City Head Will Listen To All Sides

The tedious process of learning about a city's operation began Monday morning for new City Administrator Philip Kloster.

KLOSTER, 36, formerly of Forest City, Iowa, said he will be reviewing city operations with the various department heads and other in-house staff this week. Next week, the administrator will meet with engineers, consultants, financial people and other support groups.

He was hired by the City Council at a January meeting. After some negotiations for salary and benefits, Kloster accepted the position in mid-February.

The former Public Works Director in Forest City said his initial plans include "being a good listener and looking at all sides." He also plans to "chart what I feel is the best path for the city to follow."

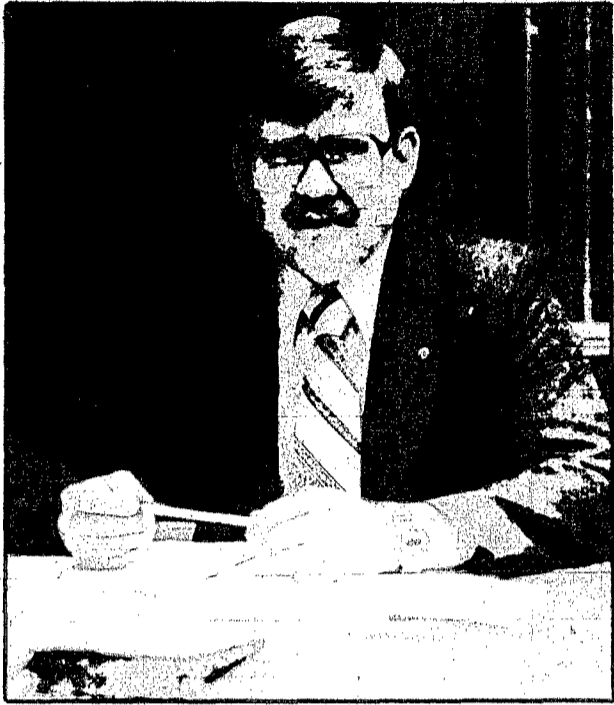

ALTHOUGH ANNOUNCING specific plans now for the future of Wayne would be premature, Kloster said he would like to see some organized industrial growth. "I think some steady growth in that area would be good," he said in a short interview Tuesday.

In addition, improvements in the water, sewer and electric systems are scheduled. While these projects were begun by city officials over the past several months, Kloster said he will be able to monitor their progress and provide input as well.

One of the new administrator's objects will be to improve communications with the residents of the community, he explained.

ONE APPROACH he has found to be practical is "to look at a situation through their eyes and see why they feel that is the way to go." He added that "there has to be a certain level of compromise" on any issue. Kloster said he will be concerned, of course, that any decisions are in the best interests of the city.

Kloster was chosen from among 30 applications for the position vacated by former Administrator Darrell Brevington. The new official will receive a salary of $23,500. Since 1978, he has been Public Works Director in Forest City, a position equivalent to the city administrator position here. He was responsible for the day-to-day operation of the city.

CITY ADMINISTRATOR PHIL KLOSTER

HE WAS A full-time student at Waldorf College and Mankato State College from 1969-1973, receiving an associate of arts degree from Waldorf in 1971.

He received a bachelor of science degree in business from Mankato State University in Minnesota in 1973 and attended courses at Iowa State University from 1978 until recently.

From 1963 to 1965, he attended business courses at the Hamilton School of Business. From 1965 to 1968, he was sales and traffic clerk for Northwest States Portland Cement Company in Mason City, Iowa, and from 1968-69 he was an accountant in Sioux City.

In 1977 and 1978, he was a warranty auditor with Winnebago, an Iowa leisure trailer manufacturer.

IN 1980, he was named Forest City's Outstanding Young Man of America. He also was president of the Indian Springs Home Owners Association in Forest City, was a charter secretary-treasurer for the Forest City Breakfast Lions Club and was a board member for the Chamber of Commerce Downtown Renovation Committee.

His wife and two children will move here when suitable housing is found.

ESU Covers Several Topics

An advisory council to review services provided by Educational Service Unit No. 1, another vote on the selection of Randy Shaw for the ESU board, a preliminary report on negotiations and insurance bids were among topics discussed at the regular ESU meeting Tuesday night in Laurel.

Shaw was chosen to fill a position vacated after Sharon Boekenauer of Wayne was declared ineligible last fall due to a filing error. She was named winner in the November General Election, but never served because of the technicality.

members of the ESU certified staff are underway, according to Gary Vopalensky, director of speech and hearing for the unit. He also is the administration's representative in negotiations with the staff.

FOUR SCHOOLS served by the unit — Bloomfield, Verdigris, Niobrara and Crofton — have asked for the services of a full-time special education director in Knox County.

The schools indicated that their distance from the ESU headquarters in Wakefield has resulted in substandard services. ESU Administrator Harry Mills told them that if they assume the entire cost of such personnel, he would locate and contract a qualified person.

In a somewhat related matter, the possibility of forming an advisory council made up of representatives from each of the counties in the service unit was discussed. According to Bob Rogers, superintendent of schools at Wausa, and George Abbott, superintendent at Creighton, the council would provide a formal method of communication between school districts and the board.

"THERE IS A feeling in Knox County that they are somewhat removed from the service unit and may not be getting full benefit of the services available," Abbott explained. Other than the distance from schools in Knox County to ESU, schools are satisfied with the services, he added.

There was general agreement among board members that such an advisory council probably was worthwhile.

The February election of Randy Shaw, Wayne, to the board of directors was reaffirmed at the March meeting Tuesday.

THE BOARD was informed that its vote of 4-1-3 in favor of Shaw last month did not comply with board policy. As explained Tuesday, a majority of those present did not vote for or against Shaw since three persons chose to abstain. According to information supplied by Kelly Baker, legal counsel for the Nebraska State School Boards Association, the February action did comply with state statutes.

However, board policy states there must be a majority of those present voting either for or against on any particular issue. Noting there were "inconsistencies between board policy and state law," the board voted 8-1 in favor of retaining Shaw. Voting against was Dave Hay.

A detailed comparison of insurance bids for ESU was presented by board member Bill Norvell. After considerable discussion, the board decided to have low bidder Security National Agency of Laurel provide a list of actual coverages made available at the next meeting.

THE COVERAGES will be compared to the existing policies which are held by several insurance companies. The board is seeking to consolidate the insurance under one company. In addition, a representative of Security National will be present to answer questions.

A vote on accepting the low bid is expected at the April meeting. Salary and benefit negotiations with

THE ESU STAFF provided its salary proposals recently, and the board responded Tuesday night. According to Administrator Mills, the staff's request is in excess of 30 percent and would be impossible to meet.

The board's negotiating team will respond to the staff's requests in an informal meeting sometime this month.

In other action, the board discussed a proposal from the Region IV Office of Developmental Disabilities. Region IV is asking that ESU share the cost of rent and utilities since the unit will be using Region IV facilities for educational services to Region IV clients.

MILLS RECOMMENDED that the board "not get involved in this cost." He said it would be difficult for the unit and Region IV to break down the cost "when we would be operating eight hours and they are operating the rest of the time."

The unit will provide the education for the students and will bill participating schools according to the approved state rate per hour.

The possibility of delivering service films by carrier rather than mail was discussed. Mills will contact schools in the district to see what their feeling is on the matter.

THE BANK of Wakefield officially was named as treasurer for the board. Berneal Gustafson previously served in that capacity, but an individual from the bank will attend meetings and take care of the board's finances.

2 Drug Cases Set for Trial

Two of four area persons charged with drug-related offenses will face trial May 18, while arraignments for the other two were continued to March 12.

In addition, three charges against two defendants have been dropped.

DALE BUSSKOHL, 27, Winside, will face jury trial on two counts of possession of cocaine and marijuana with the intent to deliver, and Diane Coyle, 25, Winside, will face jury trial on one count of possession of marijuana with the intent to deliver and one count of possession of marijuana weighing one ounce or less.

Two other charges against Busskohl — possession of cocaine and possession of marijuana — were dismissed by Prosecuting Attorney Tom DeLay recently.

Busskohl and Coyle were arraigned in District Court Wednesday morning by Judge Richard P. Garden and entered no guilty pleas to the charges.

ARRAIGNMENTS for Charles Weible, 27, Winside, and Vernon Sahra, 30, Laurel, were postponed until 8:30 a.m. next Thursday for separate reasons.

Weible's was reset because the court reporter was unable to complete a transcript of previous court proceedings in time for the Wednesday arraignment. Also, a bill of acceptance needed for a plea of abatement that is expected to be filed by his attorney Vince Kirby cannot be completed until March 12.

Weible is charged with three drug-related counts, with a charge of possession of marijuana dropped by Prosecuting Attorney DeLay recently. The other counts upon which he will be arraigned are possession of cocaine with the intent to deliver, possession of marijuana with the intent to deliver and possession of cocaine.

SAHRA'S ATTORNEY, Kirk Naylor of Lincoln, was unable to be present because of icy roads in the Lincoln area.

