple in his chin? Did he leave any message here?" Mrs. Gibbons felt bold that he was laughing at her, although he looked impassive.

"Naw," said the boy, "he didn't leave no message with me." He added in reflection, "I ain't seen no one hanging round but a chunky fellow with a black mustache."

"He hasn't seen anyone but a stout man with a black mustache," reported the clerk officially, while two pairs of eyes stared at her in a disconcerting manner.—McClure's Magazine.

Might Have Been Worse.

A disposition to look always on the bright side of things spares its possessor much unhappiness, but when the cheerfulness rests upon reasoning so unsound as Mr. Dolan's upon the subject of his wife's infidelity, it is a pity.

Mr. Dolan was to his persistent habit of mildness, and in consequence of the tardiness, and in consequence of the tardiness, was "low in her mind." But Dolan was as cheerful as ever.

"Now don't be losing your smile, Norah, darlin'," he said, coaxing. "Oh, my out of wurrk, to be sure, 'twas only a dollar a day of God. God been givin' two dollars, but I would be twice as bad. I kapp the mind, darlin', and not be complainin'."

"If the wife had lost his position at the battle, in Mr. Harris' case, there was only a nose split right down the middle, and in a year which everybody thought had been made by a saber in some desperate hand-to-hand conflict with a hated foe.

Harris was always the kind and courteous and clear-headed gentleman. He loved his fellow man. He was ready to share his last dollar with anyone who seemed to be in stress or sorrow. Great thought issued from his fruitful mind. Prolific schemes and enterprises were the children of his intellect. He had millions, in which he had no share, have been the creatures of his light save suggestions. He never wrought man for woman. He was incapable of deceit or pretense. But when he talked all men listened. Out of the crumb of his opulent suggestion others gathered fame and fortune. And he died poor. He had made many men rich. He had distributed success, but not encouragement, as the sower sows seed. But he always saw the best in the water and he never lost his faith in man. He was Mark Twain's Sellers.—Washington Post.

MAN SHOTS SON-IN-LAW ON OPERATING TABLE

After Having Shot the Younger Man So Badly that Amputation of a Leg Was Necessary, John Terrell Deliberately Finishes the Job

Bluffton, Ind., July 10.—John Terrell, a wealthy farmer living near Bluffton, nine miles north of this city, killed his son-in-law, Melvin Wolfe, Sunday afternoon, firing both barrels of a shotgun into his head as Wolfe lay on a doctor's operating table to have a leg amputated, this being necessitated by a wound from Terrell's gun, fired a short time before.

Four years ago Wolfe married Terrell's daughter, Wolfe deserted the girl, it is said, leaving her with a child in her arms. A suit was brought to compel him to support his wife.

It is claimed Wolfe on Sunday twice drove past the Terrell home, shouting insulting remarks and shaking his fist at Terrell. The third time he drove past Terrell jumped from some bushes along the roadside and fired at his son-in-law with a double-barreled shotgun. The first charge shattered Wolfe's right leg. The second barrel missed.

Wolfe was hurried to the office of Dr. Saunders at Bluffton and placed on an operating table to have the leg amputated. While a crowd stood around watching the doctor, Terrell came up from his home in a buggy, broke in the doors of the doctor's office, drove out the crowd at the point of his gun, and with the remark "I am after him, and I am going to get him yet," fired both barrels into his son-in-law's head.

Wolfe was terribly mutilated. Terrell got in his buggy, loaded up his shotgun and pointed it at the mob that had gathered, held it at bay and drove to the sheriff's residence. He is in jail.

TRIED TO LYNCH NEGROES.

Soldiers from Fort Leavenworth Raise a Row in the Town.

Leavenworth, Kan., July 10.—United States soldiers from Fort Leavenworth attempted to lynch Negroes Williams and Walter Brown, negroes, Sunday night, and for over an hour the entire police department was kept busy quelling the trouble.

Williams and Brown had engaged in a row with soldiers, and one of them fired a shot which wounded a soldier. The soldiers then congregated in great numbers, and it was decided to lynch the negroes if they could be found. Twenty-five soldiers and a number of citizens went to the homes of Williams and Brown, near the old fair grounds, and surrounded both houses. Ropes had been secured and everything was in readiness for lynching. Followed with rifles and revolvers, and in the course of the night careful maneuvering succeeded in getting Brown and Williams away to the police station. A number of soldiers with revolvers were arrested, but were later released.

RIOT IN NEW YORK.

Negroes Make a Disturbance, Necessitating Calling Out Reserves.

New York, July 10.—A riot which required the reserves of the police, and necessitated the calling out of the reserves, broke out in the negro quarter in West Sixty-second street. The trouble was precipitated by the attempt of Policeman Connor to arrest William Johnson, the leader of a gang of negroes, who were making a disturbance in the street.

A BLISTERING HEAT.

Deaths in Greater New York Number Thirty-Six.

New York, July 10.—Thirty-six deaths and 83 prostrations in and around New York and Brooklyn tell the story of Friday's heat. It was the hottest July 10 in the history of the local weather bureau, the highest previous record being 93 degrees, recorded July 10, 1880.

Thursday's record of 94 degrees at 4 o'clock, the high weather mark of the year, was reached Friday at 1:20 o'clock without signs of relief. By 2 o'clock the temperature had fallen 2 degrees, where it remained for the next two hours.

Early in the evening a thunder storm came up in the southeast, and while it barely touched the city, it brought the much desired relief. Between 5 and 7 o'clock the temperature fell several degrees, and men, women and children crowded the walks to recover from the wearing effects of the day. As on the night before, many slept on the park benches, and the police would permit it, on the grass.

Daniel Lewis, a black crazed negro, attacked with a club two girls who were carrying a large piece of ice. A mob quickly gathered and shouted "Lynch him!" Lewis was rescued by detectives and sent to a hospital.

The intense hot weather continued throughout the state Friday. At Albany there was a brief relief caused by a thunder storm, but there were many prostrations, and one child died. Several prostrations were reported at Middletown.

Bloomington, Ill., Central Illinois Friday night received some relief from the intense heat, when a heavy rain fell. The day was marked by the highest temperature of the week, the thermometer recording 98 degrees. Many prostrations occurred, but no deaths are reported.

Philadelphia, Pa.: The hot weather which has prevailed here during the past week continues, and there is no cooler weather in sight. Philadelphia was one of the hottest cities in the country Friday, the maximum temperature registering 97 degrees at 4 p. m. The intense heat resulted in one death here Friday. John O'Farrell, a well-to-do farmer. One hundred in the shade was the record. A light rain fell Friday night.

RETURNS AS FROM THE DEAD

Illinois Woman Finds Husband Living with Third Wife.

Rockford, Ill., July 10.—A woman in the role of Enoch Arden returned to Rockford after an absence of twenty-one years. Twenty-one years ago Mrs. Louise Olson was injured in a railroad wreck near Buffalo, N. Y. She was taken to a hospital and recovered. Her mind was not, however, and she wandered to France. Another victim of the wreck died in the hospital and by mistake was buried as Mrs. Olson.

When Mrs. Olson returned to Rockford Friday she found two husbands she had left full grown and surprised beyond measure at her return.

Alexander Olson, her husband, she found living with his third wife, the second Mrs. Olson, whom he married while believing fully in his wife's death. He had three children, and the family had a comfortable income. Mrs. Olson, having identified her former husband as her first wife, the latter will recognize the rights of his third wife and will live with her recovered children.

LEGALLY ZAHN.

Murderer of Herman Zahn Executed at Lincoln, Neb.

Lincoln, Neb., July 10.—Rhea was hanged at 4:21 Friday afternoon. He died in eleven minutes, of strangulation. The attorneys for the inmate asked the supreme court for an injunction to delay hanging, claiming sentence was voided by the reprieve granted by Gov. Savage. The supreme court refused to grant the injunction.

STEPPED ON A MATCH.

Peculiar Accident in Which Young Woman is Badly Burned.

Denver, Colo., July 10.—Miss Mary Murphy, 21 years of age, daughter of J. S. Murphy of Pontiac, Ill., may lose her life as a result of a peculiar accident here. She stepped on a match lying in the street and it ignited her clothing. Several men ran to her assistance, but she was badly burned before the flames were extinguished. She was taken to the hospital.

RACE WAR IN TEXAS.

Negroes Are Warned to Leave Sour Lake—Much Shooting.

Sour Lake, Tex.: A brahman named Thompson, on the Southern Pacific, was fatally shot Thursday by a negro at Some Junction. When the news reached here, where Thompson resided, great indignation was expressed and notices were posted all around the town reading: "Niggers, don't let the sun go down on you in Sour Lake tonight."

Many negroes hastily left the city. At night two camps of negroes, one in the "shooting" district of the oil field, and the other composed of construction forces of the Southern Pacific were raided by a mob of 500 men. The blacks fled precipitately. About 100 shots were fired. It is not known whether any of the negroes were killed or wounded, as the shooting was in the darkness. One of the Mexicans in the construction gang had his hand beaten in and put in jail. Proprietors of hotels and restaurants were warned to discharge all negroes in their employ.

NEEDS A LARGE SUM.

Consolidated Lake Superior Company Appeals to Stockholders.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 10.—The Consolidated Lake Superior Company, has sent an appeal to every stockholder of the company asking all to subscribe to a proposed issue of bonds to the extent of $1,000,000 "in order to save their investment in the property." The financial condition of the company has recently caused its officers and stockholders much concern, and a loan of $5,000,000 was effected on the part of the Standard Oil Company.

President Shields, in his statement to the stockholders, tells in detail what has been done by the board of directors to wards the providing of funds to the amount of about $8,000,000 to meet the company's needs.

MANY KILLED BY HEAT.

Deaths and Prostrations in Chicago—Firemen Injured.

Chicago, July 10.—Two deaths and ten prostrations resulted from the heat Thursday. At night a heavy thunderstorm set the temperature down from 90 to 72. During the storm a number of buildings were struck by lightning, and many basements in the business portion of the city were flooded by the heavy rainfall.

The deaths were caused by lightning and the illness of the Standard Oil Company, and during its progress, four firemen were caught by a falling fire and narrowly escaped being burned to death. All were badly hurt, but Capt. Michael Kim is the only one not assured of recovery.

THREATS OF LYNCHING MADE

Justin Trelawney of Lowell, Ind. Shot a Sotoneekeeper.

Lowell, Ind., July 10.—Justin Trelawney, a prominent of Lowell, near here, was threatened by his townspeople with lynching because he shot and dangerously wounded Edward Moore, a Lowell sotoneekeeper. Moore was shot in the presence of his wife and children, the dispute which led to the shooting arising when Trelawney tried to collect a small bill from Moore. Trelawney was arrested and brought to this city, where he was released in bond of $10,000.

MUST GO TO ELECTRIC CHAIR

William Spencer, Negro, Found Guilty of Murder in New York.

New York, July 10.—The negro who shot and killed Superintendent Charles C. McFarlane of the Anti-Police Society, on June 15 in a corridor of the court of general sessions, was found guilty of murder in the first degree. His plea of insanity was unavailing.

Three Injured in a Wreck.

Nevada, Mo., July 10.—A southbound Missouri Pacific passenger train from Kansas City collided with the rear end of a local freight train here. Myron Gilmore of Grand Forks, Kan., a civil war veteran, and one of the local traveling men, Kansas, was injured internally. J. W. Perkins of St. Louis, a traveling salesman, was slightly hurt, and Jerry H. Keeler, the passenger engineer, suffered a dislocated shoulder.

Bandits Get Cash and Food.

Pond du Lac, Wis.: Masked bandits entering the farm house of John Sole, near Rosendale, a few miles west of here, compelled Mrs. Sole at the point of a revolver to give them $125 and then ordered her to prepare them a supper. They stood over her with drawn guns while she was busy about the kitchen and threatened her husband with death if he interfered.

Posse Searching for Abductors.

Lima, O.: For the second time within a week the son of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Kraft has been abducted. An attempt made by Mrs. Kraft and her father, John Adams, was a failure, the couple being held at the residence of W. P. Carter, however, the boy was stolen. A posse is searching for the abductors.

He Suoed for a Million.

St. Paul, Minn.: The state supreme court, in an opinion just handed down, ordered the cashier of a lower court awarding Herbert W. Pearson of Duluth $500 for services rendered the Great Northern Railway in the location of coal mines in Montana. Pearson sued for $1,000,000.

Does Attack Denver Woman.

Denver, Colo.: Mrs. Harry K. Brown, wife of the vice president of the J. P. Brown Investment Company, was badly bit by two bulldogs on July 4. Dr. R. J. and Smith, her brother-in-law, who was in attendance on seeing blood poisoning set in, sent her to the Chicago Pasteur Institute.

Sues Mayor for Slander.

Lowell, Ill.: R. M. Stearns of Farmington has sued Mayor C. A. Smith for $2,000 damages. Both men were candidates for mayor in 1907, and Stearns says Smith circulated slanderous statements about him during the campaign.

Children Burned in Home.

Akron, Me.: Two of John Westfall's children, aged 4 and 9 years, were burned to death in their home here. The children were asleep when the fire started.

Sullivan Denied Hearing.

Chicago, July 10.—The appellate court has refused to entertain the motion of the state for a rehearing in the case of Alex. Sullivan. Sullivan was convicted of conspiracy, and the appellate court set aside the verdict on the ground that he had not had a fair trial.

Woman Beaten to Death.

Terre Haute, Ind., July 10.—The badly mutilated body of Mrs. Mary Gilmore, wife of Dr. A. H. Gilmore of this city, was found in a shallow on the West Vandalia River. She had been beaten to death with a club. The couple had been separated for some time.

STATE OF NEBRASKA

NEWS OF THE WEEK IN A CONDENSED FORM.

Two Are Fatally Burned—Boy Four Kerosene in Stove and Can Explodes, Scattering Blazing Oil—Neighbors Rush to Rescue Children.

While Mrs. Charles Sharp of Papillon was in another part of town, leaving the house in charge of her four children, a terrible accident occurred. The oldest daughter, aged 15 years, was cooking, when she was called out. She told the younger children to keep the fire going until her return. She was absent but a short time when one of the young boys, thinking to start the fire better, poured some kerosene into the stove and placed the can containing a gallon of oil on the hearth.

The fire blazed up and the can exploded, burning three of the children horribly. They ran outdoors a mass of flames and kerosene went to the assistance. The boy, 5 years old, and girl, 3 years old, probably will not recover. They were taken to Omaha.

Of the two others one is very badly burned, but may recover, while the other is injured but little.

SAD TRAGEDY NEAR LYONS.

Two Men Killed in Traction Engine Accident.

Two men, both residents of Lyons, met a sudden and fearful death at a bridge over Blackbird Creek, seven miles north-east of Lyons.

The unfortunate, Charles Wickham, aged 34, and William Cameron, aged 33, were working with a portable sawmill outfit. They had finished cutting timber at one grove and were moving to another with a traction engine. The bridge over Blackbird Creek was not strong enough to bear the weight of the engine and when it went down Wickham and Cameron were crushed between the engine proper and the tender. They were fearfully bruised, scalded and burned. It required the efforts of a dozen men six or seven hours to extricate the bodies.

ENTIRE TOWN FOR SALE.

Indian Superintendent to Dispose of Village of Verdell.

Superintendent Mearley of the Santee agency, Nebraska, will enjoy the rather novel sensation of selling an entire town, that of Verdell, on Aug. 10. It appears that when the Elkhead Railroad was extended to suitable points, could be found except upon the Elkhead Indian allotment. Without taking any special notice in a town was started and within the next month the village grew to a village of some 200 people.

The secretary of the interior has now authorized Mr. Mearley to dispose of the entire tract by sealed bids as inherited Indian land.

SURVEY AT DAKOTA CITY.

Locating Line for R. A. Talbot's Proposed Electric Road.

The surveying party which is locating the line for the proposed electric road, way which R. A. Talbot says will be built from South Sioux City to Homer, has completed the survey through Dakota City. The line enters the city on the north at Fourteenth street, thence goes south seven blocks to Broadway, and thence west on Broadway to the west line of the town.

Man Shot Young Lad with a Blank Cartridge.

Harvey Hitchcock, business manager of a publishing company at Lincoln, is threatened with a damage suit because of an accident which occurred at a toy pistol. While he was engaged in a playful altercation with a 13-year-old boy, Albert Spier, the weapon was discharged, Mr. Hitchcock claims accidentally, badly bruising the lad's neck. The parents of young Spier talk of suing Hitchcock for damages.

Four Fatalities at Fremont.

Only four boys were laid up as a result of a close contact with the toy pistol at Fremont. Fred Dangler got his face and one arm filled with powder. A small son of Mrs. Anna Korlin fired a paper wad into the palm of his left hand, Ray Potth, 8 years old, had his hand badly lacerated by the unexpected discharge of a toy pistol, and a small son of George Crawford has the one hand in a sling as a result of experimenting with an ordinary pistol.

May Sue for Damages.

Gov. Mickey announced that he had changed his mind and no demeracy would be extended. However, he would listen to any arguments that might be presented and would make a final announcement later. This was done at the request of the friends of the condemned man, who expect to have a letter from Gov. Durbin of Indiana.

WHAT DID? BEER OR BINDERS? BOTH!

The products of breweries and binder factories have kept up to the front, and while the brewery product is all right in harvest time, the binder is the main thing then and the one you think about now. You save money by buying the money you study up on—the binder with the very best improvements, lasts longest, improved binders have fewer bearings and gears, hence run easier, no weight on the horses' necks means no sore necks, the best steel and malleable construction means the lightest yet strongest frame and the whole means to you an investment that will please you, not one you will regret. We sell both the Milwaukee binders and the Minneapolis binders, mowers and rakes. Kindly call and see them.

Very Remarkable Cure of Diarrhoea.
"About six years ago for the first time in my life I had a sudden and severe attack of Diarrhoea," says Mrs. Alice Miller, of Morgan, Texas. "I got temporary relief, but it came back again and again, and for six long years I have suffered more misery and agony than I can tell. It was worse than death. My husband spent hundreds of dollars for physicians' prescriptions and treatment without avail. Finally we moved to Bosque county, our present home and one day I happened to see an advertisement of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with a testimonial by a man who had been cured by it. The case was so similar to my own that I concluded to try the remedy. The result was wonderful. I could hardly realize that I was well again, or believe it could be so after having suffered so long, but that one bottle of medicine, costing but a few cents, cured me." For sale by Raymond's Pharmacy.

Republican Judicial Dist. Convention.
To the Republican Electors of the Ninth Judicial District of Nebraska:
Notice is hereby given that a republican judicial convention will be held at Norfolk, Nebraska, on the 17th day of August, 1903, at 11 o'clock a. m. for the purpose of nominating a candidate for judge of the Ninth Judicial District, and the transacting of such other business as may regularly come before it. ## PIANO CONTEST!

THE WAYNE REPUBLICAN will give a beautiful Concert Grand Piano made by Chickering Bros., Chicago, and listed by them at $525.00, to the most popular lady in Wayne county and vicinity absolutely free, this lady to be designated by ballots cast for her by subscribers to, and by readers of the WAYNE REPUBLICAN, according to the terms and conditions set forth as follows:

- 1.—Any lady, married or single, may enter the contest.
- 2.—Any lady receiving one or more votes will be accredited with them at once and the result announced in these columns.
- 3.—In every paper printed from June 15, to December 24, 1903, will appear two columns: one is a FREE VOTE and may be voted by any one, the other is a SUBSCRIBER'S BALLOT and is to be voted by subscribers for whom they choose. For each cent paid by the subscriber, new or renewal, or arrears on account of subscription, one vote may be cast.
- 4.—Free votes must be cast within the time limit printed on each else they become void. Subscriber's ballots may be cast at any time before the contest closes, which will be at six o'clock p. m. December 24, 1903.
- 5.—A ballot box will be placed in the REPUBLICAN office in which the ballots may be placed by the person voting or by some one for him, ballots may also be sent by mail. As votes are received they will be deposited in the ballot box, which will be kept under lock, and once each week in the presence of some disinterested person the same will be opened and the votes counted for the purpose of ascertaining the standing of the candidates.
- 6.—The piano may be seen (or its counterpart) on exhibition at the M. S. Davies Book Store in Wayne at any time, and all interested may thus know it is no cheap affair, but that is a splendid instrument, beautiful in tone as well as in finish, and for reason of its high grade was selected especially for this contest to lend character and interest to it, for too often a cheap piano is selected to give away in a piano contest and the winner is wasting time in competing for it. But we are going to do this right—we are going to give the winner a piano equal to the best one in any home in the county, and to gain us the acquaintance we wish, to add to our subscription list as many new readers as possible, and to clean up the last dollar of a large amount of back subscription, we desire the interest to be genuine and make those who participate in the contest feel that they are doing something worth while and that their efforts are appreciated by this paper.