Arraignments will be held next week and pleas are expected to be entered to the charges. Judge Garden also is expected to set a jury trial of May 18 for Weible and Sahra.

Weible, Sahra and Busskohl were arrested Dec. 19 at Busskohl's home in Winside after an extensive investigation by the drug division of the Nebraska State Patrol. Coyle was arrested several weeks later in connection with the same drug seizure.

AN ESTIMATED 80 pounds of marijuana and three ounces of cocaine were confiscated from the Busskohl residence and Weible residences Dec. 19.

Busskohl has since been arrested and bound over to District Court in Madison County on a charge of possession of marijuana with the intent to deliver.

Bond in District Court here for Busskohl was reset by Judge Garden at $50,000, up from $7,500 set in Wayne County Court originally. Busskohl was jailed here until posting 10 percent of the bond, or $5,000.

Bond of $5,000 on Coyle and $7,500 for Sahra was continued by the judge.

THE POSSESSION of cocaine with intent charge carries a maximum sentence of 50 years in prison and a minimum of one year; the possession of marijuana with intent charge carries a maximum penalty of 20 years in prison, a fine of $25,000 or both and a minimum of one year in prison; and the possession of one ounce or less of marijuana is a misdemeanor carrying a fine of $100 (for first offense) and the attendance of a drug abuse school.

West Half of County Has Higher Loss of Population Than East Half

Although the majority of population in Wayne County lives in the eastern seven precincts, there was a slightly higher loss of residents in the west six precincts from 1970 to 1980.

AN IN-DEPTH report of preliminary population figures for Wayne County shows that the west six counties lost about 10 percent while the east seven counties lost only about 7 percent of population during the last decade.

The 1980 Census and Population Counts as provided by the Census Bureau indicate that as of last spring, Sherman, Deer Creek, Garfield, Chapin, Hoskins and Hancock precincts have a combined population of 2,269 compared to a population of 2,514 a decade ago.

Included in these precincts are Sholes, Carroll, Winside and Hoskins. Of these, Carroll, Sholes and Hoskins each had population increases while Winside had a population loss.

THE HEAD COUNT in Wilbur, Strahan, Brenna, Hunter, Plum Creek, Logan and Leslie townships (roughly the eastern half) totaled 7,167 for 1980 compared to 7,675 in 1975.

Included in these townships are Wayne and Altona and part of Wakefield, according to the report. No population figures were available for Altona, but Wayne had a decline in residents and the portion of Wakefield in Wayne County had a like in population, according to the Census Bureau information.

The precincts having increases in population in the western half of the county were Chapin, Hancock and Hoskins, with Sherman, Deer Creek and Garfield each having a decline in population. In the eastern half, only Strahan and Logan precincts had increases, while Wilbur, Brenna, Plum Creek, Leslie and Hunter each had losses.

THE TOTAL LOSS of population for the west half was 254 persons and the total loss for the east half was 508 persons.

In all, only five of 13 precincts had population hikes.

Populations of Wayne County communities which were surveyed by Census Bureau people last spring are as follows:

Hoskins — from 271 in 1970 to 306 in 1980, an increase of about 12 percent; Sholes — from 22 people in 1970 to 27 people in 1980, an increase of about 19 percent; Wayne — from 5,379 in 1970 to 5,094 in 1980, a decrease of about 6 percent; Winside — from 453 in 1970 to 441 in 1980, a decrease of about 3 percent; and Carroll — from 235 in 1970 to 246 in 1980, an increase of about 5 percent.

TOTAL COUNTY population is estimated at 9,706 compared to 10,400 a decade ago.

Regarding differences in housing unit counts, seven counties had losses and six counties had increases. The west half of the county, which had a larger percentage loss of residents, had only three precincts losing housing numbers. These were Sherman, Garfield and Hancock.

The east half of the county, which had a smaller percentage loss of residents, had four precincts losing housing units. These were Wilbur, Brenna, Plum Creek and Leslie.

In the western half, Winside had an increase in housing units from 173 a decade ago to 192 in 1980, Hoskins jumped from 89 units to 114 units, Sholes went from 11 units to 13 units and Carroll went from 98 housing units to 112 in the last decade.

IN THE EASTERN half, Wayne had an increase from 1,521 units to 1,787 in 1980 and the portion of Wakefield that is in Wayne County experienced an increase in housing units from 36 to 49 over the last decade.

Of all Wayne County communities which were surveyed for population, Hoskins gained population and housing units, Sholes gained in both areas, Winside lost in population but gained in housing units and Carroll gained in both categories.

The population in each of the precincts for 1980 are as follows:

BRENNNA — down from 301 to 259; Chapin — up from 512 to 529; Deer Creek — down from 491 to 471; Garfield — down from 256 to 212; Hancock — down from 549 to 457; Hoskins — up from 593 to 603; Hunter — down from 3,569 to 3,110; Leslie — down from 197 to 160; Logan — up from 273 to 330; Plum Creek — down from 334 to 284; Sherman — down from 324 to 267; Strahan — up from 2,707 to 2,777; Wilbur — down from 294 to 247.

Total population of area counties compares as follows:

CEDAR COUNTY — down from 12,192 to 10,824; Cumming County — down from 12,034 to 11,669; Dakota County — up from 13,137 to 16,542; Dixon County — down from 7,453 to 7,136; Madison County — up from 27,402 to 31,357; Stanton County — up from 5,758 to 6,531; Thurston County — up from 6,942 to 7,192.

An Organized Protest

A CHARTERED BUS load of area residents left from School District 25 Tuesday afternoon to join an estimated 1,000 persons from across the state in Lincoln. The gathering was to protest L.B. 319 which, if approved, would force the consolidation of Class I (K-8) school districts with larger districts. Counties with rural school districts formed protest groups, wrote letters to members of the Legislative Education Committee, Gov. Charles Thone and Sen. Merle Von Minden. Von Minden, the District 17 state senator, said he will strongly oppose L.B. 319 if it reaches the Unicameral floor for debate. "After carefully studying the bill, I feel it will very seriously damage the quality of education in our area," he said recently. "As I have said before, I am generally opposed to any legislation that diminishes local control. It appears to me that among other problems this bill would cause, it would certainly affect that local control."

Assessor Speaks to Seniors

Wayne County Assessor Doris Stipp talked to 20 Wayne Senior Citizens following the congregational meal Feb. 24 at the Senior Citizens Center.

Mrs. Stipp spoke on "Homestead Exemption," and distributed a handout including instructions on who may file.

Applications for Homestead Exemption must be filed in duplicate on or before April 1, 1981. Once the application of an owner-occupant 65 years of age or over has been approved, it is automatically renewed each year in which there is no change in status affecting qualification.

Persons questioning whether or not they are eligible for Homestead Exemption are asked to call Mrs. Stipp at 375-1979.

Mrs. Stipp assured the group that when the elderly do not have to pay any real estate taxes, the counties do not lose that revenue as they are reimbursed by the State of Nebraska.

She also told the group there is a $1,000 fine for persons who remodeled the inside of their home and did not report it to the assessor, and explained building permits.

Following Mrs. Stipp's presentation, Barbara DeWald gave a jewelry demonstration. Game prize winners were Cordelia Chambers and Alice Dorman.

There were 66 at the Wayne Senior Citizens Center for last month's potluck luncheon. Shirley Wagner arranged the fresh floral bouquet.

Lillian Miller led in the singing of the doxology, accompanied by Evelyn Carlson.

Serving on volunteer committees were Cordelia Chambers, Mildred Wacker, Shirley Wagner, Lucille Wert, Myrtle Splitgerber, Mary Miller, Emily Middendorf, Gale Bathko and Evelyn Carlson.

The program, "Home Health Care Celebrates One Year," was presented by home visiting nurse Ann Witkowski.

The Home Health Care Program is Medicare and Medicaid approved and most insurance companies will pay 80 to 100 percent of the cost of the visit, said Mrs. Witkowski. Her home health care services are provided to all age group home-bound persons in northeast Nebraska. Persons receiving the service must have a doctor's referral.

Mrs. Witkowski's office is located at Providence Medical Center. Persons who have questions regarding the visiting nurse program are invited to call her at 375-3800.

Legal Aid lawyer Mike Krochmalny also spoke last month at the Senior Citizens Center following a congregational meal. His talk centered on problems pertaining to senior citizens.

Any elderly person of low income who meets federal guidelines may receive legal aid services at no cost by contacting the Legal Aid Office in Wayne, 375-2220.

Last month's library hour at the center was conducted by assistant public librarian Judy Blenderman.

Mrs. Blenderman reported on several books, which may be checked out at the Senior Citizens Center and returned there or to the Wayne Public Library.

Next library hour will be at 2 p.m. Thursday, March 12.

Twenty persons took part in a current event session Feb. 17 chaired by Cordelia Chambers. Mrs. Jocell Bull, center director, showed a film from the Nebraska Library Commission, entitled "Full of Life - A Dancin'." Coffeecake was furnished by Mrs. Albert Soules.

1936 — Year of Blizzards, Grasshoppers, Drought

Following is a story of the blizzards, grasshoppers and drought which plagued Wayne County residents during the year 1936. The topical history was submitted by Mrs. Clifford Johnson of Wayne for publication in the new Wayne County History Book. The deadline for submitting stories for the book has been extended to March 31 — permitting more time to collect information. Book sales also will cease as of that date. Persons who have questions regarding the publication are invited to call Marian Jordan, 375-2611, Mrs. Clifford Johnson, 375-1137, Eleanor Edwards, 375-2336, Donna

Shyfelt, 375-1670, or Lucile Larson, 375-1861.

1936 — The year of blizzards, droughts, and grasshoppers: a year to remember. We lived on a farm northwest of Carroll. We came to grandma's for Thanksgiving and were thereafter snowed in until Clifford's birthday, March 26.

THERE were more than 30 continuous days in which the temperature did not reach above zero. If it didn't snow, the wind blew anyway. It was useless to try to keep the roads open. Snow was so deep all winter that it covered the fences. When possible neighbors went together across country to town, to trade cream and eggs for only the barest necessities because of limited space to haul them.

ON FEB. 15, early in the morning, I realized that my expected child had decided to make his entry early into this world. Since getting to a hospital or even to town was impossible, two very good neighbors, William Fredrickson and Ray Clark, set out before daylight to bring Dr. Textley from Carroll.

Bill had a small team and a box with runners that they used. The team got down in a snowdrift and it took the men 45 minutes to dig them out. It was 28 degrees below and blizzarding furiously. The trip took 5 hours (5 miles).

When the doctor arrived, warm as toast, in his horse-drawn coat, my little son, Larry, was 1 1/2 hours old. But the other men had frostbitten fingers, faces and toes. (I shall be forever grateful to those brave friends).

The house sat upon a hill with no windbreak. My room was upstairs over the register above the 'Round Oak' heater. The wind blew so fiercely that the heat, from 7 pails of coal, was of no avail. The hot water bottle froze in the bed.

More of 1936

Then in the spring, the snow melted so swiftly that it made a 'river' a mile across. Because it all rushed away, little moisture was left in the fields. However, the crops were planted and did fairly well until the grasshoppers, moved in and the extreme heat took its toll.

ON JULY 4, temperature 105 degrees, the men harvested the remaining oats. By July 15, the whole farm was completely bare from the 'beasties' huge appetites. There was not a green thing in sight, neither weed, nor leaf nor stem. The shady side of buildings, trees and fence posts were covered, sometimes 2 inches deep, with grasshoppers (huge monsters).

Heat continued above 100 degrees and the dust storms returned. There was about a five mile square, in our area, that was completely devastated.

Nothing was left for us to do but sell our livestock since there was no feed and no reserve from previous years, they were just as lean. (We farmed six years and raised two 'so-so' crops).

CLIFFORD went to the harvest fields of Minnesota while I stayed on the farm with our three children. When he returned in the fall, we moved into Wayne with my mother. Clifford had obtained a temporary job with Mr. Seymour.

We had just got nicely settled when what do you think whacked us next? Scarlet fever! Hollis, 6 years, and I were very ill and I was slow to recover. But as one grandson says of me 'I'm a tough old bird!' So I'm here.

1936! That was one year that I rejoiced when it was behind us.

I truly think we had a sample of pioneer life: namely, blizzards, dust storms, floods, grasshoppers and scarlet fever!! 1936, a year to remember!

Kindergarten Roundup Slated

Dave Luff, principal at West Elementary School in Wayne, announces that Kindergarten Roundup will be held Friday, March 27.

Luff said kindergarteners whose last names end in A-L are asked to register from 9 to 11 a.m., and those with last names ending in M-Z should register from 1 to 3 p.m.

Teachers will be working with the children during this time with the assistance of the Educational Service Unit. The school nurse also will make a presentation. Parents with prospective kindergarteners should have received forms in the mail which they are asked to fill out and return when they attend roundup.

They also are asked to bring a copy of their child's birth certificate. Luff reminds parents that immunizations records must be completed by state law.

The school invites all parents who will have children in kindergarten for the 1981-82 school year to visit the regular kindergarten class before Kindergarten Roundup.

Luff said parents are encouraged to bring their child to see what will be expected of them and what kindergarten is really like.

There will still be the regular roundup on March 27 for screening purposes.

Parents who are interested in having their children visit kindergarten are asked to call the school office, 375-3854, to let school officials know what day they would like to attend.

World Day of Prayer

World Day of Prayer, sponsored by Wayne's Church Women United, will be observed this Friday.

All women of the community are invited to attend the 2 p.m. service in St. Mary's School basement. Theme is "The Earth is the Lord's."

To Be Lesson Topic

Wellness is one of the best ways to overcome many of the negative aspects of one's lifestyle.

Current medical statistics show that 54 percent of American deaths are in some way related to lifestyle. Lifestyle includes your pattern of daily living; how you handle stress, loneliness and tension; how you relax; how and what you eat; how you use drugs, tobacco and alcohol; how you keep your body fit.

Dixon County home extension club leaders will receive training for the lesson, "High Level Wellness," on Monday, March 9, at 1:30 p.m. at the Northeast Station near Concord.

The training meeting is sponsored by Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service and is open to representatives of any local organizations interested in presenting the lesson to their group.

Anna Marie White, Dixon County Home Extension Agent, will conduct the training meeting.

Wayne Stopped Short of State

Number Two Scotus Snuffs Devils' Flame

THIS IS one shot by Scotus player Glen Kurcera that isn't going through the net. Mike Sladek of Wayne sees to it with a blocked shot.

Columbus Scotus combined talent, the luck of the Irish and a touch of gold to end the state bid of the Wayne Blue Devils, Tuesday night in Norfolk's Northeast Tech gym.

The Shamrocks, ranked second in Class B, defeated the ninth-rated Devils 63-54 before a standing-room-only crowd of 2,600.

Two talented seniors led to the downfall of the Blue Devils. Bret Kumpf hit everything he put up from the free throw line in 10 attempts. But, it probably was the play of Glen Kurcera more than anything that broke the camel's back.

Kurcera scored nearly everytime he touched the ball and made 16 of his 21 points in the first half.

The Blue Devils trailed by 17 points at the half but refused to give up. For the second consecutive night in district play, Wayne fought back with a strong third quarter performance.

However, the 17 point difference proved to be a bit too much.

Wayne, which defeated Schuyler and Hartington Cedar in district action, had relied on a fine rally to eliminate the Trojans Monday. Meanwhile, top seeded Scotus drew a first round bye and had an easy semifinal game against Columbus Lakeview Monday.

The Blue Devils outscored Scotus 15-5 in the third period to cut the difference to seven points at 46-39. At one point, Wayne was within six points on a basket by Perry Nelson.

Scotus, which controlled all four tips at the start of each quarter, pulled back on top by 11 points early in the fourth quarter behind good passing and easy layups. Wayne pulled back within eight points but a three point play put the game just out of reach in the late minutes.

Wayne held a height advantage in the game but Scotus overcame the height problem with its team quickness and effective passing. The Devils started players who were 6-7, 6-6, 6-1, 6-1 and 6-0. The five Scotus starters were 6-4, 6-2, 6-1, 6-1 and 5-10.

Wayne was led in scoring by Mike Sladek with 16 points, Kevin Nissen with 13 and Perry Nelson with 12. Six of the seven players who saw action scored.

The two teams battled evenly in the early going but Scotus made three quick steals for unanswered baskets and an 18-10 lead. A basket in the final second of the first period brought the Columbus lead to 20-12.

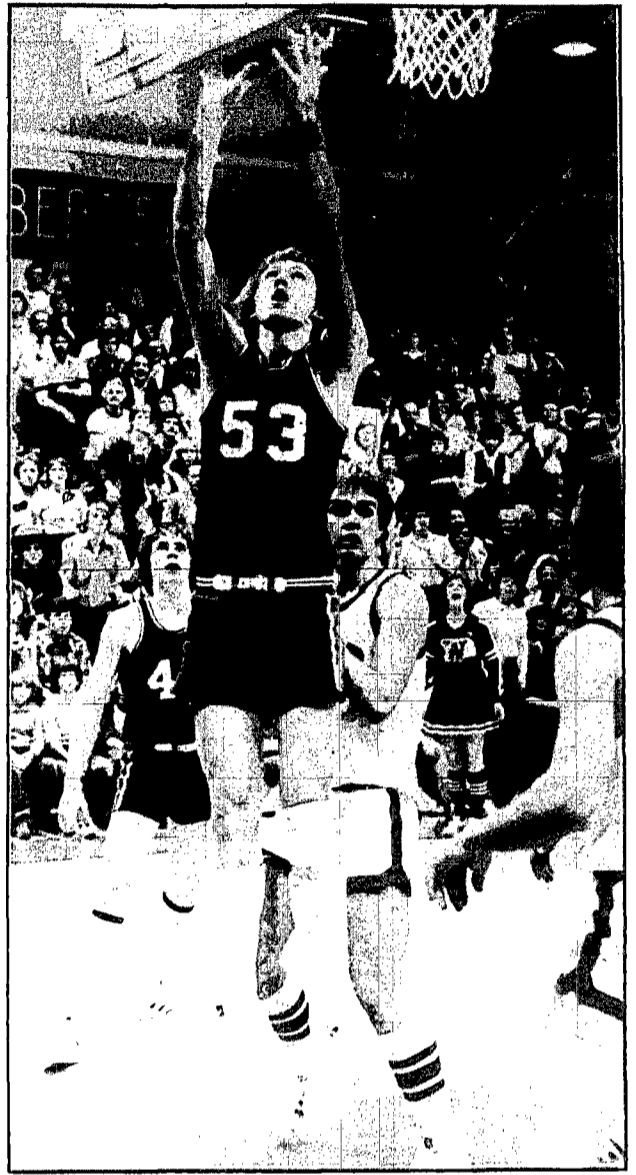

Things got worse instead of better in the second period as Kurcera played well inside and out to score 10 points for the Shamrocks. A three point play and another basket at the buzzer gave Scotus a big 41-24 half time lead.