Any lady contesting, or any one else, may act as agent to receive subscriptions for us, and a liberal commission will be paid them to do so. Blanks will be furnished them on application, also, they may extend to subscribers any and all clubbing combinations offered at any time.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Elliott and children left for Chloabasha, Indian Territory, Tuesday for a three week's visit with his parents.

Rev. A. M. Duboc, of Oskaloosa, Iowa, will preach in the Baptist church next Sunday morning and evening. Rev. Duboc comes very highly recommended.

About a week ago Anton Lerner purchased the Bradford light delivery but concluded he did not like it so well after conducting it a few days and sold it to R. Perrin who has been in charge since Monday. Uncle "Bob" is a hustler and will do his part of the business.

Thursday of last week Mrs. Hood and Mrs. Fleetwood drove out to Bressler's Grove with a party of young folks who picniced and made merry in honor of Miss Kathryn Atz of Panama, Iowa, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. C. F. Whitney, in this city the past few weeks. Miss Atz returned to Panama Sunday.

At the Monday shoot of the Wayne Gun Club some good shooting was done. Frank Kruger hit twenty straight getting twenty one out of twenty five. Charley Fisher hit twenty three straight getting twenty four out of twenty five. This goes E. R. Surber one better he having held the highest score so far this season with twenty three. All the other scores were good.

R. F. Leap, of Wakefield, has purchased the fruit and confectionery stand opened up by the Russians on the east side Main street, taking possession last Saturday. Mr. Leap is one of those jolly whole-souled fellows who make friends easily, and he is sure of a nice success in his line. He expects to add to it a limited line of groceries and will be well settled in a few days. His family will come in a few days.

Will Gildersteeye's driving horse took a spin down the street Monday that was exciting for a few minutes. His little girls were driving but had hit the horse at the residence and after rubbing off the bride the horse struck out. At the Wayne National corner the buggy was overturned and the horse doubled around the post in front of P. L. Miller's store, breaking loose from the rig entirely.

J. F. Wyvel, of Alnoworth, was in Wayne last Saturday with a petition soliciting signatures from our citizens to have the new state normal located at Alnoworth. Wayne does not care to throw any stones at our northwestern sister but it is nothing to Wayne's interest to have the school located up there. The upshot of it is the school location is already settled practically and it will go to Ord or some other city southwest.

The law partnership of Wilbur & Berry of which the late Guy R. Wilbur was the senior partner, was one of those mutually pleasant and profitable partnerships that mean a great deal to the firm and community. This firm enjoyed a large patronage but more, than this success, was the confidence of the public that made this success. Since the death of the senior member his son, George, lately graduated from the Ann Arbor university of law, assumes his father's stead in the co-partnership and the future success of the firm promises to be no less than that of the past.

E. A. Lundberg, whose card appears in this issue, has opened an office in the First National Bank building for the practice of law. This gentleman needs no introduction to Wayne and Wayne county people, he has resided here for a number of years and has been actively engaged in the things political concerning this county and section of the state. He graduated from the law department of the University of Nebraska this spring and has spent a few weeks in Colorado before taking up his work here. We are pleased to see Mr. Lundberg locate in Wayne, this section of the state affords many opportunities for success in every line, and Mr. Lundberg is a hard worker, one who will succeed in his chosen field.

Cholera Infantum.

This has long been regarded as one of the most dangerous and fatal diseases to which infants are subject. It can be cured, however, when properly treated. All that is necessary is to give Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and castor oil, as directed with each bottle and a cure is certain. For sale by Raymond's Pharmacy.

Republican Judicial Dist. Convention.

To the Republican Electors of the Ninth Judicial District of Nebraska:
Notice is hereby given that a republican judicial convention will be held at Norfolk, Nebraska, on the 17th day of August, 1903, at 11 o'clock a. m. for the purpose of nominating a candidate for judge of the Ninth Judicial District, and the transacting of such other business as may regularly come before it. The several counties of said district are entitled to the following representation, based on the vote of J. H. Mickley, governor, in November, 1902:

|               |    |
|---------------|----|

| Madison.....  | 17 |
| Wayne.....    | 10 |
| Total.....    | 65 |

It is recommended by the committee that no proxies be allowed in said convention, but that the delegates be allowed to cast the full vote of the county represented by them.
By order of the committee.
GEO. F. BOYD, J. B. BARNES,
Secretary. Chairman.

The Phillee Reception.

Tuesday evening, the 21st, Mr. and Mrs. R. Phillee gave a reception for their son, Edward B. Phillee and bride, who were married a few weeks ago. Over two hundred invitations were sent to friends of the family here and abroad and about one hundred and twenty five guests were present. The spacious Phillee home was brilliantly lighted throughout and on the lawn and presented a scene of unusual social interest. Mr. Fred Phillee received at the door and Master Leslie Epler at the guests dressing room upstairs. In the front parlor Mr. and Mrs. R. Phillee and Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Phillee received the guests formally, here the merry greetings to guests and hearty congratulations to the bridal couple were exchanged, the decorations of pink and white, profusions of sweet peas, banks of palms and ferns, festoons of smilax all tokening the happy event. In the south parlor the large bay window was decorated for the punch bowl over which Miss Anna Gamble presided. The festoons of smilax curtained the bay window and here as through the house, pink and white prevailed. The dining room was not less tastily arranged, guests were admitted through the pink ribbon gateway and departing were presented with pink and white lovers' knots as souvenirs which were pinned on the guests by Miss Ella Bayer. Mrs. Geo. Damon presided at the table laid with covers for twenty guests, and Misses Benschopf and Bockenhauer served the guests. The chandelabra was very pretty and the pink and white prevailed here even to the ice-cream.

Miss Anna Gamble sang a solo with Miss Phillee at the piano and the evening passed quickly in the light-hearted atmosphere of the occasion.

The bride's costume of white French mill made over an ecru dress, pink white silk organdie was heavily trimmed in lace, 's most beautiful effect. The groom's course wore the conventional black. The general company was marked by the presence of an unusual number of distinguished guests and the event is remembered as a long one of the social season.

A Dog's Queer Taste.
"Old Peter Jenkins of our town has the only tobacco-chewing dog I ever heard of," says a Bristol, Pa., man in the Philadelphia Record. "The dog is now over 10 years old, and so far as anybody knows, he has been a slave to the habit ever since he was a puppy. Peter himself says he doesn't remember how the pup acquired the taste; maybe he never takes a chew without offering one to the dog if he is around, and the dog never refuses. If Peter should happen to forget he would soon be forcibly reminded of his oversight. It is a curious thing to see the dog lying with head in his paws, working his jaws over a juicy bit. He swallows it, too, and it never seems to bother him sick."

A Chameleon's Bite.
The bite even of the largest chameleon does not fetch blood, though the teeth leave indentations. I often, says a naturalist, provoke them to bite me in order to observe their habits, and I only once, when one caught me between the fingers where the skin is tender, was I really hurt. On this occasion the thing bit me so persistently and firmly that I could not for some time free my finger. At last I was obliged to call some one to get it off by forcibly opening its mouth. Even then it did not pierce the skin. Its teeth are too fine and regular, but the dotted triangular impression of the little tooth was very red and distinct for some minutes.

An Ideal Woman's Medicine.

So says Mrs. Josie Irwin, of 325 So. College St., Nashville, Tenn., of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Never in the history of medicine has the demand for one particular remedy for female ills equalled that attained by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and never during the 15 years of this wonderful medicine has the demand for it been so great as it is today.

From the Atlantic to the Pacific, and throughout the length and breadth of this great continent come the glad tidings of woman's sufferings relieved by it, and thousands upon thousands of letters are pouring in from grateful women saying that it will and positively does cure the worst forms of female complaints.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all women who are puzzled about their health to write her at Lynn, Mass., for advice. Such correspondence is seen by women only, and no charge is made.

Farmer's Life the Only One.
"We are going to sell our printing office and go to farming," says the editor of a Kansas paper. "We were told last week that a farmer whose wife and family of five children are getting around and bossing the job. The lovely daughter, and she is lovely—has about a half-acre of chickens, while the boys have cattle, horses, hogs, and the like to get away with all the feed that is grown on the place, and every once in a while they buy another quarter. They have a handsome new house, the woods are full of quail, the creek is full of black bass and they live right up at the top of the pot, every day in the year. This family owns about everything in sight and is hustling every day for more. We wish we were a pig to eat that farmer!"

He Feels Good.
Caddo, Ky., July 20.—I believe I could climb a mountain without drawing a long breath. It is the way William Hall of this place describes how he is feeling.

AS Mr. Hall has been on the sick list for a long time, this declaration from him comes as quite a surprise. When asked to explain how he had become so strong in such a short time, he says: "I did have kidney trouble very bad. In fact I had to get up four or five times every night to urinate. I had shortness of breath which distressed me terribly. I was badly used up, and was unable to do anything for anything. I used three boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and that's what has made me well. I can sleep all night without having to get up. I feel splendid and as I said before, I believe I could climb a mountain without drawing a long breath. Dodd's Kidney Pills did it all."

A Cause of Trouble.
"Did you see where a scientist says that the principle of life is the breakdown of matter?"

"Yes," answered the satisfied bachelor, "and I expect to get married."

Warning of Death for Catarrh that Cannot Cure.
It is necessary to destroy the cause of small and complete cure of the urinary system when a cure is made through the use of such articles should be used except on prescriptions from a physician. As the average man will do his best to get rid of his trouble, he will use anything that possibly comes from them. But Catarrh of the urinary tract is a disease which is not cured by any medicine, and it is often fatal. It is necessary to destroy the cause of the trouble. One who has cured his trouble, it is taken, diagnosed, and cured in Toledo, Ohio, by Dr. J. C. Hartman, President of the National Association of Urologists, per letter.

COOLING PLANT AT CAPITOL.

Plans for Heating Purposes Can Be Used with Refrigerating Works.
It is not generally understood that the larger portion of a plant for cooling the capitol in Washington is actually in place and that should Congress ever decide to provide a low temperature during times when the sessions are protracted through the heated term it could do so with very little delay.

When pipes for heating purposes were put in the capitol in connection with the modern heating and ventilation plants they were designed with the special purpose of having them utilized for cooling the capitol, should an ever be required. All that is needed to turn these hot water pipes into a refrigerating apparatus is to secure the necessary machinery for forcing a stream of cooling fluid through them. The big marble and masonry building, at present an empty shell, is now much cooler than most places in hot weather and the need for a cooling plant has never been so greatly felt as it other wise would be, because Congress usual manages to adjourn at the beginning of the hot period.

It is doubtful whether the leaders on both sides of the capitol would willingly consent to having a cooling plant in the big building, says the Washington Star, because it would take away the terror of the hot weather which is now so potent an influence in preventing long-drawn-out sessions. It is doubtful whether they would be willing to have a understand that obstructionists might have a home as cool as the coast of Maine in which to put up obstacles to legislation and prolong sessions through July and August. They rather enjoy the threat of hot weather as a reason why business should be disposed of promptly.

MONUMENT TO ST. CLAIR.

Wish to Honor His Memory.
The Daughters of the Revolution, who have done so much permanently to mark historic spots in the country, are now once more agitating a movement to honor fittingly General Arthur St. Clair by placing a handsome monument over his grave. This is a proper move, says the Philadelphia Inquirer, not because St. Clair deserves to be honored above others who are still without monuments, nor because he was a great general or administrator. He should be honored because in a peculiar way he was connected with our history for a very long period. He was one of the first of "typical Americans."

make Ohio a federalist State by cutting it down to half its present proportions. In advocating this he used language which Jefferson could not overlook and was removed from office. This was his fall, from which he never recovered, though he lived long. Losing his property, he continued a log-cabin life while trying to get the State and Congress to compensate his lost status to compensation for property devoted to the service of the country. He died at an advanced age, embittered by his sufferings and the alleged injustice done him, while he saw mediocre men gain prominence and power.

He died in the belief that the country was going to ruin, largely induced, no doubt, by the fact that his own services had been rejected. He was, with all his limitations, a man of merit, though perhaps he is known better as the man who made Washington swear than for anything else. The outburst of profanity on the part of Washington, continues the Inquirer, when he heard of the disaster to the Western army is declared by the only auditor to have been almost fiendish in his vigor and sulphurous character. However, Washington recovered his equanimity and is loved none the less because he was very human with all his wisdom.

MILLIONS FOR A MUSEUM.

New National Structure Will Cost an Immense Sum of Money.
Plans have been completed for the new $5,500,000 structure that is to be erected for the National Museum in Washington. The regents of the Smithsonian Institution are supervising this work, and it is their idea to have a complete rearrangement of the exhibits now in the National Museum and the Smithsonian Institution buildings.

The new structure is to be devoted to the scientific collections of the government, the present National Museum building to the industrial arts and the old Smithsonian building to the Smithsonian and National Museum library and art collections. The regents propose that the scientific collection in the new building shall be the finest in the world, and an officer of the institution makes the statement that already many of the branches to be covered have reached a perfection that is not equaled in any other museum in the world, even the great British museum.

The chief subjects to be covered are biology, anthropology, geology, zoology, botany and American history. The present National Museum building will be given up to a general exposition of industrial art, including the already immense and unique collection of the museum, and many additions that the regents are planning to acquire as rapidly as possible. The museum will be modeled in its scope and general plan after the Victoria and Albert Museum of Great Britain. Among the chief departments will be those of land transportation, boat models, implements of war and electrical apparatus, of which the museum already has rich collections.

The plans for the Smithsonian building contemplate the creation in time of a magnificent library and art gallery. The scientific library of the institution is already one of the finest in the world. Its scope will be broadened and it will become a much more important unit in the general scheme of the institution. The plans for the art gallery are as yet tentative. The new structure will be 480 feet long and 345 feet broad, with a height of four stories.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Photography Betrayed Him.

Speaking of baseball, says the Philadelphia Telegraph, there is a certain resolute young man in this town who recently decided that the mifurling of a championship pennant for the first time in nineteen years was an event not to be passed over regardless. He is a clerk and his office hours are from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. Last Wednesday morning he failed to appear at his desk. Instead his employer received a note, announcing his sudden and unexpected indisposition.

The young man was a faithful employe, and his employer was only too willing to excuse him under the circumstances. On the day following the opening game the clerk had entirely recovered. As he entered his place of business, the man who pays his salary politely inquired after his health. Receiving a satisfactory reply, the employer remarked, casually: "I hope you enjoyed the game?"

"What game?" queried the clerk. "The Boston-Athletic baseball game," was the reply.

The young man was about to enter a protest, when his employer handed him a copy of a newspaper containing a sectional view of the "bleachers" at the ball park. It included a life-like portrait of the recalcitrant clerk.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Passing of Osage Hedge.
The osage hedges which border thousands of Illinois farms are gradually disappearing. This hedge, introduced a half century ago by Professor J. B. Turner of Jacksonville, became very popular, and for many years was a favorite fence, not only with farmers, but with lot owners in the smaller towns, and with the railroad companies.

The high price of fence posts and lumber made the osage an economical fence, also, and in spite of its faults it gradually became extensively used. It held its own until wire fencing appeared. Then it became evident that the osage was doomed. Wire fencing was more effective, was cheaper, took up less room and required less care. The railroads began grubbing up their hedges and substituting wire. The farmers followed their lead, and where there used to be miles of hedge there are only rows of it now.

The osage is said to be good for wind breaks, but owing to the fact it is injurious to vegetation near it by forming a fixed idea it will probably soon be abandoned entirely.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

EARS GROW DURING LIFE.

These Attachments Do Not Attain Full Size Until Death.
The systematic examination of more than 40,000 pairs of human ears in England and France has resulted in some interesting conclusions. For one thing, it is ascertained that the ear continues to grow in the later decades of life—in fact, it appears never to stop growing until death. If one will take the trouble to look around in any assemblage of people, as at church, he will discover that the old folks have ears considerably larger than those of the middle-aged. A woman who has small, shell-like ears at 20 years of age will be very apt to possess much-enlarged ears at 40 years and larger ears at 60.

Why ears should go on growing all one's life any more than noses is a mystery. There are a good many other points about them that are instructive, their shape being markedly persistent through heredity. Any ear will be handed down, so to speak, from father to son for generation after generation. With comparatively little modification. Some authorities on criminology assert that criminals are very apt to possess a peculiar kind of ear, which is recognized by an expert in such matters.

There is probably nobody in the world who has a pair of ears perfectly matched; in most people the two differ perceptibly, not only in shape, but also in size. Frequently they are not placed precisely alike on the head. The age of a person may be judged with great accuracy by the ears, which after youth is passed assume an increasing harshness of contour. A pretty woman whose first youth has departed may not show the fact in other ways, but these telltale features will surely tell the story of the flight of time. Then there is the little wrinkle that comes just in front of each ear during the thirties, a fatal and ineluctable sign.

Near the top of each ear, just within the downturned edge and slightly toward the back, will be found, if one feels for it, a small lump of cartilage. This is a remnant of what was originally the tip of the ear, when ever so long ago that organ in our remote ancestors had a point on it. Most of the apex to-day have pointed ears, but in human beings the upper edge of the organ has in the course of ages been folded over so as to cover the real tip.—Saturday Evening Post.

Like Many Smokers.

Some of the clerks in the War Department played a joke on a well-known clerk in the telegraph office the other day. They got a cheap cigar, filled it with small pieces of rubber and then gave it to the telegraph man. He is always playing practical jokes on his fellows and they were merely trying to even up. He started in to work as usual and puffed vigorously on the cigar. He must have had a cold in his head, for he didn't seem to notice the fact that the rubber was in the mouth. His associates could hardly stand it, however, but they didn't know about the cigar. The odor finally became overpowering, and the smell of rubber was unmistakable. As there had been some trouble with the telegraphic apparatus the innocent victims concluded from the smell that the insulators had caught fire. An expert electrician was summoned from the Western Union office and spent some time examining the switch-board connections. It was not until after he reported that there was nothing at all the matter with them that the truth dawned upon the operators that it was merely a case of "bad cigar." It was a curious commentary on the smoker's taste that he didn't know he was not smoking tobacco until those around him informed him of the fact.—Washington Post.

The Sloop on Record.

The Ea, says the Philadelphia Record, is said to have the shortest name for a vessel in the world. She is a Spanish steamer, and she reached Philadelphia laden with iron ore, after a voyage so rough that three of her sailors were incapacitated by sea-sickness. The Ea was named by a Spanish nobleman after his daughter, Estheraida. She belongs to a line that has set in the matter of short names, an example that other lines are beginning now to follow. The Eolo, the Aro and the Ori are sister ships of hers. In all the fleet there is not a name that is more than five letters long.

PE-RU-NA IS OF SPECIAL BENEFIT TO WOMEN

Says Dr. M. C. Gee, of San Francisco.
A CONSTANTLY increasing number of physicians prescribe Pe-Ru-NA in their regular practice. It has proven its merits so thoroughly that even the doctors have overcome their prejudice against so-called patent medicines and recommended it to their patients.