"We got too far down in the second quarter. We probably stayed in the zone a little too long. We were afraid to go man to man against their speed but played about even when we did switch," Wayne coach Bill Sharpe said. "When you're down that far, you need every break in the world and we didn't get them."

As the ball game ended and Wayne's season came to a close with a 19-5 record, the Wayne fans gave a standing ovation for a fine season.

District Playoff Loss Ends WSC Men's Year

We were happy to be there and you can look for us again... were the comments of Wayne State College men's head basketball coach Rick Weaver as his Wildcats closed out their 1981 season by dropping a 84-67 decision to Hastings College Saturday in the first round of the District 11 playoffs.

The Wildcats, picked for last place in District 11 and the Central States Intercollegiate Conference at the start of the year, surprised a lot of fans by finishing fifth in the CSIC and gaining a post season playoff position.

Traveling to Hastings for their road trip of the week may have taken its toll on the Wildcats as they came out of the blocks fast and jumped out in front of the 17th ranked Broncos 14-12 with 12 minutes to go in the first half. Hastings' experience and endurance seemed to wear down the Wildcats as the Broncos went in at halftime with a 12 point lead 40-28.

A second half surge brought the Wildcats back to within eight points at one time but they could not get any closer as fatigue and turnovers hurt the Cats.

The loss closed out the season and basketball careers for four seniors: Doug Hutchinson, Leon McRae, Bill Milks and Tom Baumer. They will all be lost to graduation. "These four young men played a very important part in getting Wayne State back in to the district playoffs and we'll miss the hustle and leadership that they gave to this year's squad," stated coach Weaver.

Leading scorers for the Wildcats against Hastings were Grady Hansen with 22 points and Leon McRae with 17.

Schuyler is Eliminated

Wayne Rolls to Easy 1st Round Win

The Wayne Blue Devils advanced through their first round breather by thrashing Schuyler 85-54 in Class B-4 district basketball action at Northeast Technical College Saturday.

In other first round action, Columbus Lakeview upset West Point 47-40 and Hartington Cedar Catholic clobbered Tekamah Herman 87-52.

The rematch between Wayne and Schuyler turned out to be a mismatch unlike the earlier meeting in which Wayne was pushed into overtime.

Kevin Nissen led all scorers with 18 points. Mike Sladek scored 17, Perry Nelson 16 and Todd Skokan 11 in a balanced attack. Skokan had one of his best performances ever as a Blue Devil.

Kevin Nissen and Mike Sladek scored all but two of Wayne's first quarter points and the Devils opened up a 21-10 lead. Nissen scored 10 and Sladek nine in the first period.

The Devils continued to run in the second quarter but their shooting cooled down. Nonetheless, they opened up a bigger lead and went into the locker at the half on top 39-20.

Despite shabby play in the third period, Wayne connected on most of its shots and kept a lead of 20 points. Reserves saw action in the late going of the third quarter.

The Wayne starters returned to action temporarily in the fourth quarter until the game was out of reach. At that point the reserves took over and kept the pressure on.

Doug Proett, Pat McCright and Steve Koll all played well in the late going and put their names on the scoring sheet with baskets.

Schuyler, who was playing without three sport standout Marty Kobza who quit the team about a month ago, was led by Jim Schuffte with 12 points.

The victory improved Wayne's record to 18-4.

Randy's Recap

According to Randy Hascall

UNFORTUNATELY, the basketball season at Wayne High School came to a disappointing close in a tough district. The Wayne Blue Devils gave a valiant effort before folding in the B-4 finals.

Only one of three ranked teams could advance to the state tournament and second ranked Columbus Scotus earned the nod. Wayne and Hartington Cedar Catholic could play with anyone in the Class B field but will instead be watching the state tournament from the sidelines.

The size of the crowds on hand at the Northeast Tech gym for the semifinals and finals was tremendous. It's too bad that no facility in this area of the state can satisfactorily seat the gigantic followings.

It's a real shame when there is only standing room and fans must stand on the ends of the court. That is no place for spectators to be.

In Tuesday's district final, fans crowded around the east and west ends of the court because there was simply not any other place for them to go.

Tournament workers had their hands full trying to keep fans away from the edge of the court and the action had to be at least slightly disturbing to the players. It also doesn't enhance the show of sportsmanship when young fans from two schools are able to bicker at the end lines.

THE NORTHEAST FACILITY is a good one. The court is fine and the lighting is excellent.

However, I'm glad that I don't have to sit in the stands and watch many games. The bleachers seemed shorter than those at many area high schools and when I got through watching two straight games from the average spectator's viewpoint, I sure felt sore.

There is no comparison with the fine seats in Rice Auditorium's upper deck. I guess that is luxury.

STATE TOURNAMENT time is fast approaching and I plan to watch some of the girls action in Lincoln tonight (Thursday) as Allen meets up with Shickley.

The Eagles should be able to put together a much-improved showing from last year. In fact, if they win their first game, they could be in contention for the state championship.

I had also intended to journey to Lincoln next week for the boys state tournament. But, none of my area teams qualified for the action and duties in the area of general news will pick up now that editor Dan Field will be moving on to take over as editor at the Red Oak Express.

I gained good experience working with Dan at The Herald for the past year and a half and wish him best of luck at Red Oak.

MEMORIAL SERVICES for Connie Kunzmann will be held Saturday (March 7) at Hope Lutheran Church in Eversly, Iowa. From talking to Connie's friends in the past week, it sounds like quite a few people plan to attend the services.

A READER SENDS in a news clipping from the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. This proves how far news travels.

The clipping is from a sports column in the Texas newspaper. It reads:

"Here is my favorite record for futurity: In 1972 Wynot, Neb. High School lost a basketball game to Laurel, Neb. 118-4. The Wynot players attempted 60 field goals and missed every darn shot.

Allen Girls Open State Bid Tonight in Tough Class D Field

There are no real surprise teams competing in the Class D State Girls Tournament. In fact, all eight teams are rated in the top eight positions of Class D rankings according to either The Lincoln Journal or The Omaha World-Herald.

Nearly a month ago, Gary Troth figured that Allen, Adams, Clearwater, Roseland, Madrid Wheatland, Ansley, Shickley and Sumner would likely be the eight teams competing at state unless some other teams pulled-district or regional upsets. There were no upsets.

The worst record of any team in the field is a fine 18-2 mark. Unfortunately, the mark is that of the Allen Eagles.

Allen drew top seeded Shickley (21-0) in first round competition and will meet the Longhorns at 7 p.m. tonight (Thursday) in the Lincoln High School gym.

Shickley, which is ranked first and second in the state's two top 10 ratings, won the state championships in 1977 and 1978. Coached by David Wegner, Shickley has two players averaging in double figures and will start two seniors.

The leading scorer for the Longhorns is just a sophomore. Laura Schroeder, a 5-7 guard, is averaging 13.3 points and 4.2 rebounds per game. Cheri Tatro, a 6-2 senior, is averaging 11.4 points and 8.1 rebounds per game. Another senior and two juniors will fill the other starting positions.

Allen coach Gary Troth will stick with his usual five starters who have led the team to success. The Eagles are blessed by one of the leading players in the state, 5-10 senior Lisa Erwin.

Erwin, the only senior starter, is averaging 17.4 points and 10.4 rebounds per game. She was the leading vote-getter in Lewis Division all-conference team selections. Erwin, who has scored 1,096 points in her career, ranks third on the Class D all-time list of leading scorers. She is the eighth leading career scorer in all classes and is one of 15 girls to score more than 1,000 points in four years of high school.

Joining Erwin on the starting lineup are three juniors and one freshman. Point guard Des Williams is averaging 14.6 points and 3 rebounds per game and is valuable for her ball handling abilities.

Juniors Janet Peterson and Beth Stalling are both averaging about five points and seven rebounds a game. Freshman Shelly Williams will fill the other guard position and is averaging 9.8 points and 4.4 rebounds per game.