"I Advise Women to Use Pe-Ru-NA," Says Dr. Gee.
Dr. M. C. Gee is one of the physicians who endorse Pe-Ru-NA. In a letter written from 513 Jones street, San Francisco, Cal., he says:

"There is a general objection to the part of the practicing physician to advocate patent medicines, but when any one medicine cures hundreds of people, it demonstrates its own value and does not need the indorsement of the profession. 'Pe-Ru-NA has performed so many wonderful cures in San Francisco that I am convinced that it is a valuable remedy. I have frequently advised its use for women, as it finds it insures regular and painless menstruation, cures leucorrhoea and ovarian troubles, and builds up the entire system. I also consider it one of the finest catarrh remedies known. It is the only internal systemic catarrh remedy known to the medical profession to-day. Catarrh, as every one will admit, is the cause of one-half the diseases which afflict mankind. Catarrh and catarrhal diseases afflict one-half of the people of the United States.

"Before I commenced to take Pe-Ru-NA I could not do any hard work without suffering great pain. I took Pe-Ru-NA, and can say with pleasure that it has done more for me than any other medicine I have ever taken. Now I am as well as ever. I do all my own work, and it never hurts me at all. I think Pe-Ru-NA is a great medicine for womankind."
Mrs. E. T. Gaddis, Marion, N. C., is one of Dr. Hartman's grateful patients. She writes him by letter, follows his directions, and is now able to say the following:

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Pe-Ru-NA, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.
Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

Pope Leo XIII died July 20, aged 93 years, 4 months, his funeral the most grand and impressive possible to give to man will not be concluded before August 1st His successor will be chosen the fore part of August by the Sacred College of the Cardinals of the Catholic church. Leo has been the most remarkable pope in the long line since St. Peter who was crucified head downward, 66 A. D., on the site of the present St. Peter's Cathedral in Rome. His papal reign of 25 years is the longest of any of the popes, he has been liberal to other christian religions, and he has been a statesman and diplomat of first rank. It is to be hoped his successor is of the same liberal character, as the Roman Catholic church has gained much by it, and the relations of Catholics and protestants have been mutually advanced in the religious and political world by the wisdom of the lately deceased pontiff.

Jim Behtish and Tillie Ferris were passengers to Norfolk Monday evening.

Kate and Jennie Waddell came Saturday evening for a visit with home folks.

Mrs. H. S. Strickland and Miss Williams were shopping in Norfolk last Thursday.

Mrs. M. J. Dendinger and children and Kate Waddell were passengers to Norfolk Monday.

Mrs. Ferris and children went to her parents near Norfolk the first of the week to visit.

C. Burbank and Alma Benser returned from a two week's visit in Norfolk last Sunday.

Rev. Redmond's regular appointment at the M. E. church is Sunday, August 2. Come out and hear him.

Mrs. Metlin who visited her daughter, Mrs. H. J. Candor a few days returned to her home in Wayne Saturday.

Mrs. B. E. Fenner and Selma returned from Sac City, Iowa Tuesday where they had been for a week's visit with a niece.

While we have no special reason to stand by Hoskins in any matter we are pleased to have something entitled to praise happen here. The Hoskins Hose Co in the Firemen's parade at Norfolk Tuesday morning gave Hoskins reason to be proud, as the hundreds of people assembled rained words of praise and all kinds of compliments on the Hoskins fire department, and they well deserved them, as there was not another among the many companies represented there that could any where near approach it in appearance, and first prize was awarded them by the big crowd present. But when it came to the committee composed of Norfolk men and men from other big towns, we suppose, the boys weren't in. They received what under the circumstances was worse than nothing—3rd prize. People that know Norfolk of old say they are surprised that they were recognized that much. Grand Island (a big town) got what she was not entitled to—1st prize. Hoskins got experience (which may prove invaluable to her) of course all present know Hoskins had fairly won first money and of course all know Hoskins is a cipher in Norfolk's estimation, and Norfolk don't care whether Hoskins likes it or not, but now Hoskins knows just where it stands with Norfolk and can act accordingly or not as it pleases. Most likely it will swallow the pill and smilingly continue to pour out its money into Norfolk's coffers, as nearly the entire town was represented there Thursday.

Wayne county will soon be once more engaged in a political campaign. The county convention which meets a week from tomorrow, August 1, will place in nomination a county ticket covering the principal county offices. There is no contest for several of the offices, partly because the officials now holding them have given the very best satisfaction, and partly because the salary or fees amount to so meagre an amount no one is tempted thereby. In this class for these reasons are the County Judge's office well filled by E. Hunter, the Sheriff's office by Grant Mears, a man of exceptionally good qualifications for the office of deputy sheriff, and C. H. Bright, the real business superintendent of schools, who could be with propriety endorsed by the democrats. The new office created by the new Revenue Law, county assessor, has few aspirants. Perry Beushoff is spoken of by his friends and has agreed to accept it if it is the voice of the convention. A number of others have been spoken of at various times but some have positively refused to accept, and some have ceased to be talked of, probably not wishing it. For Clerk of the District Court no one has been mentioned. This office pays $500 to $600 in the fees of the office, hardly enough to attract many candidates, to be sure. The same way with Surveyor and Coroner. Jones has made a good surveyor, renominate him. Dr. Williams has had four cases in two years and added about fifty dollars to his bank account, this is an unusual amount of business for a coroner in peaceful Nebraska. If he will take it again by all means impose it upon him, as he is a good official. For the Clerkship and Treasurership, the principal offices in point of salary and political importance, the situation is peculiar. For the clerkship Chas. Beebe, the present deputy clerk, and D. K. Hern are aspirants. Both are from the same ward in Wayne and will commence the contest at the primary. Which ever one is nominated the county is sure of an efficient officer, if elected. Burlington Cunningham stands alone in the list of probabilities for the county treasurership. One and another have been spoken of only to deny that he was a possibility. In Mr. Cunningham we will find a man of the best citizenship and a dutiful official. Mr. Cunningham could give a bond for a million dollars signed by the old settlers of Wayne county who would not hesitate to do so if Mr. Cunningham wished. The convention will be spirited in friendly contests, quick work, nominations by acclamation. It is to be hoped the ticket, whoever the nominees be, will be acceptable to everyone. THE REPUBLICAN, true to its name, promises a loyal support to every nominee and will be on hand at the banquet after the election, to help take care of blue paints and mineral water at the expense of the elected ones—even if they happen to be democrats.

Superior Monuments.

The writer accompanied Prof. R. Durrin to Greenwood cemetery one day this week to look at some of the fine monuments recently erected by this gentleman. The last one erected is by far the largest and most expensive in this part of the state and is in design a model of the stone cutters art. The foundation used a carload of stone and 1200 pounds of cement and passes well below the frost line. The superstructure is of Barre (Vermont) granite, fine ax-d finish except the deeply recessed panels on sides and ends to afford a pleasing contrast and admit the inscriptions. It is carochophag style and weighs 24500 and is erected by the estate of the late J. E. Pingrey. The location is near the southeastern corner of Greenwood and is easily seen from the road leading past the cemetery. The inscriptions "J. H. Pingrey 1819-1902" and Mary L. Pingrey 1821" indicate what is again expressed in the clasped hands, the two sheaves and the sickle carved on the face of the cap piece. This design was suggested by Mrs. Pingrey and Prof. Durrin carefully executed her ideas in the chiseled stone. She said it was typical of their early life as tillers of the soil and of their lives of industry in touch with bounteous Nature, as well as it is the symbol of Time the inevitable reaper. Mrs. Pingrey is highly pleased with it indeed. In ten thousand years this carochophagus will be intact from the ravaging hand of time because of the material of its construction. Other beautiful monuments lately erected are to the late Ran Frazier and to Richard Davies, one of the finest effects in dark New York marble affording a beautiful contrast and rich in its artistic effect. One to Mrs. C. J. Lund is soon to be placed. What is most noticeable is the workmanship of Prof. Durrin in contrast with outside marble dealers. Look at the scores of Vermont marble monuments erected ten years ago that were beautiful to look upon when new but hardly legible now. Faded and still fading, soft stone, easily cut, easily oxidized, gone in a few generations so far as inscription is concerned. Compare them with the hard resisting granite, the deeper contrast, the better effect of Prof. Durrin's inscriptions, the more graceful effects of his carvings, and you will with the writer agree that in Wayne it is possible to get the best the world affords in the marble line, not only this but you get it from a dealer who is not afraid of dulling his tools on the granite that existed for millions of years before the soft marble found a resting place near the calcareous floods.

SKIN diseases and affections of every nature now quickly and permanently Cleared Away

A new skin prescription—all powerful in treatment of parasitic breaks in the skin. Not greasy or unpleasant, but a clean liquid, sopped or atomized over the affected parts. Instantly relieves all itching burning pains or soreness.

Cleared Away and Entirely Cured in 21 Days.

TESTIMONY FROM A LEADING DRUGGIST

The following testimony speaks for itself. It is a matter of humanity to tell everybody with a skin disease about this medicament.

Astonishingly quick and complete cures of all varieties of skin diseases by D. D. D. have been fully verified in nine cases out of every ten that have come under my observation. In every case it did its work in 3 to 6 weeks time. It is to my knowledge the most wonderful curative agent in all Materia Medica for diseases of the skin. Its results are marvelous; some cases of years' standing were cleared away in a few days almost before my eyes.

I give this public acknowledgment in response to a request from the D. D. D. Company as to my honest opinion of this medicament. I have no hesitancy in expressing myself positively concerning it, as its efficacy has been proven to me beyond the possibility of doubt.

L. P. ORTH, DRUGGIST

D. D. D. is now used by every family physician who has investigated it. It is used by the greatest skin specialists in the country. It is used in the Cook County Hospital, Chicago. It will clear away any parasitic break in the skin in from 3 to 60 days time. It is a medical triumph. In Eczema, Salt Rheum, Barber's Itch, Itching Piles and all skin affections, in the invariable success this local treatment proves it is a skin parasite that causes the trouble and that it is not the blood that is to blame.

D. D. D. clears it all away—absolutely and quickly, too.

The above druggist will fill mail orders on receipt of price—$1.00 a bottle. Compounded for druggists everywhere by the D. D. D. Company, 70 Dearborn Street, Chicago, Illinois.

FINE EXHIBIT FOR A FAIR

Victoria's Jubilee Gifts Loaned to St. Louis Exposition.

ESTIMATED WORTH $15,000,000.

Highly Prized Collection of Presents to England's Late Queen Will Be Sent by King Edward to America in Charge of a Royal Commission and Heavy Armed Guard.

It needed some such striking fact as King Edward's munificent offer to send the priceless collection of Queen Victoria diamond jubilee presents to the Louisiana Purchase exposition to arouse the British mind to a proper appreciation of the importance of the St. Louis fair, and it has had its effect, says the London correspondent of the New York World.

All London is talking, too, of the appearance at the American society's Washington's birthday banquet of the phlegmatic, unemotional Duke of Devonshire as the eulogist of President Roosevelt. He had never been known before to propose a personal toast to any one; but, to the surprise of all, he became almost enthusiastic over the American chief executive.

At this banquet the central figure was President Francis of the exposition, who has been indefatigable in his work at London to make the St. Louis fair a success. In his private interview with King Edward, Governor Francis was told that the gifts would be sent as the monarch's own mark of intimate sympathy with the American people and in appreciation of their admiration for his mother. It is probable that a royal commission will be appointed and that a heavy guard will be sent with the highly prized treasures to guard them on their way to and from the United States and while they are there.

This magnificent collection of gifts, estimated to be worth at least $15,000,000, created a great stir when shown for the first time in London, and extraordinary precautions were taken for their safety. One of the most superb things in the collection is the gift from the czar, the zarina, the Grand Duke and Duchess of Hesse and Prince and Princess Louis of Battenberg. It is a diamond heart pendant, the center of which is open and occupied by the Slavonic numerals for "sixty," above which is an enormous sapphire and at the sides two drops of the same stones.

Among the numerous rare and wonderful presents from the emperor of China is a bronze altar vessel for wine, square in form, suspended in a framework pierced with metal bearing dates, proving it to have been manufactured about 1,000 years before Christ.

The dowager empress of China sent precious porcelain from the imperial potteries and some autograph scroll paintings, among which is one representing "Eternal Spring over the Sea Nation."

The shah of Persia's gift is his own photograph in one of the most costly frames ever made. It is of solid gold, with a floral device carried out in large turquoise of flawless color and diamonds.

The Princess of Wales, now Queen Alexandra, together with the Duke and Duchess of York, the Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh and other members of the royal family, gave a splendid diamond brooch, consisting of one immense diamond of rarest luster surrounded by twelve smaller ones.

The German emperor's present is a large silver gilt vase surmounted by a figure of Britannia.

The Chinese ambassador sent one of the most unique presents. It depicts marvelously modeled birds in jade, surrounded by bulrushes and water plants standing out in high relief, being to the Chinese mind an allegorical representation of "the spontaneous joy of a myriad nation."

The Prince of Wales, now King Edward, presented to his mother splendid portraits of himself and his brother, the Duke of Connaught, painted by Detaille.

Empress Frederick gave a beautiful paperweight formed of an oblong block of chrysochryse, with the two dates 1837-07, the royal crown and cipher in diamonds and other precious stones.

The emperor of Japan's present is a finely carved screen with embroidered silk panels and a gold lacquer cabinet.

JAPS BUILD HIS COTTAGES.

William Rockefeller to Have New Home in Adirondacks.

William Rockefeller, the Standard Oil millionaire, who has made large purchases of land in the Adirondacks, near St. Regis lake, is erecting two cottages the like of which were never seen in America, says a Watertown (N. Y.) dispatch to the New York World. He recently imported Japanese to build two beautiful Japanese cottages near the lake for use in summer.

All the work is done by Japanese under the supervision of a Japanese architect. The cottages will cost many thousands of dollars. Even American nails are discarded, and as much Japanese materials as can possibly be used are being put in the cottages.

CHARLOTTE CUSHMAN.

Charlotte Cushman, the great actress. Haven't you got enough men to admire you without coming between man and wife and robbing me of my husband?

"Your husband!" cried Miss Cushman, getting excited.

"Yes, and you have taken or you are trying to take him from me," continued the ragged woman, looking Miss Cushman full in the face.

"Who is your husband?"

"Conrad Clark," replied the woman, "the father of this child," pointing to a half starved, thin little child in her arms.

Miss Cushman started as if she had been shot.

She went through her part that night as usual—acted it splendidly—brought down the house; then, after the performance, she sent for Clark to come to her dressing room. Clark knocked and then opened the door. She brought forward to him his wife and baby, who had been waiting in the dressing room to receive him.

Such a reception! Charlotte Cushman never looked or acted so grandly on the stage in all her life as she did that night in her dressing room. She waved Clark away with a greater majesty than ever as Queen Catherine she waved away Cardinal Wolsey, and then going to her hotel probably she laid a goodly cry spell.

But she never loved again.

MORGAN'S NEW LIBRARY.

Building to Be Erected in Rear of Banker's New York Home.

J. Pierpont Morgan's private library and art gallery to be erected in the rear of his Madison avenue and East Thirty-sixth street home, in New York, is the largest in the country. The architects, McKim, Mead & White, said that the plans had not been completed, but the understanding is that it is Mr. Morgan's purpose to have the structure built with as little inconvenience as possible to his neighbors and not have it dwarf houses near by. The cost of the structure is to be $350,000, says the New York Commercial Advertiser.

The plans in the bureau of buildings are for a two story structure, with a frontage of 115.2 feet on "Thirty-sixth street and lawn space in front. It is to be in the shape of a T, the central section to be 73.5 feet in depth. The two wings are to be about forty feet each. The foundation is on bedrock at seven feet below the ground level. The foundations are of rock, and the supporting walls are to be of brick. There is to be a main hall, with the bookshelves along the wall, and several mezzanine floors that are not to extend the length of the building or the wings, but are to afford room for reading in alcoves. The plans call for a building as fireproof as can be, as thousands of books and manuscripts are to be stored.

CLIMATOLOGY FOR BUILDERS.

Weather Chief Moore Tells How to Lower the Death Rate.

Wills Moore, chief of the weather bureau at Washington, thinks that every man should employ a climatologist as well as an architect when he decides to build a residence, says the Philadelphia Press. The government's chief weather prophet says if this were done the death rate of the United States would be materially lowered.

He is convinced that in the location of towns and in the west in future the bureau over which he presides will be called on for data as to climatic conditions running over a series of years before the exact locations are chosen.

RESOLUTIONS.

Resolutions adopted by the Independent Order of Odd Fellows at a regular meeting held on the evening of July 20, 1903:

Whereas, it has pleased Him who rules over all to take from our midst our beloved brother, Guy R. Wilbur. Be It Therefore Resolved, by this lodge that in the death of our beloved brother we have lost a faithful and honored member; that in our humble and weak way we extend to his bereaved family our heartfelt sympathy.

Be It Further Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the records of the lodge, that the original record be given his widow and that copies thereof be published in each of the Wayne papers.

There were a large number of children sucking stick candy. Low says it touched his heart and made him feel like coming right home and paying his Blade subscription—Coleridge Blade.

The Maxwell Tribune declares that our grandfathers used to have a cure for habitual drunkenness which consisted in putting an old soaker in a place where he could not get away and then feeding him nothing but alcohol-flavored food. There was whisky in his coffee, his beef was smothered in burnt rum, bread smelt of gin. Nine times out of ten, a few weeks of this sort of thing would make the poor creature crave even starvation as a relief and hate alcohol with a deadly hatred. There are a whole lot of fellows in this community, however, who would like to try that "cure," and who would gladly have cut out of their bill of fare the coffee, meat and bread.—Ex.

On Tuesday morning Fritz Elstoger received a telephone message from one of his neighbors at his farm. Informing him that his hired man, John Oldenbush, had disappeared during the night before and that a valuable horse had also turned up missing. Mr. Elstoger immediately went to his place, taking Marshall Clark along, and began a search for the missing animal. The tracks of the animal led first toward Bancroft but were soon lost in the main highway so as not to be traceable. Clark and Elstoger got track of the man and horse several times and found where he had inquired the way to Wisner. The enquiry had evidently been made to mislead any pursuer, as when the pursuers reached Wiener there was no trace to be found. Returning to Bancroft they began a systematic search of the country, going from house to house and enquiring at every farm in the neighborhood. Wednesday afternoon nine miles south of Pender, the man was found at work in a field, the horse being in the barn. Oldenbush was arrested, charged with horse stealing and placed in the Thurston county jail. The sheriff of Cumulung county was telephoned for yesterday and Oldenbush will be taken to West Point for trial as the crime was committed in that county.—Pender Republic.

MISS BLANCHE GOSS.

Miss Blanche Goss, daughter of T. S. Goss residing north of Wayne, one of the leading contestants in the Piano Contest, is at present taking the nurse training course at the Samaritan Hospital in Sioux City which she will finish in a few months. While personally unable to meet those who would cut their votes for her she nevertheless appreciates this favor and while she is devoted to her errand of duty her friends are taking care of her interests in this contest.

MISS LUCY MILLER.

Miss Lucy Miller, one of the leading contestants in the Piano Contest, is the 16-year-old daughter of "Mac" Miller of this city. She is ambitious to secure a musical education, and as she is dependent to a considerable extent on her own efforts, any assistance her friends can give her toward securing the piano will be doubly appreciated. She is at present employed at Steen's Bakery where she will be pleased to meet you.

MISS KITTIE PORTER.

Miss Kittie Porter, daughter of J. H. Porter residing four miles northwest of Carroll, is a new contestant to enter the field and while she enters with a modest few hundred votes to her credit, this week, Carroll loyally promises her a much better showing for the near future, in fact her candidacy may be considered one of the leading ones.

MISS KATE ENGLERT

Another lady enters the contest this week, Miss Kate Engler, daughter of M. S. Engler, residing about six miles southeast of Wayne. She is a deserving girl, will depend upon her hard work and hustle for her success in the contest and will appreciate a favor if a friend or acquaintance gives her his votes. Her start is modest, but her figures will climb rapidly as she is actively furthering her interests.

No change in any of the other figures indicate no interest from the other contestants. It is probably not fair to speak of them as contestants as the votes cast for them were from friends who suggested their names. Any name will be dropped on request, any one wishing to enter the contest will be given opportunity if the will drop a line to the REPUBLICAN.

GALE CAUSED PANIC

SEVERE STORM SWEEPS LAKE MICHIGAN.

Blow Brought Terror to Passengers on Many Steamers and Kept Life Savers Busy—Wind and Rain Hold the City at Their Mercy.

Chicago: Wind and rain had Chicago at their mercy for over an hour Saturday night. Persons in the streets were buffeted about and a number of women were blown from their feet. On the lake the gale was even wilder and caused terror among the passengers on the excursion boats. The gale was from the southwest.

It was the worst gale in ten years," declared Capt. Carlund of the life saving crew.

Early in the evening signals of distress were heard from the steamer Mary, which, with seventy passengers on board, was returning from Michigan City.

The passengers on the new steamer City of South Haven will remember their trip for months. As they fled across the gang plank after six hours of wind, rain, and rolling sea they presented a sorry spectacle.

All but a mere handful of them had been seasick and the steamer had been thrown into confusion from stem to stern.

Fear of collision with other boats passing out of the harbor caused the captain to sound the distress signals, which led to much excitement among the seasick and terrified passengers.

The Christopher Columbus came down from Milwaukee in the nose of the gale, and also had a goodly share of sickness aboard.

The life savers spent a busy evening, making several trips into the lake to rescue sailing boats which had been swept from their moorings.

In the downtown streets the force of the wind and rain was terrific. Umbrellas were useless and scores were ruined or jerked from their owners' hands.

According to the weather office the wind attained a velocity of 36 miles an hour. The rainfall in thirty minutes was over half an inch.

Rehe is Hanged—Murderer of Herman Zahn Executed at Lincoln—Supreme Court Refused to Grant Injunction Restraining Execution.

William Rhea was hanged at 1:21 P.M. Friday afternoon at Lincoln. He died in eleven minutes of strangulation.

The attorneys for Rhea Friday morning asked the supreme court for an injunction to delay the hanging, claiming that the execution was voided by the reprieve granted by Gov. Savage.

The execution was postponed fifty minutes pending the decision. The reprieve by Gov. Savage imposed "hard labor" upon Rhea as a punishment.

The attorneys for Rhea, in a last effort, went before Judge Holmer, of the district court, in an endeavor to get the lower court to prepare an injunction stopping the execution.

AND MINNEAPOLIS TOO!

WHAT DID? BEER OR BINDERS? BOTH!

The products of breweries and binder factories have kept up to the forefront, and while the brewery product is all right in harvest time, the binder is the main thing then and the one you think about now. You save money by buying the money you study up on—the binder with the very best improvements, lasts longest, improved binders have fewer bearings and gears, hence run easier, no weight on the horses necks means no sore necks, the best steel and malleable construction means the lightest yet strongest frame and the whole means to you an investment that will please you, not one you will regret. We sell both the Milwaukee binders and the Minneapolis binders, mowers and rakes. Findly call and see them.

Do You Want Something BETTER Than You Have?

PRICE.—You can buy better land for less money than you can in Nebraska or Iowa. If you buy for a home you can have more of same quality land for the investment you now have. If you buy for investment your $35.00 to $50.00 Missouri land rents for as much as your $75.00 to $100.00 land in Nebraska.

CROPS.—and crop conditions are as good as are to be found anywhere. Average rainfall greater than in Nebraska. Pasture season is long. Winters short and mild. For live stock breeders and feeders the conditions are as near perfect as can be found anywhere in the United States.

OTHER ADVANTAGES.—Here are good schools, many churches, rural mail service, farm telephone systems—in short, all modern conveniences.

Do you remember prices Nebraska land sold for a few years ago? Well, the same movement has begun in Missouri. Lands will never again be as cheap as now.

If these arguments appeal to your business judgment, communicate with me.

Very Remarkable Cure of Diarrhoea.

"About six years ago for the first time in my life I had a sudden and severe attack of Diarrhoea," says Mrs. Alice Miller, of Morgan, Texas. "I got temporary relief, but it came back again and again, and for six long years I have suffered more misery and agony than I can tell. It was worse than death. My husband spent hundreds of dollars for physicians' prescriptions and treatment without avail. Finally we moved to Bosque county, our present home and one day I happened to see an advertisement of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with a testimonial by a man who had been cured by it. The case was so similar to my own that I concluded to try the remedy. The result was wonderful. I could hardly realize that I was well again, or believe it could be so after having suffered so long, but that one bottle of medicine, costing but a few cents, cured me." For sale by Raymond's Pharmacy.

Greatly Reduced Rates via the Wabash Railroad.

PIANO CONTEST!

THE WAYNE REPUBLICAN will give a beautiful Concert Grand Piano made by Chickering Bros., Chicago, and listed by them at $525.00, to the most popular lady in Wayne county and vicinity absolutely free, this lady to be designated by ballots cast for her by subscribers to, and by readers of the WAYNE REPUBLICAN, according to the terms and conditions set forth as follows:

- 1.—Any lady, married or single, may enter the contest.
- 2.—Any and every lady receiving one or more votes will be accredited with them at once and the result announced in these columns.
- 3.—In every paper printed from June 15, to December 24, 1903, will appear two columns: one is a FREE VOTE, and may be voted by any one, the other is a SUBSCRIBER'S BALLOT, and is to be voted by subscribers for whom they choose. For each cent paid by the subscriber, new or renewal, or arrears on account of subscription, one vote may be cast.
- 4.—Free votes must be cast within the time limit printed on each else they become void. Subscriber's ballots may be cast at any time before the contest closes, which will be at six o'clock p. m. December 24, 1903.
- 5.—A ballot box will be placed in the REPUBLICAN office in which the ballots may be placed by the person voting or by some one for him, ballots may also be sent by mail. As votes are received they will be deposited in the ballot box, which will be kept under lock, and once each week in the presence of some disinterested person the same will be opened and the votes counted for the purpose of ascertaining the standing of the candidates.
- 6.—The piano may be seen (or its counterpart) on exhibition at the M. S. Davis Book Store in Wayne at any time, and all interested may thus know it is no cheap affair, but that is a splendid instrument, beautiful in tone as well as in finish, and for reason of its high grade was selected especially for this contest to lend character and interest to it, for too often a cheap piano is selected to give away in a piano contest and the winner is wasting time in competing for it. But we are going to do this right—we are going to give the winner a piano equal to the best one in any home in the county, and to gala us the acquisition we wish, to add to our subscription list as many new readers as possible, and to cheer up the last dollar of a large amount of back subscription, we desire the interest to be genuine and make those who participate in the contest feel that they are doing something worth while and that their efforts are appreciated by this paper.
- 7.—Any lady contesting, or any one else, may act as agent to receive subscriptions for us, and a liberal commission will be paid them to do so. Blanks will be furnished them on application, also, they may extend to subscribers any and all clubbing combinations offered at any time.

"Ah! God that ghastly gibbet! How dismal 'tis to see!"
Aytoun.

Mr. Editor:

A year ago I met one of the reverend clergy of Lincoln on the street and told him that if he wished to save his man to make hay while the sun was shining, and get Governor Savage to finish the work; that I knew Thompson and Mickey well enough to know that neither of them would interfere. A few days ago the same gentleman met me in the library, and called me a prophet. I enquired "Why did you not profit by my suggestion?" He answered with more frankness than urbanity, that he thought at the time, I had some purpose in what I said. What purpose could have existed in the gentleman's fertile imagination is beyond my comprehension, unless he thought that I was so good a friend of both these gentlemen—Mickey and Thompson—that it was my "purpose" to lift from their shoulders a burden which no man would covet.

There is so much adverse criticism of the Rhea case. The writer is anxious that people of his home county should know the situation; then, whether they praise or blame, they can do it understandingly.

The details of the purely legal phase of the case, can be ascertained by turning to page 461 of the 63d volume of the Nebraska reports, where an abstract of the briefs on the main point in the case can be found and where the opinion begins, and here we leave that part of it.

Let me preface by saying that I signed neither petition nor remonstrance in the Rhea matter, as to whether the governor should have used his constitutional prerogative, I do not propose, here and now, to express or even indicate an opinion.

The power of the governor in the matter of pardons and reprieves is absolute. For an abuse of it, he is answerable to his official conscience alone. The rules by which he will be governed are of his own making. Some maintain that he should treat the verdicts of jurors and the judgments of courts as infallible; that if he does otherwise, he trenches upon an independent department of the government; and that he should never act, except in the case of newly discovered evidence, or the likes of that. Others claim that his position is like a court of equity, that is to say, he should reach what the law can not reach. Now, I am not going to say which of these theories seems to me to be the correct one. Wise men have ranged themselves on both sides of the question.

I have been a warm personal friend of the governor's and a firm friend of his administration, because I believe in his honesty of purpose; and I have yet to see any reason for changing my opinion. What you or I would have done, had we been in his place, is neither here or there. We may think we know, but it is just possible we do not know.

It may be said that Rhea should have been reprieved; first, because of his youth—he was hanged just three weeks to a day before he was 21, and was 18 when he committed the offense; second, because of his respectable family connection—Emil Respectorious was his great uncle; third, because he was drunk and the man whom he killed had been selling liquors to him all day in violation of law; fourth, because one judge dissented on the rehearing; fifth, because he had shown penitence and reformation; sixth, because Governor Savage had stayed the execution of the sentence and the boy was kept in a state of uncertainty to the last five minutes of his life, never knowing that he was surely going to die till he was told to march to the scaffold—that it amounted to refined mental torture; seventh, that he was never treated properly and was made what he was by environment—he was virtually kidnapped when he was eight years old; eighth, that he was a person of more than ordinary ability, capable of better things and should have been given a better show.

In answer it may be said, first, Jesse James died at 34, Dick Turpin at 33, Harry Tracy at 24, Jack Sheppard was hanged at 22, and Jesse H. Pomeroy was 14 years and 5 months old when he murdered little Horace Mullen; second, respectable family connections might be pleaded, for Durrant, Molineux, Lizzie Borden or John W. Webster—two of whom were hanged and all of whom were guilty; third, the character of the party killed does not fix the enormity of the offense; fourth, the ethical considerations and the pardon of sins belong to God; the punishment of crimes against the state to Caesar; fifth, Governor Savage had it in his hands to make an absolute commutation and if there was any uncertainty in Rhea's mind, Rhea's friends and not the governor were responsible; sixth, as to how far a governor should go into these matters is a mooted question, and our governor decided it according to his view; seventh, the same could be said of Rufus and Eugene Aram. In addition; it might be said that life prisoners do not average to exceed 12 years in prison.

In reply it might be said under the first head, that Jesse Pomeroy was not hanged and Jack Sheppard ought not to have been; to the last, that a man sentenced for life is civilly dead; his estate can be administered; his wife is probably divorced IPSO FACTO; and he is ruined, and no one ever heard of one of them doing much harm afterwards; the average life of a hard labor convict is only 10 years, two years less than the average term of a life prisoner.

Outside the question, we have been discussing, there are some peculiar things in connection with this case. It is strange that if Rhea kicked Zahn after he shot him only one man out of 14 saw it. But this was a question for the jury. There was abundant evidence to sustain a verdict of murder in the first degree under any construction of the statute. The objectionable instruction which, it was claimed, eliminated from the definition of murder the purpose to kill, was copied by the trial judge from an old case which had been before this court where the question was not raised. The former wife of Herman Zahn wrote Governor Savage that it was the dying request of her husband that his murderer should be hanged. Zahn's brother and his wife's brother came to Lincoln to witness the execution. William Rhea said on the morning of death: "If the forfeit of my life would restore the life I took, I would cheerfully give it—look here, upon this picture, and on this."—Wilbur F. Bryant in Hartington Herald.

Lound, of Winslow, who when he came to America first some twenty three years ago first became acquainted with the Hoog family and leased land near Winslow of Hoog. Those were Pioneer days for Tom and he bustled against all the hardships of life on the prairie, but kind fortune has long ago started him toward the millionaire row, and the Lound family are comfortably fixed for their old age. Mrs. Hoog left Tuesday for her home via Garner, Iowa, where she will visit her son, Dr. Hoog, a few days.

The Omaha & Decatur Electric Railway Company have three construction companies now anxious to take up and build their road. At a recent meeting the proposition of one of these companies was accepted and the contracts are now being put in shape for the signatures of both parties. Under the accepted proposition the construction company reserves 30 days for preliminary arrangements before commencing the work so it is expected that actual work will begin during the month of August and the portion between Tekamah and Decatur will be in operation by winter. Inter-urban electric lines are past the experimental stage. While in Ohio last month, we noticed that one striking feature of the inter-urban roads running out of Cincinnati is the direct benefit the farmer receives and the increased value of farm land. All the roads handle freight and express. Where a fruit grower formerly spent a full day and night driving into the city with his load, he now drives to the electric line, loads his fruit or berries and they are quickly carried to the terminal. Stops are easily made, there is no expense to the road of maintaining stations and no delay in forwarding consignments. Consequently rates are low. For a nickel a passenger is carried four or five miles and a great deal of marketing is done by rail. Folks living some miles from town board a car and go to town for what they want. The advantages of town and city are thus brought right to the farmer's door.—Tekamah Journal.

THE SENATOR'S BRIDE

AUTHOR OF
"Rosamond," "Guy Kenmore's Wife," "Dora Tenney," "The Pretty Geraldine," "Lillian, My Lillian," Etc.

(Copyright, 1875, by Street & Smith.)

She fell back, exhausted and quite delirious, toward Mrs. Winans. As she lay on her back, she carried the little finger to the man who waited in the next room. She was spared that pain. The clear, bell-like voice, sharpened by anger and scorn that was strange to her gentle spirit, had penetrated the next room, and he knew his doom and the fate that awaited him in the middle of the floor, his hands clasped behind him, his head bowed on his breast, a perfect picture of humiliation and despair.

"I have heard," he said, with a shaking smile, as her fingers touched his arm.
"It is just, I merit worse at her hands.
But, all the same, it goes hard with me, and I leave for Europe to-morrow in quest of our child. Oh! Mrs. Conway, take care of her while I am gone. Don't —don't let her die!"

"She shall not die," said Lulu's soft, low tones, as she glided into the room and lay on her side, her arms around the girl, everything to keep her for you until you come back to make her happiness your chief care in life hereafter.
She must not, will not, die!"

He looked up, caught her hand, and touched it gratefully to his lips.
"Heaven bless you for these words, Miss Clendonon. You always come with renewed life and joy to me. Oh! watch over her well. I entreat you, and, oh!
touch her, if you can, to think less harshly of me. May heaven forgive me for my folly and wickedness to her, and give me a chance to retrieve the past by the future."

The two ladies looked at each other, glancing nervously at the girl.
"I am coming back at the very earliest possible day after I recover my child," he went on, "but never till then. I have heard my doom from her own lips. Then he stopped, too deeply pained for words, and with only a heart-wrung "good-by,"
was gone.

"The next time you will seek me," she had said, at their last fatal interview.

There are many thoughtless words spoken that afterward seem like prophecies.
Mrs. Conway and Lulu went back to the room where they were doomed to watch for many long weeks yet to come over the sick bed where life and death were warring for the victory. Lulu, the fearless, reckless victim. But the "balance" so fearfully and darkly hung that a touch might turn the scale toward that poor wretch, no traveler returns," wavered, and dropped his pale burden back into the arms of those who loved her, and, shadowy, wasted, and helpless, he lay on his back, his eyes closed, his life ebbing, with all the sunshine gone out of it.

CHAPTER XV.

It is the latter part of the month of February, and Norfolk is waking up from its winter torpor. Our friends who wintered in Washington are all at home again. Mrs. Conway and her well-loved nephew are located once more at Queen View. Mrs. Winans, only just recovered from her severe and lengthy illness, is once more established in her handsome residence in Cumberland street, and has prevailed on Miss Clendonon to spend the first few weeks after their return with her—Mrs. Clendonon, of course, without her willingly giving up those weeks of her daughter's treasured society to the fair woman of whom both son and daughter speak in terms of such unqualified praise.

"They are very fond of each other—Grace and Lulu—and, indeed, the fair mistress of that grand home feels as if she were a part of the family. Lulu, too, leaves her, for her pleasant company helps to dispel theaching sense of waiting and suspense that broods dreadfully over her own heart. Senator Winans has not returned to the United States—indeed, seems in no haste to return—for he has resigned his seat in Congress, and writes that he will never return until he is attended by the child so strangely lost.

At present the fate of that little child is wrapped in impenetrable mystery. The detectives in Liverpool who were watching for the arrival of the steamer there, were eluded by the cunning of his poor, half-sane abductor, and not a trace of her afterward could be found, though the story was widely circulated in the prominent papers, magnificent rewards offered for his restoration to his father, and the best detectives employed to hunt the woman down. In vain.

Whether the little Paul yet lived was a matter of doubt to many who considered the subject carefully, and remembered how irresponsible, how poorly fit he was to take care of the tenderly angled babe, was the poor, grief-stricken, demented creature. But Winans remembered, resolved that he would never give up the search nor return home until success crowned his efforts. And with him, to make a resolve was generally to keep it.

For Grace, the first sharp agony of her grief being past, a sort of anarchy settled upon her, a quietude that appeared to infold her so closely it seemed as if joy or pain could never touch her more. Very still and quiet, though sweet, and gently observant of the car-ings of those who glided through the elegant rooms her strangely quiet and solitary home, and books and music, and fondly drives, shared only by Lulu, formed the only objects of her daily occupation. Health returned to her so slowly that life seemed slipping from her grasp by gradual degrees, and the fair cheek, never very rosy, turned paler and paler, and an inward strife, the girlish lip a quiet resolute that moved the gazer to wonder.

And for Lulu, also, a slight pathos had usurped the place of the brilliant roses she carried to Washington. The faded brown eyes held a grave thought, and her brow was wrinkled and, sometimes, when suddenly spoken to, the girl starts, as if her thoughts had strayed hundreds of miles away, though the truth of the matter is they never strayed farther than Ocean View, where the handsome objects of her thoughts dwelt as best he might, and seldom coming into Norfolk—"recruiting after a fatiguing season," he was wont to say, when rallied on the subject by his numerous friends in the city, and had Lulu been her sister, he would very possibly have called occasionally to see her, but while she staid with Grace she was debarred the pleasure of seeing him, for Grace never expected to cross the threshold of the house that called Mrs. Winans fresh. You are welcome to that, if you will have it," she said, sweetly.

"If you please."
She disengaged it, and put it in his hand. He retained her a moment.
"Thanks, and—good-by."
"Good-by," her voice said, regretfully, then added: "Oh! Captain Clendonon, find him for me, if you can! Oh, try your best!"

"I pledge you my word I will," he answered, "but promise me that you will have faith in my endeavor. Health and hope and love will all come back to you in time. 'Hope springs eternal in the human breast.' God bless you, and good-by."

Their hands met a moment in a strong, friendly clasp; her violet robes dusk and dusty with feeling; her voice scarce audible as it quivered:
"Good-by!"

HER INTERRUPTED MESSAGE.

Girl Found Long-Distance Wire Exposed.

One afternoon recently two young women entered a drug store where a telephone pay station is located. A solitary clerk, who was in the rear mixing a new headache cure, came forward. With a swish of silk pithcoats one of the young women walked up to him and asked if she might telephone to Cleveland. He gave his consent and went back to his medication.
The young woman called central and said she wished to speak with Mr. Charles Upton, of Cleveland.
"It costs 90 cents to telephone there just for three minutes," she said to her companion while waiting for an answer. "But I can't say all I want to in that time, and cost or no cost, I've simply got to ask Charlie to-day if he'll come to the Valentine party. I don't dare risk a letter for fear that spiteful little Miss Simpson will get ahead of me. I heard she was planning to write and invite him. Before I ask him, though, I'm going to have a little fun. People say I'm good at disguising my voice, especially over the telephone. Will I wager anything he won't know me?"

In a few minutes the bell tinkled.
Mr. Upton was at the other end of the line.

"Hello!"

"Is that you, Charlie? Guess who this is?"

"You can't?"

"Oh, just guess."

"Well, try."

"Oh, just guess."

"Please."

"Agnes Simpson! No, indeed!" (Assuming her ordinary tone.) "What made you think it was Miss Simpson, I'd like to know?"