Nissen Basket Seals Win As Defending Champs Ousted

Kevin Nissen earned some added satisfaction and was granted justice as his last second field goal gave the Wayne Blue Devils a 55-53 win over arch rival Hartington Cedar Catholic, Monday in Class B-4 district semifinals.

Nissen rebounded a missed shot by team mate Jere Morris and put in the winning basket to repay Cedar for a one-point loss early in the season.

It was Nissen who had an opportunity to clinch a tie or win in Wayne's first meeting against Hartington. The 6-1 senior missed the front half of a one-and-one situation in that ball game and Cedar came downcourt to score the winning bucket.

This time, Nissen's missed free throw was long forgotten and the Blue Devils finished their series with the Trojans while holding an advantage of two wins.

The Devils, who are generally accustomed to taking the lead early in the game, had to fight from behind to oust Hartington. Wayne trailed by as much as eight points and found itself down 28-22 at the half.

However, the Devils outscored the Trojans 14-4 in the first five minutes of the second half to take a 36-32 lead.

A 15 foot jumper by Nissen tied the game at 32-32 with 4:54 remaining in the third period. A 16 foot basket by Morris put the Devils on top 34-32 at the 3:24 mark. Tod Heler's basket from 17 feet upped the advantage to 36-32.

"It's a shame they (Cedar) had to lose. We think we have a little better talent and that was probably the difference in the game," Wayne coach Bill Sharpe said after winning his 111th game at Wayne. "We made some small adjustments at the half but that wasn't a big importance in the game."

During the half time break, assistant Ron Carnes told the Wayne players to "get out there, suck it up and play." The Blue Devils seemed to take the advice.

Cedar regained the lead at 44-43 and led 49-45 at one time. Heler's bank shot tied the score at 49-41 with 3:25 left in the game.

With the game knotted at 53-53, Tom Fellmeyer, who unloaded against Wayne with deadly outside shooting, finally missed a shot and Wayne came down with the rebound.

The Blue Devils elected to go for the final shot of the game and hoped to get the ball inside to Perry Nelson. Cedar's defense prevented Nelson from getting the ball and Morris pushed up a 20-footer.

The ball bounded off the front of the rim and the well-positioned Nissen wasted no time grabbing the rebound and hitting the winning shot.

Wayne was led in scoring by Nelson with 15 points and Sladek and Heler with 14 points each. Heler had 12 points in the second half. Nelson kept Wayne close with his free throw shooting. The 6-6 senior hit seven of nine attempts. Tom and Jerry Fellmeyer and Glenn Lamers led Hartington in scoring with 39 total points.

The Blue Devils had a tough time in the rebounding department and the lack of rebounding showed up in the first half as the shots didn't drop. Wayne managed to stay out of foul trouble committing only nine fouls compared to 15 for the Trojans.

"They boxed us out in rebounding. They have a good ball club," said Sharpe. "It is tough to stop our inside game without opening up the outside and we started hitting from out there. We worked the inside trying to draw a fifth foul (on center Chuck Stevens).

The win before a standing-room-only crowd of 2,400 at the Northeast Tech Activities Center upped Wayne's season record to 19-4.

WSC Baseball Team Opens

Weather permitting, the Wayne State College Wildcats baseball squad was scheduled to open its 1981 season with a pair of games against the University of Nebraska at Lincoln either Wednesday or Thursday, depending on the weather conditions.

The Wildcats have nine returning lettermen from last season when they finished 24-25. The big question for this year's team seems to be the pitching staff as the top four starting positions could end up in the hands of one sophomore and three or four freshmen.

Offensively, Wayne State seems to have the hitting needed to score runs as Mike Meyer, Bill Schwartz, Brian Blatchford, Mark Glatzer and Thomas Todd, all 300 hitters, return from last season.

Wayne State is also preparing to make its southern trip where the Cats will play 12 games in six days before they return home to play Jamestown College from North Dakota at 1:30 p.m. March 16.

- Southern Schedule:
 March 8: Central Oklahoma State, Edmond, Okla.
 March 9: Oklahoma Baptist, Shawnee, Okla.
 March 10: Southeastern Oklahoma State, Durant, Okla.
 March 11: Mid-Western State University, Wichita Falls, Texas.
 March 12: University of Texas, Arlington, Texas.
 March 13: Dallas University, Dallas, Texas.

Kunzmann Services Saturday

Memorial services for Connie Kunzmann, 24, will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, March 7 at Hope Lutheran Church in Eversly, Iowa.

Kunzmann was a Nebraska Wrangler professional basketball player and former Wayne State College standout. According to Douglas County officials, the Eversly native reportedly was killed and then thrown into the Missouri River on Feb. 7.

The search for her body has so far been unsuccessful as scuba divers were unable to recover any clues due to high currents and freezing weather earlier in the month.

Kunzmann graduated from Wayne State in April of 1978 and played professional basketball with the Iowa Cornets and Nebraska Wranglers.

Wayne Rec Boys Split Action

The Wayne Recreation junior high teams split action against Norfolk, Saturday.

The Wayne seventh grade found the going tough, losing to the Norfolk YMCA eighth and ninth grade 'B' team 39-24.

Wayne's eighth grade team took care of the YMCA eighth and ninth grade 'A' team with an easy 50-15 triumph.

Three players scored in double figures as Wayne won the second game. Steve Overin hit 17, Pete Warne scored 14 and Kevin Maly made 12 for the winners. Other scorers were Rick Nelson with four points and Chris Weseler with three.

Warne and Maly paced the scoring in the second period as Wayne took a half-time lead of 27-10.

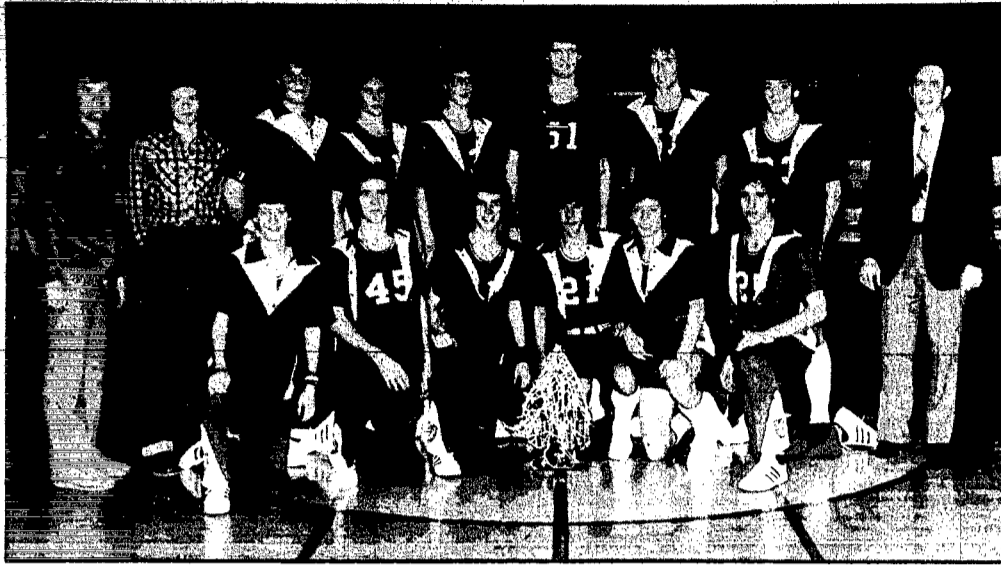

In the first game of the day, Don Larson scored 13 points for Wayne but didn't receive enough help in the scoring department from his teammates. Brent Pick scored six, Tim Fleming hit four and Jan McCright added one.

Norfolk was led by six players who scored. Wayne trailed 19-13 at the half, and was outscored 20-14 in the second half.

Same Growth in Economy

Although the condition of the nation's economy led to slow growth in industrial activity in many parts of the country during 1980, Nebraska showed improvement in two of the three indicators used to measure industrial growth, according to a report compiled by the Nebraska Department of Economic Development.

Industrial plant location announcements and plant expansion announcements during 1980 totaled 102. This was up from the 77 industrial announcements in 1979 and the 92 announced in 1978.

Investment announced for new plants, plant expansions and equipment last year climbed to more than $127 million. This growth in capital investment compares to $108 million in 1979 and $99 million in 1978. New job opportunities to be created in the state as a result of the new plants and expansions decreased from recent years. According to the Department's report, when the new plants and plant expansions announced in 1980 reach full production, 2,754 new jobs will have been created in the state. In 1979, projected new jobs totaled 4,232, and in 1978 the figure stood at 3,945.

A further breakdown of the report shows that there were 30 new plant location announcements, up from the 28 reported in 1979. Expansion plans were announced by 72 existing Nebraska industries compared to 49 in 1979.

The new industrial plants plan to spend more than $35 million in capital investments to get their plants in operation, while existing plants plan capital investments of more than $92 million.

Commenting on the outcome of the 1980 industrial activity, Dolores Wilson, the Department's industrial development director, said, "The first six months of 1980 were strong, but the effects of the national recessionary economy became evident in the latter part of the year. We are hopeful that this slowdown in activity will begin to turnaround by mid-1981."