"You can't think of any one else?"

"Well, it seems strange you can't recognize my voice." (Special stress on "my.")

"No."

"Well, can't you tell me who you think it is?"

"Yes—but you thought quite wrong."

A similar conversation was prolonged for some little time. The clerk, in his secluded corner, began to be quite amused. He looked at the clock.
Then he went forward again.

"Parlous no, lady," he said, "but your bill is already $2.40. I thought perhaps you—"

"Oh—h!" almost shrieked the young woman as she hung up the receiver with a bang. "Two-dollars—and—forty-cents! Why, it doesn't seem more than a minute and I never asked him what I wanted to or anything!
Come on," turning to her friend.

And as she went pointing out of the store, says the Detroit Free Press, she was heard to say:

"Well, I don't care. He was just as mean as he could be not to know my voice at once. I almost believe he didn't want to. He can stay away from the party, so far as I am concerned. Miss Simpson is welcome to him."

GOT A START TO A FORTUNE.

Old Si Was Taken with a Fever for Speculation and Scored a Point.

A New England representative in Congress is responsible for this story of life in the Green Mountains:
"You can talk about Vanderbilt attendance and Rockefeller riches and the prosperity of all the factotums of Wall street, but for real financial competency give me a little hill town in the commonwealth of Vermont. A farmer up there became emulated of speculating life. He took the weekly agricultural edition of a big, rock-ribbed Gotham journal and became fired with an ambition to emulate one of those speculating deals that make millions change in the twinkling of an eye. He lay awake night thinking about a coup, any old coup, that should be his by rights, by gum. One morning he came in from the milking and sat down at the breakfast table with a jaw as square set as Pierpont Moran's, an avarice as great as Russia's 'long reach' in the Orient and a manner as mysterious as the fledgling who makes a grand stand rush down the betting ring and wild-eyed and excited, shouts, 'Aback for place,' and lands the bookmaker a whole dollar bill. Well, after breakfast the farmer hitched up his team and drove to a neighbor's three miles away and dickered for a rooster, which he finally bought. Then he carried the rooster four miles to the town of Rochester and sold it within an hour. As he drove home he fanned himself a financier in a small way. Another farmer passed him.

"Hello, Si," he called, "where you been?"

"Oh, spec'latin' a little," he answered.

"Well," says Si, "I bought a rooster of Iton Jones for 47 cents and tuk it to Rochester and sold it for 55 cents.
Jus' spec'latin' a little, that's all."

Their Selfish Interest.

"And by whom," asked the casual visitor, "is your paper, most read?"

"Well," replied the editor, dipping his typewriter in the ink, "aside from the editor and the proofreader, you might say Veritas and Pro Bono Pub-lico lead, with Young Morant a close second."—Baltimore News.

"Come, O My Soul, in Sacred Lays," was written by Thomas Blacklock, a blind man. It contains a pathetic allusion to the poet's condition.

then the work given it should be light and the feed should consist of little hay and this wet each time. Feed mainly on grains. Take one dram of iodide of potassium and mix with one-half dram nut vomel. Give this dose twice a day for two or three weeks during each bad attack and during the period that the work of the horse be that which does not require much speed. The care and treatment indicated will relieve the animal greatly, although it is doubtful if it will ever amount to much for steady work.—Indianapolis News.

Good oats are clean, hard, dry, sweet, heavy, plump, full of flour, and almost metallic luster. Each out in a well-grown sample is nearly of the same size. There are but few small or imperfect grains. The hard pressure of the nail on an out should leave little or no mark. The kernel, when pressed between the teeth, should clip rather than tear. The skin should be thin. The size of the kernel will be less in proportion than the skin is white. The color of the out is not very material, but white outs are generally finer than black. Again, black outs short, plump are preferable to large, long grains. Heated outs must have an excess of husk. Oats are not necessarily bad because they are thick-skinned or bearded, but they must contain a less amount of flour per bushel than the thin-skinned oats not bearded.

This clever little scheme has worked successfully on an up-to-date farm in Amherst, Mass., and has furnished warm water to four cows and two or three horses for several winters. The only objection is that the good housewife sometimes objects to having her supply of hot water exhausted two or three times a day.

On the trial of an action brought by Agnes Smith against George Wetherill in the Circuit Court, New York, court, to recover damages for the alleged unlawful killing by the defendant of her dog, the evidence showed that the animal was shot on premises adjoining those owned by Wetherill, after he had been chasing sheep. The friend asserted that he was justified which presented the dog under a statute which provided that any person may kill any dog which he shall see chasing, worrying or wounding any sheep. The trial justice charged the jury, as a matter of law, that the statute was not a defense, because the dog was not chasing or worrying or wounding any sheep at the time he was shot. The fourth appellate division, on an appeal for a verdict against Wetherill, decided that the charge was erroneous.
"As common law," said Justice Washburn for the court, "a dog might be killed in defense of, or when necessary for the protection or preservation of property. The statute goes further. It provides for the killing of a dog when wrongfully chasing, worrying or wounding sheep. If it does those things, it must be killed."—American Cultivator.

A Desirable Door Lock.

Large barn doors are often fastened to a perpendicular bar, one end of which enters a mortise in a beam or block overhead and the other a mortise in the floor. The strength of a man is usually required to take out the bar, or put it up.

The figure shows a more convenient way to manage the crossbar. A round iron bolt holds the bar to the middle rail of the door, allowing it to turn freely either way. Two long pins, one in the floor and one in the beam overhead, receive the ends of the bar when the door is closed. In place of a gain in the floor, a strip of scantling may be nailed firmly to the under side of the beam. The upper end of the crossbar, when set erect, comes on the inside of the strip.—D. H. Shepard in Farm and Home.

Fowls Out of Condition.

During very warm weather, bowel disorders puts in an appearance and debilitates the members of the flock. The first thing to do is to allow no food whatever unless it is a teaspoonful of powdered cinnamon in a pint of milk for twenty fowls. Be sure to secure the pure article, as cinnamon is often adulterated. A teaspoonful of tincture of nut vomel in a quart of drinking water may also be given, but be careful to give no food. When the birds cease laying and get out of condition, resort to sometimes had to egg foods and condition powders, which may be just the thing to be avoided.
Egg foods and condition powders have their places; they may be beneficial where the flock is lacking in hardiness and health, but the best course to pursue is to give no medicine or stimulants to healthy fowls, as they do not require them.

Dairy Education.

A. W. Trow, the prominent farmer, creamery man and agricultural writer, of Glenville, Minn., has recently been made a member of the educational staff of the dairy and food department in his State. His work will be very largely of an educational nature and among the farmers and dairymen.
The $30,000 annual appropriation recently voted by the Legislature, together with the improved and amended dairy laws just passed, give Minnesota splendid facilities for aiding in the most effective way her great dairy and creamery interests.

In Fly Time.

A gallon of kerosene, a quart of fish oil and an ounce of carbolic acid is one of the cheapest and best homemade mixtures for keeping flies from cattle. It should be applied every morning after milking, using a good-sized hand sprayer, paying especial attention to the head, shoulders and fore legs. Spraying for flies is absolutely necessary to keep up the full flow of milk in hot weather.

Enslaving for Hogs.

Enslaving of corn, sorghum, pea vines or alfalfa is an excellent feed for hogs when pasturing is impracticable. With three or four pounds of grain and all the ensilage they will eat broad sows will keep in excellent condition.

London has some houses, built of timber, which it is claimed are as good as when erected over 200 years ago.

CURED A BALKY HORSE.

Heroic Treatment Brought This Animal to Times.

"Only once in my life have I been stuck on a balky horse," said the old horseman when coming from the races.
"and I worked a cure in a manner you may call heroic. Most horses balk out of pure cussedness. They won't move because they don't want to. The animal was all right until I got him home, and then he revealed all his meanness.
Neither coaxing nor hitting did any good. He'd go only when he took a notion to."

"I became disgusted with his tricks, and one day I drove him over to the country railroad crossing. There was quite a steep grade at the crossing and I figured that he would balk on the tracks. For this reason I had hitched him to an old vehicle. True to my figuring, the beast came to a dead stop at the top of the grade and stood right across the rails. I left him there and got down and walked away for a few rods, as I didn't want to be hit by the splinters.

"It was forty minutes before I caught sight of a freight train down the road. The horse heard and saw it, and if I coaxed him a little he would have moved on. I wasn't coaxing, however, and when he saw I wasn't he braced his feet, dropped his ears and determined to die game. As the whistle tooted I saw him trembling, and, as the rails began to hum he rolled his eyes, but he never moved till the cowcatcher picked him up. How high he went up I can't say, but he landed in a swamp with an awful thud and pieces of the wagon rained down for five minutes after.

"I supposed the horse was dead, of course," continued the horseman, according to the Detroit Free Press, "and went back to the farm to say so, but within two hours he came limping home and asked to be taken in. In a week he was as good as ever, but with a change in disposition. He was like a boy after a good spanking and, although I owned him for five years after that he never balked again. Now then he seemed a bit inclined to, but all I had to do was to go 'Foot!
Toot! Toot!' and he would drop his tail and ears and be good for the next three months."

A Good White Wash.

Two kinds of ordinary whitewash may be used to advantage, prepared in the following manner: For inside work, to a bucketful of ready lime wash add one pint of soft-boiled rice and a quarter of a pound of white glue, dissolved thoroughly and mixed through the mess. For outside substitute in place of rice and glue to each gallon of whitewash a pound of common rock salt, dissolved in boiling water. This mixed and applied upon a bright, sunny day, the whitening will remain permanent in color and will not rub off readily, while the application to the interior will destroy the lice that may be secreted in the rough wall and crevices of the inside of the poultry house and stables, if the wash be generously distributed.

A Stone-Dead Town.

"Do you keep ping-pong?" asked the new resident of the proprietor of the village grocery and general emporium.
"Well, mum," was the answer, "we hain't ordered all our line of fancy groceries for the summer, and—"

"Oh, mercy! It isn't a grocery—it is—"

"I know it ain't," broke in the storekeeper. "I was just a-goin' to say that when we ordered them we was goin' to pick out the latest patterns in neckties, because we have a good trade now, and—"

"Goodness me, man! It isn't to wear-it is to—"

"I know that, too," interrupted the proprietor of the store again; "I know that. I was about to tell you that we are intendin' to put in all the latest novels when we lay in our new stocks, and if you'll come around then we'll be sure to have—"

"Dear me," put in the lady. "Ping-pong isn't a book—it's a game."

"Well," said the merchant, "we try to handle all the new goods our customers demand, but when it comes to games, why, seven-up and eepkinohholds the banner in this town, and I don't reckon we want to make any change this year."—New York Judge.

PERUNA CURED CATARRH OF THE KIDNEYS

DANGEROUS KIDNEY DISEASES CURED
 Pe-ru-na Creating a National Sensation in the Cure of Chronic Ailments of the Kidneys.

Major T. H. Mars, of the First Wisconsin Cavalry, recently writes from 1425 Dunning street, Chicago, Ill., the following letter:

"For years I suffered with catarrh of the kidneys contracted in the army. Medicine did not help me until a cure was had. I was helped by Pe-ru-na. I bought some at once, and soon found blessed relief. I kept taking it four months, and am now well and strong and feel better than I have done for the past twenty years. Thanks to Pe-ru-na."
 T. H. Mars.

At the appearance of the first symptoms of kidney trouble, Pe-ru-na should be taken. This remedy strikes at once the very root of the disease. It at once relieves an inflamed kidney of the stagnant blood, preventing the escape of serum from the blood. Pe-ru-na stimulates the kidneys to excrete from the blood the accumulating poison, and thus prevents the serious complications which are sure to follow if the poisons are allowed to remain. It gives great vigor to the heart's action, and it is a true system, both of which are apt to fail rapidly in this disease. Pe-ru-na purges catarrh of the kidneys simply because it purges catarrh wherever located. If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Pe-ru-na, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

THREE NATIONS TO SURVIVE.

Dr. Carus, Sino-Chinese, Jews and Saxons Will Outlive Rest.

"If there are any three nations or races which will outlive all others," said Dr. Paul Carus at the annual meeting of the International Folk Lore Association, held at the University of Chicago, "those three will be the Chinese, the Jews and the Saxons!" Dr. Carus, who is the editor of the Monist, said that he had several times seen this statement made, but that only recently had he come to believe that it was perfectly sound.

The main characteristics which he declared would keep these three races thriving while others withered and decayed, were the "pivotal patience of the Chinese, the quiet, insidious business life of the Jews, and the warlike and conquering disposition of the Saxons."

Professor Frederick Starr of the department of anthropology declared that the reason why the Chinese are to be feared by other races is that the Chinese are better able to conquer the world by immigration than is any other race. This is because of the peculiar physical nature of the Oriental, which enables him to intermarry with other races and bring up most strong and healthy offspring.

The reason why the Chinese have never progressed any further than they have was ascribed by Dr. Carus to their great filial love and devotion. It is recorded that Wen Ti, the son of the founder of the Han dynasty, never left his mother's apartment for three years, so great was his devotion to her.

Another case, still more curious, is that of Wu Meng, who lived in a part of the country where there were many mosquitos. This young man so revered his parents that at night he would address and the outdoors, that the mosquitos might take satisfaction from him rather than disturb his fond parents. -Chicago Inter Ocean.

POLITICAL COMMENT.

Hands Off the Tariff.

The Republican convention of Ohio followed the lead of Senator Hanna in declaring for a policy of "hands off" the tariff. There is sound wisdom in this, however much it may discomfort the swarm of inveterate tariff thinkers, always seeking to reopen this question.

The sense of the country has been tested on the question of protection against free trade several times, and there is no question that the Republican policy has the indorsement of the American people. Even those who are in the front of their hearts believers in absolute free trade recognize that the country wants some of it; therefore they call themselves tariff reformers here. No matter what the tariff may be, in their opinion it always needs "reforming," and always will need reforming so long as there is protection in it.

In all of the talk of the necessity for tariff reform, there is yet lacking a specific and distinct tolerance as to the particulars in which it needs to be reformed. The present law is admitted, even by the tariff reformers, to be a good working instrument. They claim in general terms that it has defects, but when it comes from generalities to particulars, there is no agreement among them.

The prosperity of the country is based upon the protective tariff. Every suggestion for tariff reform is a suggestion for the withdrawal of protection in some degree from some industry. Every repealing or threatened repealing of the tariff question is a disturbance to business. There is no particular and specific change or reform in the present law for which any large number of people are clamoring. There is no industry or interest which can point to any considerable injury resulting to it from any particular clause, paragraph or schedule of the present law. What clear and understandable reasons do the tariff reformers give why the business of the country should be disturbed by the reopening of this question? Certainly none has yet been given.

The Ohio idea of "hands off" other wise given as "stared out" is as good a policy for the country to follow in connection with the tariff as can readily be conceived. It is the policy which has the warm approval of the business interests of the country; and by the business interests is meant every one whose income is drawn directly or indirectly from the production, manufacture or sale of American products, whether of the factory or the farm. We know times are good now. We know that "money" with the tariff is the readiest, simplest, and most certain method of discharging business, limiting production and postponing contemplated improvements. There is no particular advantage to be obtained by reopening the tariff question, to compensate for these certain disadvantages.

The law certainly does not need to be changed on account of any necessity of the government itself; for the present law is nicely adjusted to meet the government's needs. The demand for change is put forward purely from political sources and for the sole purpose of raising a political issue. Republicans are urged to raise the cry merely to forestall the action of the Democrats, who are certain to raise it. Let them do so. Republicans may well be content to be judged by the results accomplished under the tariff law for which they are responsible, rather than to join with their enemies in discrediting their own good work. -Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

Populists as Republicans.

Considerable comment has been caused by the West by the assertion of a leading Populist of Kansas that he believes the most of the old-time members of that party will support Roosevelt and the Republicans in next year's national campaign, irrespective of the Democratic nominee, whoever he may be. The Kansas City Journal expresses the same idea, and gives as the reason that Populists in the West "was an organized protest against policies which were believed to have brought hard times upon the country. It was a desperate resort of agriculturalists who were willing to try anything that afforded a hope of relief. The restoration of prosperity through the very agencies that the Populists had thought to be so destructive convinced them of their error, and now they desire the party under whose administration they are growing rich, to continue in power."

This expresses the facts as we see them; and we may add also that the majority of the Populist party in the West, where that strange political movement originated, was drawn originally from the Republican ranks. They fell into error as to some of the causes of the hard times from which they suffered and into the further error of indorsing erroneous policies, as the remedy. Free silver, one of these, is now dead beyond the hope of resurrection. Moreover, they see that the Republican administration has checked the formation of trusts and combines, and put existing ones in fear. The Democrats talked violently against trusts, and accused the Republicans of favoring them; yet when the Democratic party came into full power in the nation in 1893, it did nothing whatever. No why should any Populist go to the Democratic party? Again, on the tariff the Populists are with the Republican party. The prosperity which followed the enactment of the Dingley law in 1897 showed them its value as giving the basis for great national prosperity. They are with the Republicans in opposition to the evils of trusts; so are they regarding national expansion. The Republican vote of the West for Roosevelt in 1904 will be phenomenal. -Toledo Blade.

A Lonesome Outcry.

The Millers' National Federation, in convention at Detroit, adopted a resolution demanding the speedy adoption by the national government of a broad, liberal and comprehensive policy of genuine reciprocity. It was supposed at the time of the passage of the present tariff law that such a policy had been adopted, but the execution thereof has been nullified by the Senate. They were at one time symptoms of a popular revolt, but active interest in the matter has subsided so that the declaration from the Millers' National Federation seems out of date. We notice that in a recent work on wheat production by William C. Edgar, editor of a Northwest organ of the flour milling interest, the statement is made that great change of tariff sentiment is going on among the people of the Northwest, and they are rapidly turning against the high protective policy. If this be so they are keeping it very much to themselves, and, in fact, Mr. Edgar admits that it is "unknown to the politicians." It can hardly be expected to exert any influence upon politics until it is strong enough to make itself known to the politicians.

Mr. Edgar explains that if the wheat duty were abolished the new Canadian wheat fields would be a source of supply to American flour mills. This certainly accounts for the attitude of the millers, but outside of the milling interest there are no perceptible signs of any change of tariff sentiment, except in growth of the conviction that it is wise to let well enough alone, and this conviction is accompanied by a decrease of interest in the tariff as a political issue. A marked feature of the situation is the inclination of the people to select some other subject as an occasion for their political discussions. Efforts to start up tariff discussion have fallen flat. -Pittsburg Gazette.

How Canada Suffers.

A free trade journal attributes the prosperity of this country chiefly to the freedom of trade between all of its parts, but it does not explain why that prosperity was not maintained under the last Democratic administration with that statement was to encourage free trade with Canada, as the journal goes on to say: "The same effect would be produced on a still larger scale if there were no commercial barrier on our northern frontier; if it could be obliterated altogether the result would be increased prosperity for both."

If the word "both" were stricken out and "Canada" inserted the statement would be correct. It would be of enormous advantage to Canada if her present inhabitants could have free access to the markets of the 3,000,000 inhabitants of the United States without contributing one cent toward the support of the government of this country. Freedom of trade between the people of one country cannot be compared with freedom of trade between the people of different countries. If Canada became a part of the Union, subject to its laws, the same as in other parts of the Union, it would double its population in ten years, whereas there has hardly been any increase in its population in the last ten years, as shown by its census.

Canada will not give products from the United States any preference over similar products from Great Britain, and as long as she holds that position a reciprocity treaty is out of the question. -Philadelphia Press.

Railroad Employees and Wages.

The report of the Interstate Commerce Commission for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1902, is at hand, and contains some very significant figures. It will be remembered that the railroad business of the country was seriously affected in 1895, 1896 and 1897 as a result of free trade legislation. In 1898 it began to show improvement under the Dingley law and has broken records every year since. The number of employees in 1902 was 1,189,315, as against 785,634 in 1895. The wages paid last year were $675,628,592, as compared with $445,508,241 in 1895. The freight carried in 1895 was less than 700,000,000 tons, while now the amount is near 1,200,000,000 tons annually. We are now building about 5,000 miles of new roads yearly, while in 1895 we averaged only about 1,700 miles. Thus labor reaps the benefit at every turn in road building and car and locomotive building, and in every part of the passenger and freight service.

Wool Tariff Question.

The free traders are trying to get up a tariff agitation on the wool question. During the past few years manufactured wools have been in almost unprecedented demand, and imports of woolen goods have been cut out by the advance of the domestic production. If American wool growers or American wool manufacturers want to repeat the experience which they had under the Wilson-Gorman law, they have but to unite with the tariff reformers to upset the present protective system and bring in the free raw material regime, in which the mills made very little noise. -Boston Journal.

Theory Founded on Fact.

Protection is a theory founded on facts. Free trade is a disturbance founded on theory. No theory can long exist which is not supported by results, and there never was a political theory propounded which has had more splendid indorsement in its effects in practical operation than the principle that the government should protect its own citizens and defend them against those who would close at the same time the markets and the mills. -Troy Times.

GENERAL CASSIUS M. CLAY DEAD

Noted Kentuckian Passes Away at His Whitehall Home.

Gen. Cassius M. Clay died at his Whitehall home, near Richmond, Ky., Wednesday night, at the age of 93. At his bedside when the end came were all his children, some of whom had been inside the house or seen their father for years because of his peculiar hallucination that they were in a conspiracy to kill him.

Gen. Clay was a duelist, abolitionist, statesman, author and the hero of a marriage at the age of 14, whom he married at that time in every respect a young lover. The room wherein he expired was a veritable arsenal until he was adjudged insane recently. In a hall just outside there was a loaded cannon. The arms were got together to repel an attack of an imaginary vendetta. Gen. Clay served as United States minister to Russia under President Lincoln.

Born in 1810.

Clay was born Oct. 19, 1810, at Whitehall, his family estate, upon the banks of the Kentucky river, near the village of Richmond. This place, which extended over 2,200 acres, was bought from the Indians by his father in 1766 and his inheritance made young Clay one of the wealthiest men of his day. There are now 365 acres in the farm on which Whitehall is situated. The general owned several blocks of property in New York, N. J. and some homes in New Orleans, and several valuable tracts of timber and mineral lands in eastern Kentucky, his estate being estimated at about $200,000.

His property will go to the children, to be equally divided among them. It was his only during his lifetime, and he never had a son. His only daughter, Dora Clay, she was given so alimony and therefore has no claim on the property. Gen. Clay left a will which gives the property, however, to the girl, but since the estate was declared that his mind was unsound the will cannot stand the test of the courts.

Fete His Slaves Free.

Upon being graduated from Yale Clay returned to the South and liberated his own slaves. He then entered upon his dueling career by fencing upon encounters upon Dr. Deary of Louisville, who had written a scurrilous letter to the mother of his betrothed wife. Interference prevented any shots being fired and Deary afterward committed suicide.

The bloodiest of the veteran fighter's affairs was that with Sam Brown, a desperado hired to kill him. The attack took place in a political meeting and when the smoke of battle had cleared away Brown was lying at death's door minus a nose, an eye and an ear and bleeding from countless cuts on other parts of the body. This was the work of Clay's bowie knife, which he used in preference to a pistol. About fifty other encounters marked the course of the general's life. Scandals resulting from Clay's residence in St. Petersburg during his stay there, and his first wife to get a divorce from him upon his return to this country.

GENERAL CASSIUS M. CLAY.

In 1854 Gen. Clay, then 84 years of age, shocked his relatives by marrying Dora Richardson, a 15-year-old girl, whom he had adopted. The child was uneducated and wild, and soon ran away from her aged husband. In 1896 she secured a divorce with Clay's consent and married Riley Brock, a young farm hand.

Clay gave her a plantation to live upon and furnished her home with elaborate tapestries and paintings brought from Russia and Spain. Brock was killed in a railway accident and Clay asked his former girl-wife to return to him. The old general was pronounced of unsound mind shortly before his death and his son given control of his affairs.

EXTRA SESSION TO BE BUSY.

Senate Will Wrangle Over Reciprocity and House Over Currency.

The administration program for the extra session of the Fifty-eighth Congress, which will meet Nov. 9, includes the passage of a resolution making the Cuban reciprocity treaty effective and the passing of currency legislation. It is not believed that the latter question will be disposed of by the end of the extra session, but it is hoped that this will be done before the Christmas holidays. Work on the new Senate currency bill is said to be well under way and it is believed that the Republican members of that body will unite in support of that measure.

The Cuban reciprocity resolution will be first introduced and rushed through the House under a special rule. In the Senate, however, it is expected that there will be a lengthy debate, as the Democrats propose to make the occasion notable by a general attack upon the Dingley tariff. During this debate, it is proposed that the House shall take up the currency question and trash it out at length.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I can conscientiously recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to those of my sisters suffering with female weakness and the troubles which so often befall women. I suffered for months with general weakness, and felt so weary that I had hard work to keep up. I had shooting pains, and was utterly miserable. In my distress I was advised to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it was a red letter day to me when I took the first dose, for at that time my restoration began. In six weeks I was a changed woman, perfectly well in every respect. I felt so glad and happy that I want all women who suffer to get well: I did." -Miss CURA GRANNON, 359 Jones St., Detroit, Mich., Secretary Amateur Art Association.

It is clearly shown in this young lady's letter that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will certainly cure the sufferings of women; and when one considers that Miss Gannon's letter is only one of the countless hundreds which we are continually publishing in the newspapers of this country, the great virtue of Mrs. Pinkham's medicine must be admitted by all; and for the absolute cure of all kinds of female ills no substitute can possibly take its place. Women should bear this important fact in mind when they go into a drug store, and be sure not to accept anything that is claimed to be "just as good" as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for no other medicine for female ills has made so many actual cures.

How Another Young Sufferer Was Cured.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I must write and tell you what your Vegetable Compound has done for me. I suffered terribly every month at time of menstruation, and was not able to work. Your medicine has cured me of my trouble. I felt relieved after taking one bottle. I know of no medicine as good as yours for female troubles." -Miss EDITH CROSS, 160 Water Street, Haverhill, Mass.

Remember, Mrs. Pinkham's advice is free, and all sick women are foolish if they do not ask for it. No other person has such vast experience, and has helped so many women. Write to-day.

$5000 FORFEIT if we cannot forthwith produce the original letters and signatures of above testimonials, which will prove their absolute genuineness. Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Choice Lamb and Fish.

Senator Foster of Washington and Mr. Loud of California live under the same hotel roof. A few weeks ago, when one of his constituents had forwarded him a fine lamb, which was served on the Californian's table, he sent a choice cut over to the Senator.

"Give him my compliments," quoth Mr. Loud to the waiter, "and tell the Senator that this lamb never tasted anything but milk."

The days of the session flew by, and not long ago a waiter appeared at Mr. Loud's elbow one evening bearing a cut of magnificent salmon. It was sent by Senator Foster.

"But I want to know whether this salmon came from Washington or Oregon," asserted Mr. Loud, with the bearing of a connoisseur.

Soon the waiter returned with the reply: "The Senator says it is a Puget Sound salmon, and it has never tasted anything but cream."

This satiated the legislative epicure from California.—Washington Capitalist.

KIDNEY COMFORT.

Summer is a good time to treat Chronic Kidney, Bladder, and Urinary troubles with Doan's Kidney Pills; they conquer the most stubborn cases.

Aching backs are eased. Hip, back, and loin pains overcome. Swelling of the limbs and dropsy, signs vanish.

They correct urine with brick dust sediment, high colored, pain in passing, dribbling frequency, and irritating wetting. Doan's Kidney Pills remove calculus and gravel. Relieve heart palpitation, sleeplessness, headache, nervousness, dizziness.

Mrs. James Beck of 314 West Whitehall Street, West Whitehall, N. Y., writes: "I was troubled with my kidneys for eight or nine years; had much pain in my back; so time went on I could hardly endure it; I could not stand on my feet for moments at a time; I grew weak and exhausted; I could not even do light housework; I could not sleep or rest; my head ached severely; I was in pain from my head down to my feet; I was a heavy, steady, sitting ache; I could not rest at night, and got up mornings weak and tired; I thought I was about done for, when I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised. While a week after commencing their use I began to improve, and from that time on I grew better. I used five boxes in all and was cured."

For free trial box, mail five cent coupon to: Doan's Kidney Pills, 2631 Broadway, N. Y. If you are a sufferer from kidney troubles, write address on separate slip.

LIKE A CURSE REMOVED

See the same features—but note how different when brightened with hope and happiness, after her freedom from it all.

Reader! This is more than medicine talk. It is humanity to enlighten sufferers about this.

The most virulent skin diseases are conquered—every time—in all cases—without any exception—all cleared away in a few weeks—by the brilliantly clever new skin prescription, "D. D. D." Its work is hardly equaled by any other wonders of modern medical practice.

I guarantee this to be true L. P. ORTH, DRUGGIST

Enough has been proven to me—regarding the above case and hundreds of others—to demonstrate beyond all question whatever that any of the known forms of skin disease, any eruption or breaking out—must quickly give way and disappear under the influence of this prescription (known as "D. D. D."), Cases of Eczema, Still Rheum, Ring Worm, Psoriasis, Barber's Itch, Acne, etc., some of twenty years' standing have been cleared off and permanently cured in a few weeks. In several cases from one to three years have elapsed and there has been no returning sign of the disease. Hundreds of cases cured since the preparation has been placed on sale show no sign at all of the previous affliction, and of my being their permanent cure.

Do you know anyone who has been—in a living hell of torture—a skin disease? Repair usually seizes those so afflicted. Many imagine it is the blood and go to seek to cure. Doctors have stood baffled and helpless against Eczema. Half of them think as worse forms are blood poison. Ninety-nine cases out of a hundred of manifestations on the skin are of this nature. It is a disease—not a blood disease. Healthy blooded people break out as often as any one, the blood has nothing to do with it in most cases. It is a parasite in the skin that spreads. This prescription is today completely clearing away—quickly too—and permanently curing every trace of such parasitic trouble and leaves the skin soft, healthy and perfect. Call on the drug druggist and investigate the unquestionable proofs in his possession.

The prescription is sold in above drug store at $1.00 for a liberal bottle, and comes under authentic label of the D. D. D. Company of Chicago, who solely compound the prescription for druggists everywhere.

The "Fisherman's ring" the signet of papal authority wore by the popes since the fourth century, several times lost but always recovered, has been stolen from the finger of Pope Leo as he lay in state prior to burial. The ring has little intrinsic value, yet untold millions of wealth would not have bought it from the vatical authorities.

The selection of Judge Boyd to succeed himself as Judge of this district was long ago a forgone conclusion. It is pretty hard to find a candidate in the "anti" party say nothing of the accredited party, whose officials have a record so positively good and businesslike as is the tenure in office of Judge Boyd. This is his first term as Judge of the District court here and democrats can find no fault. We think if a fault existed they would have it under a magnifying glass at this stage of the game.

Judge J. B. Barnes, of Norfolk, seems to have no opposition for the supreme court nomination. It is just a little peculiar this year in all instances we have in mind there is little rivalry for nominations, the republicans have chosen in advance of conventions, by process of natural selection, an able man for each office and the conventions nominate them with a ring of good will and good speed that will carry conviction with it. The democrats have not even one candidate to advance in most instances. In fact, the whole situation signifies men employed in some thing else than "office seeking" the chief employment of popocratic times.

Judge Barnes, of Norfolk, twice appointed to the Supreme Court Commission by unanimous vote of the court which is "fusion" by a majority of two, the leading—in fact only candidate for the supreme court nomination on the republican state ticket, is a man of admirable record on the bench. The World-Herald says it appears that the railroads will force Barnes' nomination, it looks as if there wasn't any forcing process on so far as we can see. It looks just as though Barnes was a product of the times nurtured on the broader ideas of Nebraska's citizenship, and acceptable to all—even to the fusionists themselves as is in evidence by his selection to the Supreme Court Commission by fusionists.

Saturday's papers stated that the Governor had appointed James D. Dalzell, of Lexington, to be a member of the State Board of Education to succeed W. L. Stephens whose term expired June 21. Thus again this part of the state gets the cold deal. Wayne had a candidate in the person of M. R. Snodgrass, superintendent of the city schools, and we were led to feel his appointment would be made. But the U. P. Railroad couldn't hear to it, as Dalzell's selection evidently indicates, and the nearer the time came to the date of final selection, the more our candidate was talked of and held up to criticism of interest both for the different railroads of the state and the different towns bidding for the new normal school, the more it was evident that we would not be in it after the draw. Ord, Kearney and Grand Island all acceptable places to us, with chances in favor of the former seemed all along to be controlling the situation. Here was a town acceptable to the U. P. and in easy access to the Burlington and it was evidently deemed a good move politically to corner these interests for future use.

Further announcement will appear in this paper next week.—Emerson Enterprises.

A party consisting of Misses Jessie Tucker and Nettie Perry and John Lewis and Don Cunningham had an experience while coming home from an outing at the Elkhorn late Sunday evening that it will take them a long time to forget. They were driving the dark gray team belonging to the Ellis livery barn, a good team and rather high spirited, and when near the Hooper farm about five miles from this city it seems the horses stumbled and plunged jerking the lines from the driver's hands and then started to run. Both boys jumped out and grabbed the horses, being dragged quite a distance, but were uninjured save for a few slight bruises. They were unable to hold the team, however, and a moment later the horses came in contact with a barb wire fence which they followed for several rods, breaking off the posts and cutting themselves on the wire. A little farther on the team ran into a high bank where they left the carriage with the pole broken, but otherwise only slightly damaged. The horses came home, and are now at the barn, a pretty hard looking team, and will be unable to go on the road again, we understand, for a month or six weeks. The young people, except Miss Perry, were uninjured, she being somewhat bruised and considerably shaken up. The party hired a farmer to bring them to town. We understand that Messrs. Lewis and Cunningham have agreed to settle the damages in any reasonable amount.

The writer called at the home of E. C. Brooks in the western part of the county one day this week, and besides the pleasant visit, the hospitable old gentleman showed some extra nice colts sired by Fallerton. Said he talked strongly of going to California if he sold his place, and if he didn't sell, would rent it and try and take it easier, maybe would locate in Wayne. Mr. Brooks railroaded some twenty years and was on the local C. St. P., M. & O. line for several years before finally settling on his splendid farm. We hope Mr. Brooks and family will not leave the county.

Goldie thinks the writer is "afraid" of Kimball and hedges to avoid trouble. Well! The people of Wayne don't have to be told anything about this matter to guess pretty closely the motive back of THE REPUBLICAN'S position as well as the motive back of the Democrat's position. THE REPUBLICAN had nothing to do with the matter except to rectify in its local columns the gossip which later it corrected in justice to Mr. Kimball as well as to others concerned. Mr. Goldie was the one who "saw things" called Mayor Britton's attention to it, helped get the thing started, took Ebenezer to Attorney Berry and helped mascot the case into court, was a witness in the case (having "seen things"), helped saddle Ebenezer with the costs any one would have advised him to avoid, and after Ralph Rundell (as self-respecting man may hope to) avoided the case, Mr. Goldie, in his "old familiar style," would lay the blame on Mr. Rundell for all. People don't care for a rehearsal of any of this stuff, it is sufficient to say some people "see things" because their minds are built just right for "seeing things." The "By Dad" editor could probably detect by trained scent and cunning eyes many little things that escape the notice of ordinary folks with business of their own to attend to.

Cooking Recipe.

Take a mixture of ground glass, lead, and various chemicals. Boil in water and eat with your food. If these ingredients are not handy, buy a "cheap" enameled utensil of some kind, use it a little while, and you will get the same results. Mrs. R. Tomplin received word Wednesday of the death of her mother at Albion and she and her husband left on the 10:30 train for that place.

We always knew if Hoskins could strike something to give it a boom she would soon be bigger (in her own estimation) than Chicago. Hoskins promises now to become famous as a summer resort by the side of which Newport or Long Branch will sink into insignificance. Since the dam was built the male members of the community have utilized the pond as a bathing place, and some enterprising members of the community have put a boat on the 7 feet of mud and water. Now the female portion of the town have made up their minds that the pond is a much better place as anybody's, Alma Berg and Mrs. O. Kuhl being first to procure bathing suits and enjoy the clear sweet (?) water. We believe this to be a sport and if taken under the direction of a doctor must be very healthful. None of the other ladies have as yet taken advantage of the opportunity. (We wonder why.) Don't be bashful, ladies, now who'll be next.

MISS BLANCHE GOSS.

Miss Blanche Goss, daughter of T. S. Goss residing north of Wayne, one of the leading contestants in the Piano Contest, is at present taking the nurses training course at the Samaritan Hospital in Sioux City which she will finish in a few months. While personally unable to meet those who would cast their votes for her she nevertheless appreciates this favor and while she is devoted to her errand of mercy her friends are taking care of her interests in this contest.

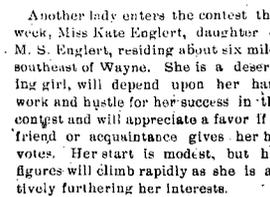

MISS LUCY MILLER.

Miss Lucy Miller, one of the leading contestants in the Piano Contest, is the 16-year-old daughter of "Mac" Miller of this city. She is ambitious to secure a musical education, and as she is dependent to a considerable extent on her own efforts, any assistance her friends can give her toward securing the piano will be doubly appreciated. She is at present employed at Steen's Bakery where she will be pleased to meet you.

MISS KITTIE PORTER.

Miss Kittie Porter, daughter of J. H. Porter residing four miles northwest of Carroll, is a new contestant to enter the field and while she enters with a modest few hundred votes for her credit this week, Carroll loyally promises her a much better showing for the near future, in fact her candidacy may be considered one of the leading ones.

MISS KATE ENGLEBERT.

Another lady enters the contest this week, Miss Kate Englebert, daughter of M. S. Englebert, residing six miles southeast of Wayne. She is a deserving girl, will depend upon her hard work and hustle for her success in the contest and will appreciate a favor if a friend or acquaintance gives her his votes. Her start is modest, but her figures will climb rapidly as she is actively furthering her interests.

No change in any of the other figures indicate no interest from the other contestants. It is probably not fair to speak of them as contestants as the votes cast for them were from friends who suggested their names. Any name will be dropped on request, any one wishing to enter the contest will be given opportunity if the will drop a line to the REPUBLICAN.

Whether the spectator be a laas from the farm or a belle from the social set, she is sure to admire the lady performers with the great Sells & Downs Shows, which will exhibit in Wayne, Wednesday, Aug. 12.

In the circus ring is one place where a woman has an equal chance with her male companion. As a rule she draws a higher salary, receives the greater applause and more commendations from the management, than does the male performer. Notwithstanding their high salaries and the scarcity of performers worthy of being featured with a show of the magnitude of the great Sells & Downs Show, probably more lady performers can be seen with that show than with any other six shows.

At the head of this large number stands beautiful Lulu Daysonport, one of the half-dozen equestriennes who have attained eminence as a bareback rider. Her routine or repertoire of feats and evolutions are so varied that she can completely change her act at every performance for days at a time. In all she does there is naught that is commonplace. She scorns the ordinary

MRS. HODGE HAS CONFESSED TO MICHIGAN AUTHORITIES.

Admits She Killed Ryan—But, She Declares, He Had Attempted to Assault Her—Says She Was Traveling with the Man as Bookkeeper.

Grand Rapids, Mich.: A young woman giving the name of Mrs. Aurora Hodge, here aged 19, and formerly bookkeeper at the office of Sterling...

"When on a lonely road near Salt Lake City July 11," she said, "I attempted to assault me and I shot him with a revolver I had been carrying. I left him in the wagon and went to Salt Lake City to give myself up, but my nerve failed me and I took a train for Denison, Ia. I told my brother and when he went to tell the authorities I fled to Chicago. Then I secured a position as waitress in a Spring Lake, Mich., hotel, but could not rest with it on my mind, so I came to Grand Rapids to give myself up."