"The strength shown by the number of expansions in 1980 is very encouraging and seems to be an indication that Nebraska's economy tends to fare better than that of the U.S.," she added.

"This was the first year since 1975 (another recession period) that projected employment from expansions exceeded the projected number of jobs created by new industries."

Government Reorganization Disputed

CAPITOL NEWS
By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

State Sen. Chris Beutler of Lincoln was one of the first state lawmakers to publicly react last year when the Nebraska Supreme Court came down with its landmark ruling on transbasin diversion of water.

Although the court's ruling dealt with a transbasin diversion application that affects a more rural area of the state, this urban lawmaker immediately targeted the issue as one of statewide concern.

The high court, ruling on a case involving the Little Blue Natural Resources District's plan to divert Platte River water to the Little Blue basin for irrigation, overturned a decision that was nearly a half-century old and said transbasin diversion is permissible in Nebraska, providing it's in the public interest.

Beutler reacted by drafting legislation to clearly set down in state law guidelines for transbasin diversion.

"If we do nothing, then the director of water resources will continue to determine the public interest in this state," Beutler said.

Beutler's LB252 recently had its first formal airing before the public at a session of the Legislature's Public Works Committee, and the lines of support quickly became obvious.

Supporters of transbasin diversion emerged as the bill's opponents, while opponents of diversion lined up behind the legislation.

LB232 would require the state water resources director, when reviewing a diversion application, to consider such things as alternative sources of water available to the applicant, economic and environmental benefits, adverse impacts of the proposed transfer and foreseeable future beneficial uses of water in the basin of origin.

The Legislature may well come up with statutory guidelines for use in reviewing diversion applications, but the Supreme Court also might be put in a position of making those decisions for lawmakers.

After the high court ruled on the Little Blue proposal, the application was sent back to the director of water resources with orders to approve it if it was in the public interest. Director John Neuberger found that it was, but that wasn't the end of it.

Diversion opponents have again decided to appeal Neuberger's ruling, throwing the public interest issue in the laps of the Supreme Court justices.

Reorganization disputed

Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh is explaining, Sen. Don Dworak of Columbus is apologizing and Gov. Charles Thone, at least by some accounts, isn't doing enough.

At issue is the handling of recommendations to improve and streamline state government that were unveiled last year by the Governor's Task Force for Government Improvement, a citizen group appointed by Thone.

DeCamp in January introduced for Thone four task force bills that would have taken four independent state agencies and transformed them into state departments under the Governor's control. The four agencies were the Game and Parks, Library and Real Estate commissions and the State Historical Society.

But it soon became evident DeCamp's bills were among the more controversial of the task force proposals, and word started getting out that DeCamp might back off the measures unless he got more active support and help from Thone and his aides.

That support, however, never came, and DeCamp and Thone recently agreed to have the bills withdrawn from legislative consideration. When that was done, task force Chairman Earl Luff of Lincoln publicly said he was "very disappointed."

DeCamp within a week said he was writing task force members to explain why he withdrew the bills.

Also writing letters was Dworak, who said in a letter to Luff that he regretted the treatment given the state government reorganization proposals. Dworak said Luff should not feel responsible for the failure of the governor and Legislature to act.

But the withdrawal of DeCamp's four bills, coupled with the fact that other task force proposals to disband so-called advocacy agencies and make them state departments are facing considerable opposition, casts a shadow on the governmental reorganization effort.

The less controversial task force proposals could see the light of day this year, but it's becoming increasingly doubtful the more far-reaching recommendations will go very far during the 1981 legislative session.

The task force does, however, now have Thone's public commitment to strongly push the remaining recommendations. During a recent news conference when he explained how he and DeCamp had decided to withdraw the four bills, Thone made it clear he was standing strong behind the remaining proposals.

But the 1981 session has already passed the one-third mark, and many pressing issues — the $70 million personal property tax relief fund and state appropriations to name two — still must be dealt with before the session ends.

That situation alone makes it questionable whether the lawmakers can complete a major overhaul of certain segments of state government before they go home for the summer.

Out Of Old Nebraska

Nebraskans "make do" During World War I

Inflation and other economic difficulties during and after World War I tried the patience and taxed the ingenuity of Nebraskans. Although the United States did not officially enter the conflict until April 1917, the war in Europe which began in 1914 was a partial cause of unstable economic conditions on this side of the Atlantic. The Oct. 12, 1916, "Alliance Semi-Weekly Times" on file at the Nebraska State Historical Society reported rising prices and their effects:

not be so strict if he had to cook these meals himself.

Numerous complaints are being heard on every side that the men are not backing up the women in their tireless efforts for food conservation. They are demanding their full quota of meat and as for war bread dear me — it has spoiled many a family dinner.

One prominent Lincoln woman accidentally discovered a plan which has meant a saving of butter — once regarded as a necessity, now almost a luxury. Upon several occasions she had threatened to serve for her family dinner one of the many butter substitutes now on the market, but each time had met with strenuous objections from the head of the house. Finally the family were told they could not tell the difference and had been eating butter substitutes for several weeks. Now, although butter is served as it always has been, it is rarely eaten as the family are a little skeptical as to just what they are eating.

Pat Gasler, Nebraska State Historical Society

Von Minden Is Against Advancement of LB 319

By the time you read this, LB 319 will have had its public hearing. As many of you know, LB 319 is a bill that will require reorganization of Class I school districts. In effect, small elementary schools districts will be merged with larger neighbors. This is the kind of philosophical discussion that frequently developed during my campaign last fall.

At that time, I indicated that I was generally opposed to any legislation that reduces the impact of local control. As your senator, I feel an obligation to continue to advance that philosophy.

In its current form, I believe that LB 319 will have such an impact. I feel both systems, K-12 and Class I school districts, each have their own merits. I do think it should be left to local option as to which one works best in any given area.

It is simply to say that each system, in and of itself, has qualities and the benefits of each should be examined, but as I said, at this point, without a substantial introduction of new evidence, I am inclined to oppose LB 319 in its current form.

This week I, along with other senators, introduced LR 22 which was a resolution prompted by several Veterans' groups in the Siouxland area. LR 22 called the Legislature to urge the Board of Directors of the Siouxland Interstate Metropolitan Planning Council to designate the new Missouri River Bridge the "Siouxland Veterans Memorial Bridge" in honor of American veterans. I am pleased to say this resolution passed by a vote of 34 ayes and no nays.

Merle's Message

by Sen. VonMinden

One other item I would like to mention is, as I have said before, I am deeply interested in your thoughts and suggestions regarding legislative matters. When writing me, however, you will be able to avoid delays by writing me at my Capitol address during the legislative session. For that reason, I would like to again print my State Capitol address: Box 17, State Capitol, Lincoln, Neb., 68509.

Winter's Mild Weather Bringing Area Mixed Blessings

The unusually mild weather Nebraskans have been experiencing the past several weeks is having a variety of effects on the state's farmers and ranchers. Although most producers — and animals and flocks — have enjoyed the warm, sunny conditions, there may be "mixed blessings" for the agricultural industry.

According to a Nebraska extension beef nutritionist, it has been a "grand winter" for most cattlemen from the standpoint of lower feed requirements and increased cattle performance. But Paul Guyer warned cattlemen "not to get caught napping so far as preparation for calving is concerned."

Since cattle are being kept in the stalls longer, Guyer suggested Vitamin A and phosphorus supplementation. Corn stalks, milo stubble and "winter" range normally will be lower than hay in phosphorus and lower than hay produced in 1980 in Vitamin A value. So it is important to provide adequate supplementation of these two ingredients from now until calving.

Many times, the beef nutritionist said, a mix of equal parts salt and high phosphorus mineral will be consumed in about the right amount. The cow needs an average of 20,000 intravenous units vitamin A daily prior to calving. It can be fed in a protein supplement in the salt mineral mix, or injected at the rate of 2.5 to 5 million intravenous units about 60 days before calving.

With the open and dry winter, most cows have gained weight this season when normally weight losses occur. Thus, energy and protein nutrition prior to calving should not be a major problem unless the remainder of the winter is particularly severe.

The nice weather has given producers more opportunity to work outside and Guyer suggested preparing now for calving troubles.

Cattlemen can begin by providing a calving assistance area out of the weather with the adequate equipment to help cows having difficult births. A pens also should be available to hold cows or problem calves in addition to an area to warm chilled calves.

While the open winter has allowed cattlemen to get more feed value for grazing their cattle on stalks, Guyer warns that some eastern Nebraska cows are getting too fat and could have difficulty calving if they keep gaining weight. If now looks as though most cattlemen have enough hay to see them through until spring, if the mild weather continues, it will be excellent for the calving season. Keith Gilster, an extension livestock specialist at the University of Nebraska's Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, called the environmental conditions good for all Nebraska's livestock performance. But "the dry sunny weather has created some dust problems in lots and we hope for enough moisture for summer he concluded.

Low moisture also could pose problems for wheat farmers.

According to an NU extension agronomist, there is no immediate threat the wheat will break dormancy. Donald Hanway said as long as temperatures go down to 40 degrees F and drop below freezing at night we maintain winter hardness.