Mrs. Hodge refused to tell the name of the man she killed. Chief Carr is investigating, and the woman is in jail at Police Burleigh of Salt Lake City. To Chief Carr confirms Mrs. Hodge's story, states that there is a warrant for her arrest for murder, and asks that she be held for the Salt Lake authorities.

Salt Lake City: The crime with which Mrs. Hodge is charged was the murder of William Ryan, a traveling spectacle peddler in a canyon south of this city some weeks ago. The object of the murder is supposed to have been robbery, as Ryan was known to carry considerable money. When the body was found the arms and legs were tightly bound. The head had been crushed with some blunt instrument.

The police of Salt Lake City have suspected that Mrs. Hodge was connected with the crime, and a few days ago issued a warrant for her arrest and sent it to Denison, Ia., for service.

ATTENDED TO LYNCH DETECTIVE

Citizens of a Pennsylvania Town Angry at His Disappearance.

Scranton, Pa.: An attempt to lynch "Peel," a Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Company detective, was made Saturday night at a town by a crowd of villagers, who were infuriated upon learning that he had gained evidence which would connect a score of the families of the village with wholesale thievery of brass and other junk from the company's property.

It was attacked at the station while waiting for a train. He managed to get inside and lock the waiting room, and telegraphed for help. A passenger train arrived, and the crew, acting upon a hard fight succeeded in getting the detective on the train.

REAR END COLLISION.

Three Persons Injured in Wreck Near Wellington, Ohio.

Wellington, O.: While rounding a sharp curve several miles south of here early Sunday night a motor car, carrying a party of five, was struck and crashed into the rear end of a freight train which was just pulling on to a siding. Luckily but three persons were injured, and they not seriously.

The engine of the flyer, before being brought to a stop, ploughed through the engine and ten cars loaded with live stock and machinery, finally landing on its side in the ditch.

TWO ARE ASPHYXIATED.

One Man Meets Death Trying to Save a Fellow Workman.

Indianapolis, Ind.: Benjamin Riverman of Cincinnati, employed as a laborer by the Merchants' Heat and Light Company, and William R. Nanning, pipe fitter for the company, were asphyxiated by carbolic acid in a manhole on Washington Street.

The coroner, in his life in attempting to save the life of his fellow workman, died in an attempt to save the two. Oscar Stelling, a city foreman, had a narrow escape from suffocation.

Race Riot at Danville, Ill.

Danville, Ill.: Two killed and twenty-two injured, the police station wrecked, and the county jail with few of its windows left standing, the city in the hands of state troops and soldiers, and a scene of dread prevailing everywhere, is the situation left by the race riots of Saturday night and early Sunday morning. Metcalf, the negro killed and burned Saturday night, was a recent arrival from Evansville, Ind., where he participated in the riots of a few weeks ago.

Serious Floods in London.

London: Heavy rains Saturday night over the south of England caused serious floods and great damage in London. The underground railway was flooded and many hotels and the underground district were flooded and unable to print Sunday editions.

Three Persons Killed.

St. Louis, Mo.: An accommodation train from the Vandellia Railroad, en route to St. Louis, was wrecked at the crossing of the East St. Louis and Suburban street railway, near Lansdowne, killing three persons and injuring a score.

Whole Family Killed.

Alton, Ill.: Fire, believed to have been started by an incendiary, destroyed the Alton steam laundry a row of days, and resulted in the death of Miss Ruth Myers and the serious injury of six other people. The total loss of property amounts to $35,000.

Attended Lynching.

St. Louis: Four men, Thomas, Nick and St. Louis, and William McCann, charged with having assaulted and killed Gerlie Gibson, aged 4, at Bloomfield, were brought here for safe keeping in the St. Louis jail.

BLACKMAIL MONEY.

Novel Defense of Lawrence Murphy, in New York.

New York: Counsel for Lawrence Murphy, the former treasurer of the Stone Cutters' Union, now on trial charged with appropriating the organization's funds, continued his novel line of defense before Judge Newburger in dragging from each witness admissions as to methods used by the journeyman Stone Cutters' Union in extorting money from employers. There was a crowd of laborers in court.

John Boyle, treasurer of the Stone Cutters' Union, was recalled. By him the prosecutor identified a contract between the six members of the Stone Cutters' Union and the Lawyers' Surety Company which was introduced to prove the testimony of Thursday that these same members divided the $5,000 among themselves. The document was a contract by which the members of the "secret committee" could not draw the money from the Lawyers' Surety Company until they filed every two days a statement of their services rendered. Boyle testified that he had turned over to Murphy the $1,000 he had received "for services to be rendered as his share of the secret trust fund, and that this fund had been deposited with the surety company before the Brooklyn Stone Dealers' Association had paid to the union $10,000.

Several other witnesses testified that the trust fund was created by fines against members of the union during a strike in 1902, which fines were paid by the employers under an agreement with the union to end the strike.

Donald Call, formerly president of the union, testified that the "secret committee" had demanded $50,000 from the Brooklyn stone dealers to settle the strike of 1902, and that $100,000 might have been demanded. As a compromise the committee agreed to accept $10,000, which was paid.

LEASED CONVICTS REVOLT.

Two Negroes Fatally Wounded, but Scores Defy the Guards.

Chattanooga, Tenn.: The convicts leased by the state of Georgia to the Georgia Iron and Coal Company at Cole City, Ga., revolted over the punishment of one of their number. The guards in attempting to restore order shot and fatally wounded two of the negroes, but the remainder of the colony, about 125 in number, have barricaded themselves and are defying the guards.

The revolt occurred when the hour arrived for the changing of the day and night shifts. It is said there is no way for the desperate convicts to escape from the mine here, that to subdue them the guards will have to starve them out.

BRITAIN CLAIMS THE ISLANDS

North Borneo Company Expects the United States to Withdraw Claim.

London: The British North Borneo Company met Tuesday and the question of the recent occupation by the United States of the seven small islands off the coast of Borneo came up. The chairman, Mr. M. J. G. G. G., said the islands, of which Great Britain had been in possession for twenty-five years, were deserted and had not been returned to in any treaty with any power. Managing Director Cowie said it was not a question of aggression. It was simply a misunderstanding, and in the end the United States would, when the matter was explained, waive its claim to the islands.

DR. AMES WANTS A PENSION.

Is in Financial Straits and Needs the Money.

Minneapolis, Minn.: Dr. A. A. Ames, former mayor of this city, now under indictment for bribery, has made application for a pension on account of disability during the civil war. His application was based on a doctor's certificate back to the time when the doctor was surgeon major of the Seventh Minnesota infantry.

NEW YORK FAILURES.

Talbot J. Taylor & Co. and W. L. Stow & Co. Forced to the Wall.

New York: The long continued decline in prices for securities on the stock exchange has resulted in the announcement of the failure of two important stock exchange brokerage firms. The first and largest was that of the partnership of W. L. Stow & Co. It was followed in a few moments by the news, sensational to the entire financial world, that Talbot J. Taylor & Co., the senior member of which is a son-in-law of James K. Keene, had failed.

Operators Lift Coal Prices.

Kansas City, Mo.: Because of an increase of about 7 cents a ton in the wages paid coal miners of the southwest the operators here, it is stated, decided to increase the cost of fuel to consumers from 50 cents to $1 a ton. The increase will apply to all kinds of coal used by householders and small manufacturing plants, and it is probable that before winter sets in there will be a further advance in the prices.

Guilty of Contempt.

Strasburg, N. Y.: Hiram Powers, John Lillis and Orlo Benz, striking maulers from the Stearns shop, were found guilty of contempt of court by Justice Andrews by his confirmation of the report of William G. Tracy, who heard the motion for contempt of court in reference. Powers was fined $25 and sentenced to thirty days in jail, Benz and thirty days and Benz was fined $50.

A Life for a Kiss.

New York: William Cushing murdered his wife at 179 Bowline Street while in a rage because she would not kiss him. They had been separated for a month.

New Ocean Record.

New York: The steamer Denver has broken the record between Galveston and New York. Her actual running time between the Texas port and Sandy Hook was 10 days and twenty-two hours. The former record was five days and two hours.

Boiler-makers on Strike.

St. Paul, Minn.: Every boiler-maker and boiler-maker's apprentice in the employ of the Chicago & North Western and Omaha road struck Thursday. The total number out is about 145 men. The boiler-makers demand the payment of the Chicago scale of wages. The scale calls for $2.00 a day.

Intense Heat in Oklahoma.

Guthrie, Okla.: Intense heat has prevailed in Oklahoma for a week. The temperature here Thursday was 106 in the shade. Corn and cotton are greatly in need of rain.

Killed in Peculiar Manner.

Springfield, Mass.: William Sullivan of West Springfield, was killed in a peculiar manner. While bicycling with a companion, Charles Johnson, their wheels slipped in such a way as to throw them together. Downey is supposed to have fallen on Sullivan's neck in such a way as to fracture the base of Sullivan's skull.

Went Back After His Hat.

Lafayette, Ind.: After rescuing his children from a fiery place in the Wabash river and conveying them to his wife on the bank Henry Cruz, a painter, went back into a smoke hole and was drowned.

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

Bucyrus, O., Bardender Kills Mistress and Himself.

Bucyrus, O.: Charles Kent shot and instantly killed Mrs. Lou Rensell, shot John Sawyer, and then killed himself. The shooting took place at the Rensell saloon, near the Pennsylvania depot.

Kent is the bartender, and some time ago eloped with Mrs. Rensell to California. Recently they returned here. While Mrs. Rensell was entertaining Sawyer, Kent secured a revolver, which he had back of the bar, and entered the room. He shot Mrs. Rensell twice, both bullets taking effect. She died almost instantly.

TOOK DAUGHTER INSTEAD.

Mother Causes Arrest of Man Who Promised to Marry Her.

Bloomington, Ill.: James Leonard and wife of Pontiac, Ill., were arrested on complaint of Mrs. Noges of Pontiac, mother of the bride, who says Leonard eloped with her daughter.

Leonard said he had been engaged to Mrs. Noges, but later decided to marry the daughter. A marriage ceremony was performed at Pontiac, but it is said that the marriage license contained the name of Mrs. Noges, and not that of her daughter. The elopers were taken to Pontiac by the sheriff of Livingston County.

A REAL "FIGHTING PARSON."

Kills One Man and Fatally Wounds Another.

Middlesboro, Ky.: After killing one man and fatally wounding another, John Lee, a minister in Lewis and Casey County, said grace at the jail table in Liberty.

Lee became involved in a quarrel with Ellis Woods and the latter's son and the shooting followed, in which the preacher proved himself more than a match for both his opponents, for he succeeded in killing Woods and fatally wounding his son.

"The fighting parson" was then arrested and taken to the jail at Liberty, where he peacefully returned thanks at the table with the other prisoners.

NEGRO MURDERER KILLED.

Shot to Death by a Pursuing Crowd at Beaman, Tex.

Beaman, Tex.: Policeman Walter Steinhilber met and fatally wounded a negro, who was pursued by a crowd of citizens and shot to death shortly afterwards.

Allen started to shoot his wife, and he forced a negro policeman and others who interfered to retreat. Policeman Steinhilber appeared and the negro killed him with a rifle bullet.

Allen then followed by the crowd which quickly gathered. The crowd fired upon Allen as he ran, and the negro soon fell dead with half a dozen bullets in his body.

DESPERATE ATTEMPT TO LYNCH

St. Louis Negroes After a Member of Their Own Race.

St. Louis: A mob of negroes made a desperate attempt to lynch a member of their own race, John Davis, a negro, who had just shot and killed his wife.

"Davis trooped to the ground and begged those policemen who had arrested him not to let the mob get him. The officers drew their revolvers and began using them as clubs, knocking several members of the mob senseless. Additional officers arrived and the mob was dispersed and Davis was taken to jail in safety.

"DIVINE" HEALERS ARRESTED

Charged with Obtaining Money by False Pretenses in Illinois.

Lincoln, Neb.: Gov. Mickey has honored two requisitions from the governor of Illinois for the return from Nebraska to that state of two "divine" healers, Parker and William Fletcher-Hall. The papers accompanying the requisitions accuse the men of being divine healers and confidence men. The specific complaint is obtaining money under false pretenses. Parker and Hall are under arrest at Omaha.

Guilty of Manslaughter.

Poncha, Ill.: The jury in the case of Jack Kincaid, who has been on trial for more than a year for the murder of Joe Ferguson, found the defendant guilty of manslaughter. In a duel with knives at Chillicothe two months ago Kincaid inflicted nineteen stiletto wounds on Ferguson. They were Italians and the quarrel originated when they were boys in Italy. Kincaid's plea was self-defense.

Coal Breaks His Neck.

Chicago: Ed Brown's American day-boy, Maxey Blumhardt, broke his neck while being exercised at Hawthorne. The animal bolted at the head of the stretch and ran into the outside fence, over which he turned a somersault and was killed instantly.

Great Strike in Russia.

Baku, Russia: A general strike has been declared here which involves 40,000 persons. The newspapers have suspended and everything is at a standstill except a few bakeries.

Suicide of Despondent Woman.

Toronto, Ont.: Mrs. E. J. J. Fog, a barrister and member of parliament of Toronto, committed suicide by jumping from the upper deck of the steamer Maecenia between this city and Hamilton, in full sight of the passengers. She had been despondent.

Gaffney is Held.

New York: Justice Meyers in the court of special sessions denied the motion that the charges against Alderman James E. Gaffney, accused of being interested in the lease of a pier while holding public office, be dismissed, and ordered the prisoner held.

Wheat Harvest Ended.

The wheat harvest is finished at Sutton, and the steam thrashers have commenced thrashing the crop from the shock, thus saving the delay and expense of stacking and going through the sweat, the involving a delay of six weeks or more. The yield will be somewhat disappointing, as the berry is shrunken.

Fire at Tecumseh.

A fire at Tecumseh wiped out the Hopkins block. The loss is $41,000, covered by insurance. G. H. Hill, a merchant, lost $21,000; insurance, $1,800.

Indians Get on a Drunk.

Despite the law against selling liquor to Indians, several barrels of the Sauter brand of whiskey were pretty well organized after a day's sojourn in Norfolk. They refused to discuss the matter of their intoxicants, but it is thought they drew enough alcohol from lemon extract and sarsaparilla to put them in the happy condition.

Dies From Effect of Heat.

Aaron B. McMahon, 79 years of age, and a pioneer resident of Beatrice, died suddenly Tuesday evening by being prostrated by the heat. The temperature was 102 degrees in the shade.

STATE OF NEBRASKA

NEWS OF THE WEEK IN A CONDENSED FORM.

Millers Start Agitation—Ask Same Advantages for Nebraska as Minnesota Has—Demand Milling—In Transit Rates—Meeting at Fremont

A movement is on foot among the flouring mill men of the state to secure milling-in-transit rates, the same as are now in effect in Minnesota. For this purpose a meeting of the mill men in this section of the state was held at Fremont, Mo. Present were from Omaha, Schuyler, Lincoln, Gibbon, Valparaiso and Harvard and Fremont. The question of rates was thoroughly discussed, and it was decided to appeal to the interstate commerce commission to have milling-in-transit rates put into effect in Nebraska.

Transit rates have been in force in Minnesota for some years and while they would have but little effect on shipments within the limits of this country they would make a reduction in the cost of delivering flour ground from Nebraska wheat in Nebraska mills in foreign countries. Some of the mills represented have a growing export trade which, with the increase of the wheat crop in Nebraska, is becoming more and more valuable, but without milling-in-transit rates Nebraska millers are at a disadvantage.

There is no millers' association in Nebraska, but one may be organized in the near future. Those who were present at the meeting at Fremont expect the assistance of the National Millers' Association and expect in time to get the rates which they consider themselves justly entitled to.

The question of the various kinds of wheat and the grading of wheat was also discussed.

J. M. Maher, a farmer living near Fremont, has devoted much time and study in the development of a kind of wheat that is adapted to Nebraska soil and climate and by scientific methods has developed no less than five kinds. His work has not yet entirely passed the experimental stage, but he has several kinds that last year yielded much larger crops than were raised from the ordinary seed. He has also presented the same plan with corn, and his work in this line has been highly commended by experts of the United States department of agriculture.

ANOTHER PIONEER HAS PASSED

Joseph Brannan Settled in Dakota County in 1856.

The ranks of the pioneers of Dakota county, upon which death has made severe inroads during the last few years, were further thinned by the death of Joseph Brannan, who died at his home at 3:30 o'clock Friday afternoon, aged 78 years, passed away at St. Joseph's hospital in Sioux City.

On Tuesday Mr. Brannan was somewhat suddenly attacked with illness, as a result of which he was removed to the hospital in Sioux City, where later he was operated upon for obstruction of the bowels. His recovery after his recovery after the operation was hardly surprising for his faithful wife and devoted children, who, with one exception, were at his bedside until the last.

DIES IN CHAIR OF DENTIST.

Woman Expires While Having Teeth Extracted at Hastings.

Mrs. Josephine E. Juntala, died in Hastings while having her teeth extracted in Dr. I. A. Goetz's dental office. Dr. Schaeffberger administered chloroform and ten or fifteen teeth had been removed when she rallied sufficiently to rise and exclaim, "She then sank back and died."

Child Drowns in Can of Milk.

The 1-year-old baby of Grant Aftonburg and wife, living five miles north of Wood River, was drowned in a can of milk Thursday morning. The parents were both away from home at the time. The little one was playing near a can of milk and accidentally fell in.

Big Corn Crib Burned.

A crib containing 3,500 bushels of corn and a large barn with all its contents was destroyed by fire on the farm of John Leunars, near Elletts. Three head of horses perished in the flames. The loss is estimated at $7,000, partially covered by insurance.

Firemen's Tournament Closed.

The closing day of the state firemen's tournament at Norfolk drew a record-breaking crowd and completed the best meeting in point of entries which the association has ever held. The parade in the evening was a grand affair.

Firemen's Tournament.

Amid ideal conditions in every respect, and the largest attendance of firemen in the history of the Nebraska firemen's annual tourney of the Nebraska Volunteer Firemen began in Norfolk Tuesday morning and will continue during the next three days.

BOY WAS NOT WORRIED.

Neighborhood Was Searching for Him While He Was Working.

A Humboldt special says: After almost a week of absence from home, during which time it seemed the south half of the county was ransacked by searching parties and the best of all the streams in that section were searched for his body, Dannie, the 13-year-old son of John Ullrich, was found serenely sleeping on the farm of Mr. Biggs, a neighbor, less than two miles from his home.

It is said that he was not permitted to go to a school which appeared in Humboldt last Saturday night and took of his fever because many of his playmates were attending. It has since developed that he went direct to Dubois, where the show had a date and then returned to the farm of Mr. Biggs and asked for employment, which was granted by Biggs, who was a newcomer and had not heard of his missing lad, and of course failed to recognize him.

It is estimated that no less than 200 people participated in the search, which continued night and day until he was located by the marshal of Dubois.

DEATH IN A CLOUDBURST.

Wall of Water Rushes Down Dry Ravine and Prof. Phipps Drowns.

The body of Prof. W. C. Phipps has arrived at Crawford and was taken to Undertaker Clelland's, where it will be placed in a casket and afterward sent to Chadron.

Prof. Phipps was connected with the Chadron schools and recently with the State University at Lincoln. He was out on his health with the fire guard gang on the R. & M. Railway. The tent was situated on high ground but was struck by dry draws near Maulsfield, north of Crawford.

At 5 o'clock Friday evening, hearing an unusual rum, Prof. Phipps looked out of the tent and called the other occupants to see a wall of water ten feet high almost upon them. He could not swim and was carried off in the flood.

His body was recovered about 300 yards from the tenting ground.

HORSES TAKEN FROM PASTURE

Twenty Head Stolen in Perkins County Billed to South Omaha.

A band of twenty horses were stolen out of a pasture at P. T. Bishop's place, in the north part of Perkins County, July 12. They were traced to South Omaha, where they were shipped to South Omaha. The bill for the horses, amounting to the car switched and sent to Neligh.

Each Empties Revolver Without Effect, but a Shotgun Scores.

William Perkins, of L. Company, and Fred Nidraha, were shot by S. E. Price, proprietor of an immoral house during a discussion of the payment of drinks at Valentine Sunday afternoon. Each emptied a six-shooter at the other, but Price had a dozen with which he was running away. Price has not yet been arrested.

HYDROPHOBIA PROVES FATAL

One Omaha Woman is Dead and It is Feared Others Will Die.

Mrs. F. W. Stover died at Omaha of hydrophobia, the result of a bite of a mad dog four weeks ago.

Mrs. G. F. Antelchuk, bitten by a same dog, developed serious symptoms of rabies, and has been sent to the Eastern Institute of Chicago for treatment.

Mrs. Stover's husband, and Vera Schetz, a servant, were also bitten, and fears are expressed that their wounds will result seriously.

Charged with Criminal Assault.

Mike Mostek, better known as "Big Mike," was brought to Columbus and lodged in jail. He is charged with an attempted criminal assault upon the person of a married German woman named Henry who lives in Humphrey. The affair happened Thursday evening and there was strong talk of applying the Falls City method of treatment, but cooler heads prevailed. He was bound over to the district court in the sum of $800.

Bold Forgery at Papillion.

A stranger went to the butcher shop of Frank Heisel at Papillion and presented a check for $25 which was cashed by a daughter of Mr. Heisel. It is said the check was signed by a prominent man of Papillion. When the check was presented at the bank it was found to be a forgery.

Beatrice Residence Destroyed.

The dwelling house of Frank Tichnor, located in South Beatrice, was destroyed by fire with all its contents. The building was valued at $1,200 and was insured for $700. The fire was caused by a pet dog knocking the lamp over.

Prisoner is Unconcerned.

The thief arrived at West Point with the man, George Trexler, who absconded with a buggy and team belonging to the lively barn there. The prisoner appeared very unbothered and did not seem to realize the gravity of his position.

Hand is Badly Crushed.

STATE TO PROTECT SOLDIERS.

Indiana to Punish Firms Who Discharged Militiamen.

Gov. Durbine of Indiana held a long conference with several officers of the National Guard the other afternoon over the recent discharge of members of the militia by their employers, and it was agreed that something would have to be done to protect men who were willing to serve the State, both from loss of positions and from the opposition to the militia by the labor unions. Captain H. M. Franklin of Company H declared that if a man cannot respond to the call of his State without imperiling his means of making a living it will not be long until a condition of anarchy will exist.

As a result of the Attorney General's investigation, a statute has been found which will apply to persons who discharge employes for belonging to the militia. The statute makes it a federal offense to discharge a militiaman because of his service with the State, and provides both for fine and imprisonment.

After being in session for nearly two weeks, the Evansville grand jury called to investigate the recent riots there adjourned. Part of the final report follows: "That the members of the various militia companies should be sought out and ostracized for doing their duty in maintaining the law, preserving peace and restoring order is an exalted and commendable duty. From an examination of witnesses, it was conclusively established that the unfortunate affairs of the night of July 1 were brought on by riotous hoodlums. The soldiers were attacked by the mob that fired the first shots, and in self-defense the soldiers returned the fire. Now is the time for the officers of the law to establish such a precedent as will prevent the occurrence of any further disturbances that the law is supreme."

THE WORLD MOURNS LEO.

PLAN OF ELECTING A POPE.

Cardinals Will Vote Behind Locked Doors for Leo's Successor.

On the tenth or at latest the twelfth day after the death of the Pope the conclave will assemble for the election of a new pontiff. If present it is followed, it will be held at the beautiful Sixtine chapel, within the walls of the Vatican.

On the day fixed for the conclave the cardinals will wear special masses of the holy spirit, take oaths of faithfulness and secrecy and then march to the chapel with a secretary and attendant for each. Once in the chapel the cardinals will be shut in by massive doors which will be locked. Voting papers will be supplied each cardinal and he will write his choice on this, no one being allowed to vote for himself. After each cardinal has advanced to the high altar, prayed, announced that he has voted according to his conscience and deposited his ballot in the chalice six scrutineers examine the ballots and announce the result.

Great interest is now centered in the work of the holy conclave which is to select the successor to Leo XIII. Speculations, prophecies and predictions come from every direction in favor of the various candidates. The comparatively long illness of Leo had the effect of narrowing the choices of some who entered the contest with what was thought to be the brightest prospects, while it brought into prominence others who at first were hardly considered.

TEMPORARY HEAD OF ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH

Cardinal Oreglia, dean of the sacred college, became the head of the Roman Catholic Church when the Pope died, and until a new Pope is elected he will continue to be supreme.

Many Eulogize Leo. Not only the Catholic but the entire world will mourn the death of Leo XIII. The loss is universal.—Rev. J. M. Scanlan, pastor of St. John's, Chicago.

Leo's place in history will be that of one of the greatest statesmen of the age, because of his endeavors to uplift humanity.—Bishop Foley, Detroit.

The Pope was a man of excellent scholarly traditions and blameless record and his death will be universally deplored.—Bishop Spalding, Peoria.

He was an ecclesiastic of the very highest order, and there was apparently nothing lacking in his composition.—Bishop Harkins of Providence.

The death of Pope Leo XIII. means an irreparable loss, not only to the Catholic world but to the whole of Christendom, and especially to America. The pontiff was one of this country's truest friends.—Vicar General Mooney, New York.

POPE'S WEALTH ENORMOUS.

Private Wealth $30,000,000; Yearly Income $4,375,000.

Pope Leo's wealth is estimated to equal if not exceed that of the richest man in the world. There was probably no man in the world whose income last year amounted to so large a sum as did the Pope's. No statement of his receipts is given out at the Vatican, but it is easy to estimate from certain known facts and gain a fairly accurate idea of the pontiff's budget during the holy year. Besides the Pope himself probably not more than two men know the exact amount of the papal income. One of these is Cardinal Rampolla, the papal secretary of state, and the other Car-

CONDITION OF THE CROPS.

Weather Are Apparent.

The weather bureau has summarized the crop conditions in a follow: "While the temperature in the central valleys, the lake region and the Atlantic coast districts has averaged considerably below normal, no unfavorable effects from cool weather are apparent from the reports, except in portions of the middle and south Atlantic States, where growth was checked to some extent. The need of rain continues in portions of the lower Ohio and central Mississippi valleys, North Dakota, northern Minnesota and western Texas, and is beginning to be felt in the central gulf States, Oklahoma, southwestern Kansas and portions of the Carolinas. Local storms, however, accompanied by hail, proved damaging in the upper Missouri, upper Mississippi and Ohio valleys and the lake region. Conditions on the Pacific coast were favorable, although light frosts caused slight damage in Washington during the early part of the week.

"Corn has made favorable advancement in all districts, but in the principal corn States it is variable as to size and condition, being generally small, especially in the central and eastern districts of the belt. As a result the crop in the good state of cultivation exists in the upper Ohio valley and middle Atlantic States. In portions of Indiana, Missouri, southwestern Kansas, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas corn is in need of rain to a greater or less extent. High winds flattened considerable corn in the lake region on the 17th and 18th.

"Reports respecting spring wheat are not favorable. The late sown in the Red River valley in Minnesota is beyond the beyond harvest, while heavy rains have kept the lowlands in the southern portion of the State flooded and have caused lodging in the uplands. Rains in the southeastern and extreme northeastern portions of North Dakota have improved the crop and in South Dakota spring wheat is doing well, but in the southern portion and in Iowa it is unfavorably affected by rust. In Wisconsin and Nebraska and on the North Pacific coast more favorable reports are received.

"Much rust in oats is reported from the States of the Ohio and upper Mississippi valleys and a few reports from the West show the condition of the crop is below recent anticipations. Harvesting is in progress.

"Further improvement in the condition of cotton is general throughout the cotton belt, although it is grassy over a large part of the eastern districts. Cool nights were somewhat detrimental in the Carolinas, and need of rain is beginning to be felt in Oklahoma. While rapid growth is reported from nearly all districts, the crop continues late, and it is well cultivated in the central and western districts. Boll weevil are reported as doing little damage in Texas.

"Hay is continuing under favorable conditions in the lower Missouri and upper Mississippi valleys and the lake region, where an excellent crop is being secured. In the Ohio valley and middle Atlantic States the yield is better than expected.

Chicago's Wheat Estimate. After a tour of the wheat producing States of the central West and South, H. S. Kennedy of Chicago, secretary of the National Millers' Federation, said the wheat would be of more than average quality. Mr. Kennedy perhaps more eloquently than with exact crop conditions than any other man in the United States. His estimates are as follows: Texas—Good crop, 15,000,000 bushels. Oklahoma—Fine crop, 30,000,000 bushels. Kansas—Excellent crop, 90,000,000 bushels. Indiana Territory—A new wheat country, 10,000,000 bushels. Southern Illinois, Indiana and Kentucky and Tennessee—Half a crop. Ohio—Fair crop.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP.

Martin G. Fosnes, who now has charge of the free delivery department of the postoffice, is a Norwegian and 52 years old. At the age of 17 years he removed with his parents from Norway to Minnesota, where he followed farming until he was 30 years of age. He then went through the influence of Win. Windom he was made special agent in the pension bureau. He served in this position twelve years and then became a postoffice inspector. At the beginning of the first McKinley administration Jas. L. Bristol, Fourth Assistant Postmaster General, became impressed with the concise and clear reports made by Fosnes in the inspection department, and he was assigned to the Chicago division, from which he was transferred to the charge of the Philadelphia division. He then became Bristol's right-hand man in the investigation of the Cuban frauds. Returning from Cuba broken in health and needing a curing, he was ordered to be assigned to the northwestern division, which request was granted. Lawyers of the state will be interested in a question that is now exciting considerable attention around the state. It is whether or not the judicial decisions shall be published as supplemented reports of the courts. The question is now before the court, reported as "unreported."

The judicial opinions are such as are prepared by members of the supreme court commission and are indexed by the supreme court index as reported as to conclusions without any endorsement of the court. When a commission's opinion is published by the court as a supplement to the court's report, it is published as "unreported."

The state board of educational lands and funds has received a proposition in writing to invest a bunch of Nebraska school funds in $40,000 worth of South Carolina state bonds, which bear interest at 5 per cent. The proposition comes from W. E. Berkeley, Jr., of the Lincoln State Deposit and Trust Company, which has been authorized by the board in reference to the purchase. The bond having doubtless been attracted hither by the published information that something like $75,000 of permanent school fund money has accumulated in the hands of the state treasurer for which investment is sought. There is a feeling, however, that what are wanted, and it is going to take a mighty good showing of the state's credit before such a deal is likely to be sanctioned by a majority of the board. It is understood that South Carolina has a state indebtedness of about $7,000,000.

Gov. Mickey has just returned from a trip to North Platte, where he delivered an address before the junior normal. It is the opinion that the state will have very large crops. He said, in speaking of his trip, that he had never seen better wheat than his way out to the school house. "The oats he believes will make a bumper crop and he predicts that, making the crop, will be the best crop in the state, and will be a record breaker for us. After having made several recent trips into the western part of the state he believes that the rains during the spring have insured crops in the south and north where an ordinary year for both crops is usual.

ICE STORM IN CHICAGO.

Terrific Fall of Hail Causes Damage Throughout the City.

The most terrific hail storm that has visited Chicago in years descended on the city at noon Tuesday, and burst great jagged chunks of ice upon the streets and buildings for nearly a quarter of an hour. Horses, driven frantic by terror and pain caused by the stones, ran away. Windows were shattered. Follage in the parks and on the boulevards was destroyed. Many persons were bruised and battered by the chunks of ice. Some of the stones were over an inch in diameter.

The downfall was heralded by a brisk gale which blew up shortly before noon and covered the sky with gray clouds. Out of these there came first heavy sheets of rain, which served as a warning. Then, in slanting streams, the hail stones shot down, pounding against the roofs and on the streets in a terrific din.

First the storm was only an ordinary one, with the drops of hail small and white. Soon, however, those increased to a formidable size, with a formation of sharp, jagged points, flat and circular. Like a fury of cannon they descended, wrecking havoc on windows, and trees, trees and buildings.

The rain was purely local, the weather man said, and had nothing to do with that which occurred in Minnesota and Iowa the day previous.

IMMIGRATION RECORDS BROKEN.

Prediction That More Than 1,000,000 Aliens Will Arrive This Year.

More immigrants arrived in the United States during the fiscal year that ended June 30 than in any other year in the history of the country. The total arrivals for the twelve months numbered 577, 040, being 68,054 above the previous record year of 1882, when restrictive legislation was pending in Congress, and a total of 788,092 immigrants, many of them alien contract laborers, were rushed into the United States.

The Russians held the record for the entire year, as last year, with a total of 230,622 immigrants, an increase over the previous year of 52,247. Austria-Hungary is second in the year's record, with a total of 206,011, an increase of 34,022. The Russian Empire and Finland is third, with a total of 136,093, an increase of 28,718.

NOTES OF CURRENT EVENTS.

Rear Admiral Evans says the Asiatic naval squadron needs 50 more marines. They will be sent to him.

Cato Garrett, a negro murderer, was taken from a train and hanged by a mob near Vicksburg, Miss.

A. R. Young, a Pittsburg attorney, murdered his wife and committed suicide at a Washington, Pa., hotel.

A locomotive blew up at Calrose, Wyo., killing Engineer Mike Lyons and fatally injuring Fireman Albert Hanson.

The British government has conferred a pension of $1,000 a year on Justin McCarthy for his services to literature.

The New York Appellate Court has confirmed the conviction of Al Adams, the policy king, who now must stay in Sing Sing.

Gov. Mickey has dismissed the personal aid of the delegation which will represent Nebraska at the coming session of the Trans-Mississippi Congress in St. Louis, Mo., on 23 as follows: H. M. Bushnell, M. Wall, C. H. Ryden, A. L. Gale, Elnora Warren Hightower, E. E. Bruce, Omaha; R. P. Hubben, Tecumseh; H. T. Haydock, Omaha; John P. Hanson, Fremont; Howard Van Dusen, Scribner; George W. Post, York; Peter Younger, General Joseph Gardner, Red Cloud; C. E. Adams, Superior; B. O. Hostetter, Kearney; Frank M. Curry, Sargent; H. P. Shumway, Wakefield.

THE LEADER OF MILLIONS IS DEAD.

Leo's encyclicals upon the rights of labor and the value of social democracy placed him in the forefront of social leaders and humanitarians.—Bishop Glennon, St. Louis.

Pope Leo XIII. was one of the greatest leaders of the Roman Catholic Church. His policy, character and general disposition gained for him the friendship of monarchs, diplomats and the humblest of every land.—Bishop Pleban, Pittsburgh.

Undoubtedly his name deserves to stand in the same rank as those of Gregory the Great, Hilobrand, Innocent III., Leo X. and Sextus V. But Leo XIII. was in a truer sense than any of those the Pope of the people.—Bishop Scammell, Omaha.

Leo XIII. was one of the greatest men of the age and one of the greatest pontiffs that ever ruled the church. His encyclicals were masterpieces and the creations of a truly great mind. His encyclicals on labor will remain a lasting monument to him.—Judge John Gibbons, Chicago.

Never was supreme pontiff loved by his people, never did supreme pontiff merit that love and devotion. No pope ever did more for the advancement of art, religion and science; no pope or king or emperor ever more deeply touched the great heart of the people and held them as his own.—Bishop Rouxel, New Orleans.

He was a great and good man, and history will preserve his name among the most illustrious of the popes. His heart, love and hopes were strongly drawn to America. He looked on the United States as the foster mother of a more Christian humanity, a more humane social system and a more equitable civic order.—Vicar General Mooney, New York.

WRITINGS WILL SURVIVE.

Encyclicals Written by Pontiff Have Been Geared to Lasting Merit.

Many of the writings of Leo XIII. will survive, not because they are from the pen of a pope, but because of their general literary merit. His encyclicals were models of Latin composition and his verses showed that had he not gained fame as a churchman he might have won the world's admiration as a poet. The rest of the world's previous popes have had as many non-Catholic readers and admirers.

Leo XIII. was an indefatigable worker. Until the marked decline of recent months it was not unusual for him and his secretary to work sixteen hours a day. Even after retiring the rest of the world's attention was frequently disturbed by a summons from his holiness.

Utterances of Pope Leo.

Be sure and let the people know my mind is not affected.

There is one thing the doctors' skill cannot accomplish, diminish my 94 years. The Americans have always showed me more affection than any other people. I love them.

I am ready to depart. I feel I have done all in my power for the good of the church and of humanity.

I shall die happier in thinking that something will remain of me that I have done at the very last moment.

God's will be done. Who would have believed it when only ten days ago I was presiding at a public consistory.

THIS AND THAT.

William E. Henley, poet, is dead, Woking, England.

Sarah Bernhardt says Paris should have an American theater.

One hundred and fifty natives were killed and many villages destroyed by a storm in Tonquin.

By his eloquence United States Senator Foster saved a negro from a band of lynchers at New Orleans.

AND MINNEAPOLIS TOO!

WHAT DID? BEER OR BINDERS? BOTH!

The products of breweries and binder factories have kept up to the fore front, and while the brewery product is all right in harvest time, the binder is the main thing then and the one you think about now. You save money by buying the money you study up on—the binder with the very best improvements, lasts longest, improved binders have fewer bearings and gears, hence run easiest, no weight on the horse necks means no sore necks, the best steel and malleable construction means the lightest yet strongest frame and the whole means to you an investment that will please you, not one you will regret. We sell both the Milwaukee binders and the Minneapolis binders, mowers and rakes. Kindly call and see them.

Don't Run Your Head Off looking for Good Harness--- just depend upon it that if You Really Want 'em you'll find 'em here.

Repairing A Specialty.

JOHN S. LEWIS, JR.

Missouri Farms, Callaway County

Do You Want Something BETTER Than You Have?

PRICE.—You can buy better land for less money than you can in Nebraska or Iowa. If you buy for a home you can have more of same quality land for the investment you now have. If you buy for investment your $35.00 to $50.00 Missouri land rents for as much as your $75.00 to $100.00 land in Nebraska.

CROPS.—and crop conditions are as good as are to be found anywhere. Average rainfall greater than in Nebraska. Pasture season is long. Winters short and mild. For live stock breeders and feeders the conditions are as near perfect as can be found anywhere in the United States.

OTHER ADVANTAGES.—Here are good schools, many churches, rural mail service, farm telephone systems—in short, all modern conveniences.

Do you remember prices Nebraska land sold for a few years ago? Well, the same movement has begun in Missouri. Lands will never again be as cheap as now.

If these arguments appeal to your business judgment, communicate with me.

Very Remarkable Cure of Diarrhoea.

"About six years ago for the first time in my life I had a sudden and severe attack of Diarrhoea," says Mrs. Alice Miller, of Morgan, Texas. "I got temporary relief, but it came back again and again, and for six long years I have suffered more misery and agony than I can tell. It was worse than death. My husband spent hundreds of dollars for physicians' prescriptions and treatment without avail. Finally we moved to Bosque county, our present home and one day I happened to see an advertisement of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with a testimonial by a man who had been cured by it. The case was so similar to my own that I concluded to try the remedy. The result was wonderful. I could hardly realize that I was well again, or believe it could be so after having suffered so long, but that one bottle of medicine, costing but a few cents, cured me." For sale by Raymond's Pharmacy.

Very Remarkable Cure of Diarrhoea.

"About six years ago for the first time in my life I had a sudden and severe attack of Diarrhoea," says Mrs. Alice Miller, of Morgan, Texas. "I got temporary relief, but it came back again and again, and for six long years I have suffered more misery and agony than I can tell. It was worse than death. My husband spent hundreds of dollars for physicians' prescriptions and treatment without avail. Finally we moved to Bosque county, our present home and one day I happened to see an advertisement of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with a testimonial by a man who had been cured by it. The case was so similar to my own that I concluded to try the remedy. The result was wonderful. I could hardly realize that I was well again, or believe it could be so after having suffered so long, but that one bottle of medicine, costing but a few cents, cured me." For sale by Raymond's Pharmacy.