Hanway added that this could be lessened somewhat by a sudden drop in temperature, but there is still a good level of dormancy in wheat. Although crops may not be hurt severely by the lack of moisture on surface soil, they can be damaged. Snowfall would be beneficial, said Hanway, "to build up moisture reserves for the spring."

Although the weather has allowed farmers more fall tillage time, it leaves the soil vulnerable to erosion and increased moisture loss. Elbert Dickey, an IANR extension conservation engineer, said the soil is dry well below the depth it has been tilled, and with the anticipated spring rain, this may cause large soil losses.

Soil erosion by water is Nebraska's major conservation problem and 75 percent of this is lost in row crop areas," Dickey said. Conservation tillage systems used by many farmers help minimize this loss from rainfall. According to Dickey, other conservation practices such as terraces, free basins and holding ponds also can reduce soil erosion losses.

The unusually dry winter on top of little rain in the fall could have adverse effects for irrigating farmers. According to Paul Fischbach, IANR extension irrigation engineer, most center pivot systems are designed to need a full profile of soil moisture down at least four to five feet at planting time.

Because the soil is in "critical condition," farmers face several decisions. They can start their irrigation systems and apply water now so the soil moisture is at a depth of three to four feet suitable for planting time. But Fischbach warned that during March through May Nebraska receives about eight to 10 inches of rain which can refill the profile if it doesn't run off. Consequently, farmers must gamble with Mother Nature and the amount of rainfall. It may be too wet to plant if farmers fill the profiles now and normal rainfall occurs in the spring.

This winter seems to be a "mixed bag" for pork producers from a structural environment standpoint.

Gerald Bodman, extension ag engineer, said hog producers have experienced lower operating costs, including reduced heating fuel costs because of the lower heat requirement. According to Bodman, "this is desirable because of the high feed costs and low pig prices seen in the market now."

But producers also have seen an increase in management and fewer benefits of confinement structures. Structures equipped with non-mechanical ventilation systems, such as gable roof housing with curtains or single slope buildings, cause difficulties in maintaining proper environmental temperatures within the structures. Because of the wide variation of temperature between day and night time, there should be sufficient closure at night and enough openness during the warm days.

Conditions dictate extra management and because the outside animals perform well due to the warm temperatures, Bodman said the mild winter to date seems to have decreased the benefits of confinement animal raising.

With outside lots, smaller handling costs for manure and feedlot runoff have reduced total handling costs in swine and beef facilities. But Bodman said the warm temperatures will result in an increase in nitrogen lost from manure left on open lots.

The mild winter has caused most producers to operate their ventilation systems at a higher airflow rate than in cold weather. Bodman said this will reduce the number of animals lost because of exposure to confined unit gases such as hydrogen sulfide in association with manure.

This year's mild temperatures may have varied effects from the structural standpoint for livestock producers. There will be a decrease in operating costs, but an increase in management will be necessary to keep systems working efficiently.

For farmers who store grain there is a valid concern about the increased hazard of stored grain insects as a result of the warm weather.

The major factors which govern insect activity are grain temperature and moisture content. Although temperatures have been higher than usual this winter, an IANR extension entomologist said there is not much problem now.

According to Bob Roselle, 40 degrees F. in the store grain will stop reproduction of insects. Not until the temperature rises to 60 to 90 degrees F will insect activity continue and accelerate.

Roselle suggested that grain farmers can reduce the risk of grain insects by manipulating the moisture and temperature by aeration. But the entomologist warned "when moving the cool air from the outside through the mass, you must be careful so condensation does not occur on the surface."

As the weather has caused faster gains because of improved feed efficiency of livestock, there has been an unexpected peak in marketing. But an extension ag economist said there seems to be no opportunity in the short term to carry cattle and hogs to heavier weights and expect to see the price increase. Al Wellman suggested to keep sales current in slaughter cattle and market hogs. The weather has not been a major influence on the market because livestock sales have been bulked together. "Because of the faster gains there is a peak in marketing we hadn't expected rather than being more stretched out into 1981," Wellman said. The benefit goes to the consumer because of the current price situation in livestock sales.

According to Wellman, "The price decline is outweighing any opportunity we gain from an increased feed conversion." He suggested producers market currently rather than trying to carry into some distant market.

Another effect of the weather seems to be a psychological one. Although it is difficult to measure, an IANR extension human development specialist, said the warm temperatures help to reduce tension simply because people aren't cooped up and can spend more time outside.

"People can get out and enjoy the weather and this contributes to a better emotional climate with the family and the individual," Leon Rottmann said.

Many feel "fresh and exhilarated," according to Rottmann, but at the same time concerned about the adverse effects the weather may be having upon the agriculture and sking industries.

Overall, farmers and ranchers have appreciated the warm temperatures the past several months. Although there are many advantages, it is important to prepare now for some of the drawbacks that may result due to the mild winter.

Corn Leaf Development The Same With 4 Systems

A study looking at corn leaf area development using four different tillage systems didn't turn up any major differences, according to Dr. Wallace Wilhelm, U.S. Department of Agriculture plant physiologist stationed at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Corn was grown under dryland conditions in Eastern Nebraska to study the influence of tillage practices on plant development and leaf growth characteristics during a three-year period from 1977 to 1979.

Tillage practices used in the experiments were plow, disk, chisel and no till. All tillage operations were applied during the spring of each cropping season.

Wilhelm said there was no significant tillage treatment effects on the leaf area. Relative leaf area growth rate, relative growth rate, the leaf area duration and net assimilation rate did not differ among the treatments.

According to recent farm reports, Wilhelm said crop yields fluctuate with tillage systems.

We were hoping for an explanation of the problem by looking at the leaf growth," he said.

Future research, Wilhelm added, will look more closely at early plant growth. The differences in soil temperature due to tillage systems, a greater influence earlier on in plant development and also will be studied.

The research was not intended to select a standout tillage system, but to learn more about the influence of tillage on crop growth, he said.

If a farmer uses a no till system a number of years, some degree of tillage may be necessary later, he added. Developing a set of environmental conditions that are good in theory and practice may work for a given amount of time, but it extended, the advantage of that tillage system may be reduced.

Family Event at Norfolk

Nebraska's sixth annual Helen Becker Conference on Family Health will be held in three cities in March and April to examine issues, needs and problems in family health, including Norfolk. Each conference, coordinated through the University of Nebraska Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources Cooperative Extension Service and the NU Medical Center, will start with a keynote address to define characteristics in family health which will then be reviewed and explained in panels and workshops.

According to Leon Rottmann, human development specialist at UNL, the Nebraska rural health scene will be integrated with health problems to be discussed at the conference. The conference schedule includes March 31 — Norfolk Villa Inn.

At the Norfolk conference, Dr. Kenneth Peters, a family practitioner in Plainview, will talk on the "4 Ws of Wellness." The workshops will include the topics of health insurance, nutrition, lifestyles and wellness, sexuality, transactional analysis, stress, biofeedback and self-care education.

In addition, Ruth Raymond Thone will talk on women's worth in society, communities and at home.

Pre-registration, $7, is required by March 20. The conference is limited to 300 persons.

Pruning

Hardwood trees may be pruned at any time of the year. Exceptions are birch, maple and walnut, these species should be pruned when in full leaf or June or July. These species "bleed" excessively if pruned during the winter or early spring when bare of leaves.

The pruning of trees when dormant is preferred by many landowners. Old dead or damaged branches can be removed easily. The tree can be shaped for the desired form and correct low branches. The branches should be removed with the pruning cut at the main trunk or stem of the trees. The pruning of fruit trees is recommended when dormant.

Shearing or pruning of pines should be confined to this year's growth and limited to six weeks in early summer. The other evergreens — juniper, fir and spruce can be pruned at anytime of the year, however, dormant season is preferred. The partial removal of the past years growth is also recommended.

Garden preparation

March is the month for yard and garden preparation. Here is a list of suggestions.

- Apply dormant spray to fruit trees. Dormant oil sprays should be put on apple and pear trees to control scale insects and mites. Lime-sulfur dormant sprays used on peach, plum and cherry trees control scale insects, peach leaf curl and plum pocket.
- Prune fruit and shade trees.
- Winter-killed canes on roses should be pruned at the end of the month.
- Thin raspberries.
- Start garden transplants for tomatoes, cabbage, broccoli, cauliflower, peppers and eggplant.

- Transplants of cabbage, broccoli and cauliflower should be planted early in March. Tomatoes should be planted around March 21. Peppers and eggplant transplants should go into the ground around March 5. Older transplants do not usually give a headstart on summer, but grow tall and spindly instead, resulting in delayed harvest, poor quality and lower yield.

We want you to know about electric costs

WHOLESALE This chart shows some of the factors involved in setting the rates for users of electricity who pay their bills to a utility other than NPPD.

81.7¢	For fuel, plant operation and maintenance, cost of equipment to meet environmental regulations and purchased power and energy.
15.5¢	For cost of money borrowed to meet long-term financial obligations including financial requirements for additions to transmission system.
1.5¢	For administration plus general overhead costs.
1.3¢	For operating transmission system including storm repair plus labor and maintenance for upkeep.

RETAIL This chart shows the factors involved in setting the rates for users of electricity who pay their bills directly to NPPD.

71¢	Cost of power generation including fuel, environmental requirements and purchased power and energy.
10¢	In lieu of tax payments, lease payments and other tax-related items.
9¢	Cost of operating systems including storm damage repair.
5¢	Cost of money borrowed to meet long-term debt requirements and new financial requirements for additions to system.
3¢	To make up revenue shortfall in 1980.
2¢	Administrative and general overhead costs.

We want you to have an understanding of the factors which affect today's electric rates. As a supplier of electricity in 85 Nebraska counties, our revenues come from two sources: (1) from sales at wholesale to other districts, rural cooperatives and municipalities; and (2) from sales direct to retail customers primarily through lease agreements. The charts here project how each dollar in revenue will be spent in 1981. As you can see, the major costs are for fuel, power plant operation and maintenance and environmental requirements. We have little or no control over these costs, nor do we have control over more than 85% of our costs. On the negative side, we cannot foresee any leveling off of the effects of inflation in these areas in the near future. On the positive side, we feel that we are doing everything we can to hold costs to a minimum. This is principally because our generating system is designed to make maximum use of coal, a low-cost and available fuel source. Another near-term saving will come from the deferment of construction on new generation and transmission facilities which our research indicates will not now be needed as soon as originally planned.

A dependable supply of electricity is one of Nebraska's most vital resources. Keeping it that way is our responsibility.

Kidney Chairmen Named

Felix Dorcy of Wayne has been named the 1980 Honorary Gift of Life Chairman for Wayne County by the National Kidney Foundation of Nebraska. Rosemary N. Mintz, Laurel, is chairman for Cedar County.

During the campaign, 28,000 homes in Nebraska will receive passkits from the foundation. The recipients will be asked to contribute to the foundation and then pass the envelope on to their neighbor.

Also included in the passkit will be organ donor cards which can be signed and carried to the person wishes to donate his/her vital organs for transplantation after death.

An estimated 14,000 of the 51,000 Americans now on an artificial kidney machine could benefit from a transplant if enough kidneys were available. Kidney diseases kill approximately 78,000 Americans each year and afflict an estimated 13 million.

Dorcy and Mintz said the passkits will begin arriving within the next few weeks.

Census Review Shows Accuracy

A review of 1980 population projections and 1979 population estimates against the 1980 Census of Population and Housing indicates that the projections and estimates presented an accurate picture of Nebraska's 1980 population.

According to Anne Reiston, research associate at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln College of Business Administration's Bureau of Business Research, both the 1980 projection and the 1979 estimate were higher than the 1980 census figure — indicating a faster rate of growth than actually occurred in the state.

The 1980 projection was .8 percent higher than the 1980 census figure and the 1979 estimate was .3 percent higher. Although the 1979 estimate is for nine months prior to the census date, there is little reason to suspect that this number would have changed much in that time. Both the projection and the estimate represent an accurate estimate of Nebraska's population.

For projections at the county level, 36 (or 38.7 percent) of the counties had a projected population higher than the 1980 census, while 56 (or 60.2 percent) had a projected population lower than the 1980 census, and 1 (or 1.1 percent) had a projected population equal to the 1980 census.

In several counties, the 1980 census projections were significantly higher than the 1980 census figures. A slower rate of population decline was projected for Arthur and Kimball counties than actually occurred. In contrast, an increase in population was projected for Wayne County, where a decline in its population occurred from 1970 to 1980.

The projections indicated a faster rate of population increase for Dodge and Douglas counties than actually occurred. This is consistent with the general trend depicted by the 1980 census of a slower rate of growth in metropolitan areas.

Nine Nebraska counties experienced considerably faster rates of growth than were projected. Nearly all of these counties experienced a reversal of population declines exhibited previously. These discrepancies accurately reflect a weakness inherent in population projections — which are largely based on past population trends.

For example, it is impossible to forecast with accuracy the impact of Burlington Northern expansion on Alliance (which affects Box Butte County), or the building of a power plant in Sutherland in Lincoln County.

The largest up-side discrepancies between the 1979 estimates and the 1980 census occurred in sparsely populated areas. Estimates for such areas typically are characterized as having a larger error than estimates for more densely populated areas. No cases occurred in which the 1979 estimates were substantially lower than the 1980 census figures.

WSC to Sponsor Institute

The culture and history of Spain will come to life for participants in the Spanish Institute sponsored by Wayne State College.

One of four international programs offered by WSC, the Spanish Institute will include classroom activities and tours of the country.

Participants can earn from three to six credit hours in various combinations of subjects, such as Spanish, general studies, history, art, etc. Those not needing the credit are welcome to attend the scheduled courses.

The Spanish institute runs from June 11 to July 6 and costs $1,400, according to Garlick. The price includes tuition, airfare and accommodations, most meals, and other costs such as tips and service charges. Garlick says student loans are available through Wayne State College at a low interest rate.

The Spanish Institute is open to all interested high school seniors, college students and adults. However, the number of participants is limited to 30. Wayne State College will operate a bus between Wayne and Chicago O'Hara International Airport.

Garlick encouraged interested individuals to seriously consider participating in the program.

"You don't have to know Spanish to enjoy the beaches of Valencia, the cosmopolitan atmosphere of Madrid, or the festive air of a discoteque in Sevilla," she said.

Those interested in enrolling or wanting more information may contact Dr. Maria Grovas or Florella Garlick, at the WSC Spanish Department, or Chuck Kay, director of international education. Reservations must be in no later than March 20.

Participants will tour the southern part of Spain, including the cities of Madrid, Sevilla, Granada and Cordoba. Garlick and Dr. Maria Grovas, the other WSC co-director, will lecture on Spanish history and civilization during the tour.

Courses will be taught by qualified professors from Spain and the United States at the University of Valencia. History and culture courses are offered in both English and Spanish and language instruction is offered at various levels beginning with a basic course, according to Garlick.

Unfortunately, senior citizens are prime targets of tax schemes, where individuals impersonating IRS employees show up to "collect" additional taxes. The IRS says all of its employees are required to carry clearly recognizable picture identification which must be presented when they contact taxpayers. Most people who owe additional taxes are contacted by mail first, so make sure you don't transact business of any kind if you suspect fraud.

Also, beware of organizations claiming to have tax-exempt status that ask for donations to their cause. While there are many legitimate and praiseworthy organizations with tax-exempt status, there are also fraudulent groups posing as bonafide tax exempt organizations.

The most frequent scheme used by the impersonators is for one or more representatives to arrive unexpectedly at a person's home or business and announce that the person owes the government several thousands of dollars in back taxes. The phony agent then offers to settle the person's tax records if the person simply pays a percentage of the money supposedly owed.

You should not answer questions concerning your tax situation or allow persons into your home or business without first verifying that the IRS agent has proper identification.

In the following situations you should call the Inspection Service:

- If contacted to schedule an audit meeting, the "IRS agent" does not have proper identification and attempts to collect money from the return filer on the spot.
- If after the death of a spouse, an "IRS collector" arrives to arrange payment of the deceased's back taxes.
- If contacted by an "IRS agent" who offers to prepare your tax return for a fee.
- If you have any reason to believe someone is impersonating an IRS employee, or if you suspect someone of representing a bogus tax-exempt organization, immediately contact your local police and then call the Inspection Service, Internal Security Division collect at 312-886-5855. The Division is located at 35 East Wacker Drive, Room 1646, Chicago, Ill., 60601.

Remember, under no circumstances should you give money, checks, bank books or any other item of value to someone you are not sure of. If you are to be careful.

Beware of Posed Agents

You should be particularly aware of persons posing as Internal Revenue Service agents during the tax filing season.

This time is not only busy for the Internal Revenue Service but is also the time when people impersonating IRS agents are most active. The IRS Inspection Service receives more impersonation complaints from taxpayers during the period Jan. 1 through April 15 than at any other time of the year.

Participants can earn from three to six credit hours in various combinations of subjects, such as Spanish, general studies, history, art, etc. Those not needing the credit are welcome to attend the scheduled courses.

Girl Scouts Observing Anniversary

Beginning Sunday, Girl Scouts in the Prairie Hills Council will join with other Girl Scouts in celebrating the 69th anniversary of Girl Scouting.

Four troops with 47 girls and six adults make up one local Girl Scout troop and 11 girls and three adults make up the other troop. Jennifer Carney is leader of the first and Paulette Kumm of Allen is leader of the other.

Girl Scouting was founded in 1912 by Juliette Gordon Low. She established the first troop in Savannah, Ga., with the idea of providing an opportunity for all girls to develop their full potential as creative, knowledgeable, capable women.

Prairie Hills Girl Scouts will celebrate their special week by attending church on Sunday, holding feasts and suppers in some communities and open house in others.

For more information on the local Scout leaders, contact Mrs. Carney at 375-4619 or Mrs. Kumm at 635-2343.
